Dulles in Paris

Dulles said Friday's meeting would be a continuation of that process of consultation. In such fashion, he added, the 14 member countries would be able to perfect their understanding of each other's problems.

"On this understanding," he said, "on a common purpose, the future of all of us depends."

Dulles made no mention of the talks he planned to have in Paris on the Geneva conference.

An informed American source here said earlier the United States would stand by its decision to oppose an expected Russian move to turn the Geneva meeting into a "Big Five" conference with Red China—even if such opposition broke up the conference.

Before leaving Washington last night, Dulles implied this would be his stand. He reiterated American participation at the Geneva parley "does not imply our diplomatic recognition of Red China."

The United States insists the Peiping regime is an invited participant, not a big-power instigator of the meeting starting April 26.

Official Viewers

A wreath evidently intended to be placed on a grave.

The woman, of large proportions, is well draped. Her proportions, according to the sculptor, are approximately twice that of the normal figure.

The county court and members of the courthouse commission viewed the work preliminary to beginning the marble carving. All expressed satisfaction concerning Littman's design.

The court allocated $12,000 for the work in addition to some $3000 for the extra thickness of the marble. Making the trip were County Judge Rex Hartley, Commissioners Roy Rice and E. L. Rogers; Ray Glatt, C. A. Sprague and Glenn L. Briedwell.

Enthusiasm

"What inspiration and what leadership!" exclaimed Chancellor Hunter at the outset of an inspirational and informative address. These ingredients, he added, are essential in every campaign of the type in which Salem is engaged. "I have a profound conviction of the importance of the Young Men's Christian Association."

Other essentials to success, Chancellor Hunter mentioned for the job ahead, mass will to succeed and organization. Of the last mentioned he said he had never seen better preliminary work in all of his 50 years of experience.

Touching upon the character building aspect of organizations such as the Y, Hunter declared, "where you have no character you have subversion."

The need of larger physical facilities to keep pace with the work of the YMCA was stressed by Chairman Harland. He spoke of the current capital funds campaign as "once in a lifetime" and indicated that the peak of performance with the present plant has been reached long ago.

Ron Anderson of the A. A. Stag chapter of Hi-Y, asked "what are we worth to America?" as he addressed the audience from the boys' viewpoint.

An amusing but nevertheless pointed portion of the program was that presented by William Ross, Mrs. Jay McMurren, Glen Smith and Carl Ritchie who presented the "wrong and right way" of selling prospects.

Coburn Grabenhorst, chairman of the team organization, introduced his associates and then called upon the workers to rise.

Homer Gould, sent here by the national council of the Y.M.C.A.'s detailed the mechanics of the campaign and gave instruction as to procedure to be followed. He expressed confidence in the outcome and said the campaign would definitely close May 17.

An impressive closing ceremony was presented by Herb Triplett, Ken Rawlings, Tom Pickens and Ray Taylor, all members of Salem Hi-Y club.

The first of a series of five report luncheons will be held at the Y Tuesday noon, April 27.

POW Accuses

Dickenson kept his eye fixed intently on both Davis and Cpl. Robert E. Vincent of Ayre, Mass., who was the following witness.

Vincent related he had overheard Dickenson in close discussion with a POW named Hinkle in which Dickenson said "I hope that article wins first place."

Vincent said the article was written for "Towards Truth and Peace," a camp paper written by the progressives under the supervision of the Chinese.

The Chinese, Vincent said, offered prizes for the best articles in the magazine and shortly afterward, Vincent said, he saw Dickenson with "Chinese currency in his hands."

The article in question, Vincent said was against "the American capitalists" and accused Americans of using germ warfare in Korea.

Parent-Teacher

Gov. Patterson pledged the state government help in furthering the OCPT program.

Dr. Rex Putnam, state superintendent of public instruction, quoted an old Jewish saying, "God couldn't be everywhere so He made mothers." He also remarked that fathers in PTA are very brave males. Putnam assured the assembly that school boards and the school administrations couldn't be everywhere so PTA was invented.

In the absence of Mayor Al Loucks, assistant City Manager Charles Barclay extended greetings for the city of Salem. Barclay was well received when he pointed out that he could not distinguish between the beauty and charm of the Job's Daughters who met here last week and the comely charms of PTA delegates here this week. He told the audience that they were the greatest cooky baking organization he had ever seen.

E. Dean Anderson, Portland, pointed out that the Marquee sign stating the coming movie attraction as "Casanova's Big Night," has been chosen by design to draw a crowd but that it was not the theme of the convention. Anderson said that he had once drawn a crowd to a similar meeting by the use of "Free Love and The Third Sex."

Featured speaker of the day, Mrs. Herman L. Nordfors, vice president of region 7, NCPPT, stated that she had gone to school with clean hands" sustained a decision of Circuit Judge Carl E. Wimberly of Douglas county in a suit of John L. Casteel, appellant against Robert M. King over a contract for purchase of land.

Casteel, who the court said had some previous trouble with the defendant, procured a third party to make a contract with the defendant for purchase of the land. The plaintiff furnished the money for down payment.

Subsequently, the third party, Lex Coleman informed the defendant of the facts and the contract was cancelled. The plaintiff sued for a specific performance and appealed from an adverse decree.

The court declared that the "plaintiff asks the courts to enforce a contract on his behalf which had its inception in his own wrongdoing. The trial court refused questionable relief in which we concur."

Circuit Judge James W. Crawford of Multnomah county was sustained in his decision that Michael Loring and others deliver a deed to a piece of property purchased by R. W. Haines and on which Haines built a house costing in excess of $15,000. The court said that evidence showed that when Haines tendered the balance due on the lot, the defendants refused to deliver a deed. The trial court awarded the plaintiff's plea and this decision was affirmed.

Emphasize the good things about the schools, she said. Cooperation of newspapers and radio stations is needed today. One picks up the average newspaper today and finds stories of the schools only on the sport page. The average person would believe that only physical education is taught in the schools to judge by the sport page.

All these changes must start with the U in PTA, Mrs. Nordfors concluded her remarks.

Defends Aide

A reporter asked whether Wilson "agreed" with McCarthy that Hensel was "guilty of possible law violations."

Wilson chuckled, paused, then answered "no."

Wilson Refutes McCarthy. A reporter asked Wilson whether Hensel "masterminded" preparation of the Army charges against McCarthy as the senator contends.

"Of course not," Wilson replied. At another point, Wilson remarked that the whole row "makes me think of the political scraps at a rather low level."

"If your opponent calls you a liar don't deny it, accuse him of being a horse thief."

He said the whole situation is over which "I don't enthuse."

McCarthy brushed aside Hensel's challenge to repeat his statement about him under conditions permitting a law suit.
