Green Urges Air Service

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Edith Green (R-Ore.) reiterated Thursday that air service between Portland and Alaska should continue.

She said she had urged Chairman Chan Gurney of the Civil Aeronautics Board to renew authority for Pacific Northern and Alaska Airlines to operate between Portland and Alaska.

The board has been reported ready to eliminate the service and provide flights to Alaska only from Seattle.

"It should be emphasized in relation to the board's previous commendable expression favoring continuance of the direct service, that the interests of Alaska and the Pacific Northwest including the state of Oregon, with Portland as its traditional gateway to Alaska, continue to be inseparable.

"Further the requirements of national defense for fully developed and independently equipped air transportation facilities, with particular emphasis on the strategic importance of Alaska, are of grave concern to me," she said in a letter to Gurney.

New West German Army Historic Turning Point

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG United Press Staff Correspondent

BONN, Germany (AP)—The birth of the new West German army will be a turning point in post-war European history. The Bonn Republic will have only 500,000 men under arms. Russia has more than four million.

But the significance of the new German Streitkraefte goes beyond mere figures.

It means the re-emergence of a sovereign Germany. Behind the West German armed forces will be 50 million vigorous, industrious, free people, steeped in proud military tradition.

Germany is already on the way to being a world power again. One reason why France hesitated to agree to German rearmament is that it foresaw the day when Germany might again overshadow Russia as a military menace.

West Germany is enjoying a remarkable boom. Its production, its national income, its exports are soaring.

The index of industrial production, which was 179.7 in November, 1953, reached 202.2 in November, 1954.

The volume of foreign trade, which was $8,290,000,000 in 1953 reached $9,980,000,000 in 1954. West Germany's favorable trade balance in 1954 was 672 million dollars compared with 600 million dollars in 1953.

Gains in leading stocks on West German exchanges averaged about 70 per cent in 1954.

Germany in 1954 produced 17,432,194 tons of raw steel, 11,362,069 tons of finished steel and 2,512,000 tons of pig iron.

Russia's total steel production for 1954 is estimated, on the basis of Russian figures, at about 45 million tons. Her pig iron production is estimated at 31,900,000 tons.

Germany's steel production was arbitrarily restricted by the allies from the end of World War II until July, 1952, as a security measure. The restriction was ended when the European coal and steel community—the Schuman Plan—came into being.

Russia had hoped to take over all Germany after the war, by means of rigged elections which would put the Communists in power, and take with Germany the Ruhr steel and coal industries.

Had that happened, Russia would have surpassed the United States in production, by 1960.

Now West Germany's unrestricted production, which is growing fast, is added to that of the other West European Schuman Plan countries as an allied asset.

Ike Has Something Here That FDR Didn't Have

By LYLE C. WILSON United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP)—The odds were long against it, but President Eisenhower has come up with a scheme to make more political hay from news conferences than was ever harvested by that old maestro FDR, himself.

No telling to what heights Mr. Roosevelt would have raised his news conferences if he had been blessed with the electronic gadgets now available. He did well enough, as it was, confounding his political opponents with the impact of his twice-weekly meetings with the news men and women.

He often baffled the reporters and rarely lost to them in the back and forth of repartee in which, it is true, FDR always enjoyed the useful assistance of a considerable clique. Strictly speaking, a clique is a hired group of cheerleaders and strictly speaking FDR did not hire his with money. He bound them to him with guile and a flattering habit of addressing a friendly and sometimes obscure reporter by his first name, just like an equal.

FDR Made Good Show Take them or leave them, FDR's news conferences were often the best show on earth and he handled them with skill, enjoyment and a lusty enthusiasm for cutting down his enemies in and out of the room. All of that soon will be forgotten and the old timers in years hence who try to tell the youngsters how FDR used to "win 'em on those wonderful Tuesdays and Fridays at the White House will get a blank, disbelieving stare. Mr. Eisenhower has taken to television. He has taken to newsreels, too, but the political sock in the new White House policy of filming news conferences is to come from TV. You may lay to that.

The President was on view for the first time this week, in a film of 25 minutes of the 33-minute weekly news conference. The effect was terrific. James C. Hagerly, the alert White House press secretary, worked this one out. Henceforth each week the conferences will be filmed. Photographers must obey the rules, however, and therein

No Retirement for Ridgway Till August

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway will not have to retire from the Army, before his term as chief of staff expires in August.

Secretary of the Army Stevens announced Thursday he will retain Ridgway in active service beyond the retirement age of 60, which Ridgway will attain in March.

Ridgway became chief of staff on Aug. 15, 1953. He was appointed to a two-year term, but would have had to retire a month earlier, on his 60th birthday, had it not been for Stevens' action, approved by President Eisenhower.

Relieve Suffering Fast-Effectively with VICKS VAPORUB

"Isn't that Commerce Department fellow taking a long time standardizing grass skirts?"

There are those who say Mr. Eisenhower is not gunning for a second term. That could be. But, if, by chance, such persons are mistaken, the man with the million-dollar grin has a mighty weapon in hand now. One that promises trouble for all of his opponents in all parties—and one that gives him a long lead on them.

Tot Complains to President About TV Program, Ike Acts

CHICAGO (AP)—Eight-year-old Renee Denicola, distressed because her favorite television programs were being interrupted by a "ham" radio operator, complained directly to President Eisenhower and got prompt action.

In a childish scrawl, Renee penned:

"Dear Mr. President: I am 8 years old and I wish you would help me. I am having so much trouble with a ham station interfering with my TV programs. I can't get any picture and all I hear is CQ, CQ. He's always on. You're the best President we ever had. I love you very much, Renee Denicola."

"Of course," said Renee's mother, Mrs. Girard Denicola today, "we thought nothing would come of it."

"But imagine our surprise when a few days later a letter arrived addressed to Renee. It was signed by a secretary of President Eisenhower. It thanked her for reporting the matter and said her letter had been referred to the Federal Communications Commission."

The FCC investigated and found that the "ham" was Anthony Shragal, an inspection foreman for a radio and television manufacturing company.

Shragal, informed of Renee's trouble, sent his son Robert to adjust the Denicola set to eliminate the interference. Renee is enjoying her programs again.
