U. S. Frowns on W. E. White Dies at Home

try with which the United States has proper relations. Snydam said it is true the U.N. secretary general was informed in Peiping "that the Chinese Communists authorities might permit relatives to visit those U.N. personnel who had been convicted and whose cases were under investigation, and that they would provide them the necessary entry visas."

Surprise Move

which it has no diplomatic relations. American passports ban any travel to Communist countries (except Yugoslavia.) This ban is lifted and the passport amended when a traveler can show his proposed trip will not hurt U.S. interests.

About three hours after the announcement by Peiping, the State Department issued a statement which did not make clear whether it will permit such visits. But it said it cannot encourage the trips, explaining Red China is an area where the protections of an American passport cannot be offered.

At Traveler's Risk
Some of the fliers' relatives received telegrams from Washington saying they could go to China if they wished. The telegrams were signed Brig. Gen. R. J. Reeves, the U. S. Air Force casualty branch.

Mrs. Edwin Heller of Philadelphia, wife of an imprisoned lieutenant colonel, said Reeves had advised her that travel to China would be at her own risk, and she felt her husband would not want her to go.

A Pennsylvania mother, Mrs. Hurley Baumer, said she would not try to visit her son, a major, because she felt it would do no good.

Two Alabama wives of officers were undecided. The Minnesota families of two other Air Force men were hesitant about taking up the offer.

But the parents of Capt. Harold Fischer Jr. said in Iowa they plan to go. Mrs. Fischer Sr. said she and her husband had sent letters earlier to Premier Chou seeking permission to go to China.

Include 11 Fliers
While the U. S. personnel referred to in the announcement were not specified, the understanding here was that they include the 11 fliers convicted on spy charges; two civilians who were seized on spy charges; and four jet pilots whose cases the Chinese have announced as under investigation.

Hammaraskjold informed Under Cabot Lodge Jr., U. S. delegate, of this action at his first talk with him on Jan. 13 immediately upon his return from his globe-girdling trip.

Hammaraskjold also told Secretary of State Dulles, when he conferred with him in Washington this week, that he had received assurances of the well-being of the prisoners. There was no indication here as to what assurances Hammaraskjold received, but it was known that these assurances were made in more than verbal ways.

No member of Hammaraskjold's party, however, went to see the prisoners personally.

Salary Raise

Members of the other school believe that a man of average income should have an opportunity to be a legislator. Brown declares that on the present scale of pay he and many other members of the assembly not only lose business while absent from their occupations during legislative sessions, but actually expenses here in Salem are greater than the pay paid by the state.

But Sen. Brown is opposed to a rate of pay which would attract the "professional politician." In other words, he doesn't want the pay to be so high that candidates would be induced to run for the sake of the salary alone.

The $2500 annual salary plus $10 a day expenses, he believes would enable the young lawyer,

O-o-o-o! Drill Still Favorite Dental Tool

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP)—With men who know cavities best, the drilling burr, painful as it may be, remains the dentist's favored weapon. Montana and Wyoming dentists agreed here Thursday such new-fangled gadgets as the "ultrasonic" and "turbojet" drills are a step away from common use. "Still in the experimental stage," they said.

Just to prove their hearts are in the right place, the dentists pointed to such recent advancements as increased speed of burrs from 6,000 to 15,000 revolutions per minute, better methods of cooling the drill, and diamond drills. All result in more comfort to the patient, spokesmen said.

After about a year of residence in Portland White moved to Albany, where he operated a grocery store. He came to Salem from Albany. He was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic church.

Survivors include his wife, the former Nellie Bartlett, to whom he was married in Woonsocket, S.D., October 2, 1887; three daughters, Mrs. Vera L. Davies and Mrs. Elia Jane of Salem, and Mrs. Myrtle Arntz of Benton Harbor, Mich.; a son, J. D. White of Salem; a sister, Mrs. Henry Anderson of Wagon Springs, S.D.; 17 grandchildren, and 39 great grandchildren and one great great grandchild.

Announcement of funeral services will be made later by the Virgil T. Golden company chapel.

Council Fight

Jones wanted to know why there were no meters in front of the Heiler establishment on Center street, and Mayor Robert White, who was then an alderman, asked the city manager for a general investigation of the situation.

So Alderman Jones will introduce a batch of resolutions Monday night, one of which would put two one-hour meters in front of Burright's place and also a 15-minute loading zone.

Other of Jones' resolutions would do the following: Put a loading zone in front of the Ballou & Wright business on Chemeketa between High and Liberty.

Put meters on Center street from the southwest corner of Center and High westerly, which is in front of Heiler's.

Remove the parking meter in front of a supply business at 263 South Commercial and establish a loading zone.

Remove a loading zone and install two 24-minute meters at 191 South High, which is a real estate and an insurance business.

Remove loading zone and install a one-hour meter at 275 South Commercial, now unoccupied.

Remove meter at 485 Center and set up a 15-minute loading zone.

That the first parking space on the north side of Ferry east of 13th be designated as a loading zone. This is in front of the School Administration Building.

Alderman E. C. Charlton will have a resolution to make 19th between State and Lee, and 21st street between State and Mission through streets.

Mayor White will introduce an ordinance to increase the membership of the Park Advisory Board to 11 persons, one to represent the park and recreation department, one the school system, and the others to be at large, but interested in park development. They would be appointed by the mayor and serve at his pleasure.

The telephone franchise bill, with which is joined the question of gross earnings fee, will be up for third reading.

Ellsworth G. Ricketts of Salem, bridge investigations engineer with the State Highway Department, will be installed as president of the Mid-Willamette section of the Professional Engineers of Oregon, meeting Saturday night at the Columbia Athletic Club in Portland.

At the same meeting, as previously announced, R. H. Baldoock, state highway engineer, will be named by the organization as Engineer-of-the-Year.

He was on that project for 16 months, then went to Washington, D. C., for six months to complete his report on construction of the Alaska Highway.
