

Gus Moore and Brydon Elected, Merger Wins

M. E. (Gus) Moore and Mrs. Brydon were re-elected to the Salem school board and Salem voters went along with those of Keizer in effecting a consolidation between the two areas as a result of Monday's school election.

Gus Moore defeated Charles C. Edwards 1,143 to 514, while Mrs. Brydon, turned back the bid of John Moore, labor candidate, 1,162 to 464. Both Gus Moore and Mrs. Brydon will succeed themselves. Moore who has been chairman of the board during the past fiscal year will turn the gavel over to Harry W. Scott at the first meeting in July. The chairmanship is held on a rotating basis.

Results of Monday's election by precinct:

No Depression In Agriculture

SPOKANE (AP)—"We have not had a depression in agriculture and we are not having one," the Washington State Bankers Assn. convention was told Tuesday.

"We are in a period of delayed post-war adjustment in agriculture," said Robert B. Tootel, governor of the Farm Credit Board and former director of agricultural extension services at Washington State College.

"There is a cost-price squeeze and some individual farmers are hit pretty hard, but by and large, agriculture is doing pretty well," he said.

Tootel said that making loans to farmers is a highly specialized field of banking and more and more banks are hiring agricultural specialists to handle this kind of business.

"A minimum of $50,000 is needed to get started on a small farm today," Tootel said. He predicted a steady drop in the number of "small family farms" and a corresponding increase in "large commercial family farms" because of the increased application of science to farming.

There are 2,370,000 people in greater Boston.

OVERROSS MURDER CASE STARTS

Casper A. Overross, charged with the rifle slaying of Ervin Kaser, was brought to trial Tuesday morning when Judge George Duncan asked a panel of prospective jurors to arise and be sworn in. Judge Duncan is shown on the bench, Charles Raymond, special prosecutor and Kenneth Brown, district attorney seated at the table on the right. At left is Overross arrayed in white seated between defense attorneys Bruce Williams and Otto Skopil.

Buchanan, Beatrice Evans, Florence Rose, Beulah Goebel, Bernice L. Blodgett, Douglas R. Brady, George J. Becker and Borden S. Aman.

Alley, the first prospective juror to be questioned by Bruce Williams for the defense, was excused almost immediately because he said he had formed an opinion that would be difficult to change by the evidence. Alley is a Salem Southern Pacific Co. employe.

Then followed in turn, Allen F. Lamer, radio and TV technician of Salem; Lester J. Church, Woodburn blacksmith; George Cleary, O. P. & P. Co. employe of Salem; Ray W. Barker, nut plant worker who lives south of Salem; George L. Zimmerman, Sublimity farmer and finally Field, the sole survivor of the questioning.

Charles Raymond of Multnomah county, special prosecutor and assistant to District Attorney Kenneth Brown, handled the questioning for the prosecution. His questions dwelt to some extent upon the value of circumstantial evidence in a case where the death penalty might be imposed.

The court room's capacity was virtually taken up by the prospective jurors. And when the hearing started there were a few spectators standing around the walls.

Overross, accused of shooting to death Kaser at the latter's home, appeared in court dressed in white coveralls, the uniform supplied all county prisoners. He gave close attention to the questioning but did not consult with either Williams or Otto Skopil, an associate.

Overross' two daughters were in court as were a few other relatives.

Miss Majorie McBride, superintendent of Hillcrest School for Girls, who was called upon by Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton, who presided, in reply to question declared that broken homes was the principal cause of delinquent girls who were sent to the institution.

"We do have some girls who come from normal homes with excellent economic conditions," she said, "but for the most part, girls whose parents have been divorced or where home conditions are not good, that get into trouble and eventually are sent to us."

Do They All Look The Same?

Did you ever think to yourself that when it came to house-painting time, that it didn't make too much difference about the color, because there were just eight or ten colors to paint a house anyhow? Well, just imagine that each one of those dots is a house, and that you're a great big bird, way up in the sky looking down at them, and that each one of them is a different color! No two alike! If your imagination is that good, then you've got some idea of how many different colors of outside house paint you can get at Norris-Walker Paint Company.

They total 220! So if you're thinking of painting remember, it doesn't have to be just yellow, or green, or blue... you've got a choice... in fact you've got 220 of 'em. And... Norris-Walker is the handyman's headquarters for everything it takes to mix it up and slap it on with, too!
