Col. W. B. Carlock to Head Military District

Col. Willard B. Carlock, who three months ago came to Oregon as senior Army advisor for the Oregon National Guard has been named chief of the Oregon Military district.

Carlock succeeds Col. Alfred E. McKenney, who the last of July retires from active Army duty after 37 years of military service.

The new district chief is a graduate of the U. S. Military academy, being a member of the class of 1927. As an infantry officer he served in the United States, Hawaii, the British West Indies and Puerto Rico, in addition to assignments in Indonesia and Korea.

In December, 1948 Carlock was detailed as senior American Military observer for the United Nations Commission for Indonesia and for the next nine months was in that country observing the truce during arrangements by the Dutch to grant independence to the Indonesians.

Prior to coming to the assignment as senior Army Advisor for the Oregon National Guard the colonel was senior liaison officer for the United Nations Command in Korea. In this assignment he was the sole "contact man" between Gen. Mark Clark and the communists until armistice negotiations resumed. Carlock also participated in the exchange of prisoners to the communists and the taking over of anti-communist prisoners by the Indian troops.

Col. McKenney, the retiring chief, came to the Oregon District assignment in August, 1953. He began his military service with his enlistment in the National Guard of the state of Maine in 1917.

Commissioned a year after entering the Guard, McKenney since 1920 has been in the infantry branch of the regular Army. He has served in Puerto Rico, Greece, The Philippine Islands, Middle East and Germany and was post commander at Augsburg, Bavaria.

From 1939 until 1944 Col. McKenney was a member of the faculty of the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Ga. He also wrote infantry training films in 1939 and 1940 and introduced the use of film strips into the service. In addition to his work with training films he has written a number of articles for the "Combat Forces Journal" and some Infantry school texts and War Department Manuels.

McKenney's service has also included that of ROTC instructor at the University of New Hampshire, Boston University and Gettysburg College in Pennsylvania. The colonel, whose son this June was graduated from West what he plans to do after his retirement.

Citizens' Committee Meet Set for July 27

LEBANON—A school citizens' committee meeting has been set for Tuesday, July 27, to consider recommendations made by members of the various school boards which met here earlier this summer. All interested citizens are invited to attend the session, said James King, city school superintendent, and secretary of union high 1 and district school boards.

The session will be held at 8 p.m. in room 1 of the high school.

Plans for future education of students in the district, and construction of buildings to meet increased enrollments will be advanced. At a former meeting, various boards of the union high school district asked the union board to project a survey with the cooperation of a citizens committee.

Dean Talks on Communism

COOS BAY (AP) — The greatest menace facing the United States today is not communism but "Soviet imperialism," MaJ. Gen. William F. Dean told the Oregon department convention of the American Legion here Wednesday.

Dean, highest ranking American officer captured during the Korean War, said Russia is engaged in "carrying out a program of world conquest designed more than 200 years ago" by the Russian Czar, Peter the Great.

Dean told the legionnaires the last will and testament of the czar "gives historic evidence of the true nature of the Russian conspiracy for world domination."

The document, Dean added, advocated use of a dogma to conceal the program for world domination.

"Not only did they adopt Marxism as their dogma to mask their world ambitions in presenting themselves as a friend to each enemy," Dean said, "but they also have established the Communist Party as a high priesthood in their own country."

He then quoted at length from the purported will.

The convention opened Wednesday morning and continues through Saturday. About 1,200 delegates were registered, and more were due during the day.

Washington State Asks For Priest Rapids Permit

SEATTLE (AP) — Ignoring objections voiced by the Grant County PUD, THE State Power Commission voted Tuesday night to apply for a permit to construct the Priest Rapids Dam on the Columbia River.

The step toward building the 360 million dollar dam which would have a power potential of 1,590,000 kilowatts, was taken on a 4-1 vote, with commissioner Tom Quast of Marysville dissenting.

The application will be taken to Washington and discussions held with the Federal Power Commission, which must approve the application. The FPC also will be asked by the Grant County PUD for a temporary permit to build the dam.

The PUD decided to make its application as soon as a bill authorizing the project passed Congress recently and was sent to President Eisenhower for his signature.

