

President Makes Good on Promise to Congress

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower, with a lot of in-between help, is carrying out his pledge to keep Congress posted on events at the Geneva conference. However, the involved, long-range liaison between Switzerland and Capitol Hill so far has not produced any surprising or earthshaking information.

Lawmakers and administration officials said the content of the reports to Congress are about the same as those available to any avid American newspaper reader.

Congressional leaders said there have been two main encouraging points in reports they have received so far on the Geneva meeting. One is the high degree of U.S.-British-French unity and the other is the apparent continuing friendliness of the Soviets.

Difficult Problems Ahead

Sen. Walter F. George (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Tuesday he feels "the whole conference has moved steadily in the direction of reasonableness."

He described German reunification as "one of the difficult problems to be met" and said reunification will be difficult to achieve "without some serious concessions on our part."

Before going to Geneva, the President called in congressional leaders and promised them full information on progress of the Big Four meeting.

Mechanically speaking, the State Department is receiving communications at all hours from U.S. delegation headquarters in Geneva. They make up a good part of the volume of dispatches flowing into the diplomatic code room here around the clock.

Some State Department officials roll out of bed at an extra early hour to start work on the daily summary of incoming cables, including the heavy load from Geneva. This process continues throughout the day.

Acting Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. sits down at his State Department desk about 8 a.m. EDT to scan overnight reports from the President, Dulles and their Geneva helpers. So far this week, Vice President Richard M. Nixon has been stopping off at Hoover's office about 8:15 a.m. for a briefing before going on to Capitol Hill.

Nixon throughout the day has been passing on some information informally to important congressional officials. Chief responsibility for briefing Congress, however, has been delegated by the State Department to Assistant Secretary of State Thurston Morton, former representative from Kentucky. During the day, Morton contacts Republican and Democratic leaders as well as various committee members to give them reports on Geneva.

Teacher Honored

SWEET HOME—Thirty-seven people attended the Bigbee picnic Sunday at the local park. It is an annual event held in the honor of Mrs. Callie Bigbee, who is a retired teacher from here. This was the 18th year for the gettogether. The group was made up of Mrs. Bigbee's former pupils and friends. Seven attended from a class of 1900. Mrs. Bigbee, now retired, makes her home in Portland.

A record number of 2,291,000 marriages took place in the United States in 1946.
