

Researchers Engaged For Oregon Centennial

A contract with Stanford Research, Inc., to make the first phase of a survey of the economic aspects of an Oregon Centennial in 1959 was signed yesterday by representatives of the Governor's Oregon Centennial Committee, according to James A. Mount, chairman of the committee.

Arrangements for the survey were made by a sub-committee of the survey headed by Morrie L. Sharp. This committee, appointed at the meeting of the committee last December 17, has since worked out details for the survey. Negotiations were completed with the payment of funds for the first phase of the survey by Anthony Brandenthaler of Baker, chairman of the finance committee.

Since the original meeting at the Benson hotel, called by Governor Patterson last December, the finance committee has been carrying on a campaign to raise $30,000 for the proposed three-phase survey.

During this time sub-committees have been working in most of the counties of the state and all of Charles Bollinger, secretary of the finance committee, has visited 26 counties for this organization work and will soon help in establishing committees in the balance of the state's counties.

Brandenthaler, who has directed the campaign for funds, has made it clear that the entire amount raised is being earmarked for the survey with all expenses being paid by individuals on the committee. Of the total, $10,000 he states is being raised in out-state counties and $20,000 in Multnomah county. Don Smith, Vice President of the United States National Bank, is co-chairman and is handling the drive in Multnomah county.

Others on the finance committee are: Jack Flaucher, E. V. Burns, Kenneth Cochran, George Henderson, Ted Gamble, R. L. Clarke, Joseph Smith, Claude Palmer, Frank Dressler, Tom Guerin, James Marr, George Brown, Glenn