The authorizing measure specifies that the project must be financed on a local level. Walter S. Gordon, commission chairman from Tacoma, said the commission plans to finance the project through a revenue bond issue.

He said the commission was not "moving in" on the PUD's interests but was filing its petition to keep the state from losing any claim to constructing the project.

"The commission is merely doing its duty," he said. "If we don't file this, we may be pushed out the door and barred."

The action was taken a few minutes after J. Frank Ward, managing director of the commission, read a letter from the PUD asking that no action be taken until an open hearing has been held.

A public meeting to discuss the matter was set for July 30 by the commission but a place for the 17nw-co ee mckay u 21 session was not set.

Stayton Bean To Be Boosted

STAYTON—Two bus loads of Santiam bean festival officials and queen candidates will converge upon Salem Wednesday night for the second game of the Salem Victoria International baseball game at Waters field.

Queen candidates have been put forth by many Santiam canyon towns and organizations and from the group a queen will be selected at the open air stage Tuesday night, July 27. Lindsay Wright is chairman of the queen committee and his assistants are Mrs. Vivienne George and Mack Williams.

The queen will be selected by judges who are expected to be influenced by talks given by the candidates upon the general subject of beans, general personality of the individuals and probably on their popularity with the audience as judged by applause.

Brownings carnival will be set up in the civic center for the duration of the festival and the Tuesday night program with choice of the queen will be held there.

The amateur talent show will be held in the same location Wednesday night, July 28. Ed Bell is general chairman in charge of this portion of the program.

The pet parade, long a feature of the Bean festival, will be held in downtown Stayton Thursday night, July 29, with the grand parade Friday night. Clair Basl is chairman of the pet parade arrangements. Ralph Bright is general chairman.

Gene Teague is chairman for the horse parade to be held Saturday afternoon in downtown Stayton.

Bovard to Contest Removal From FHA

By FRANK O'BRIEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The attorney for Burton C. Bovard said Wednesday Bovard and another government housing official lost their jobs because they opposed an attempted power grab by housing administrator Albert M. Cole.

Cole could not be reached immediately for comment.

Attorney Clayton L. Burwell has announced that Bovard will fight before the Civil Service Commission his ouster as general counsel of the Federal Housing Administration (FHA), a post he had held since 1948. Burwell has attributed Bovard's ouster to "political manipulations" by Cole.

The attorney made available a letter he said former housing commissioner Guy T. O. Hollyday had written Feb. 19 to White House chief of staff Sherman Adams saying Cole had proposed "abolishing" FHA and taking over its powers and those of other housing agencies.

Burwell said the ousters of both Hollyday and Bovard stemmed from their opposition to such a proposal by Cole.

Since Hollyday was dismissed, Burwell said in a statement, Cole has "accomplished all his objectives" through a reorganization provided in a housing agency money bill which became law June 24. Burwell said these powers were written into the bill "at the last moment and without hearings."

Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) — Oils and steels helped pull the stock market higher Wednesday after a hesitant start.

Gains ran to a point or two at the best, in late afternoon but there were numerous small losers throughout the list.

Volume approximated 2,400,000 shares for the day. That compares with 2,589,000 shares traded Tuesday in a lower market.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO (AP) — Rains over a wide section of the midwest broke prices of new crop soybeans and corn on the board of trade Wednesday. Other cereals were quite weak.

New crop soybeans dropped 10 cents at or immediately after the opening and, except for one short period, remained down there the rest of the day. In each of the past two days they had gained 10 cents.

New crop corn futures fell 8 cents at one time. They showed a little better rallying capacity than soybeans, but nevertheless didn't come close to getting back to Tuesday's finish.

The rains hit some areas which had been complaining of damage to corn and soybeans as a result of hot, dry weather.

Wheat closed 1 ¾-2 ½ lower, July 2.06 ½-⅛; corn 4 ½ to 8 cents lower, July 1.59 ½-1.60 ¾; oats 1 ¼ to 5 cents lower, July 71-73; rye 2 to 2 ½ lower, July 1.11; soybeans 10 cents lower, July 4.06 ¾, and lard 80 cents lower to 5 cents a hundred pounds higher, July 16.60-16.80.
