

FOR SPRING

Hemline
Up to Individual

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—French designer Christian Dior revealed today that his spring plans for American women include wider waistlines just about any place a woman wishes.

The Parisian originator of drastic style changes, such as the first "new look" and the flat-chested "H-line silhouette," has not tampered with the hemline or the bustline.

Dior designed spring suits that sometimes have noticeable padding in the shoulders and often have double-breasted jackets only slightly indented at the waist.

He calls his open-necked dresses, often with wide collars, the "Lily" line. His afternoon dresses are cool shades like cantaloupe, lemon and apricot.

The most startling fashion the Dior models wore when they paraded his spring fashions yesterday before fashion writers attending the Dress Institute's Spring Press Week were their hats.

Dior believes in hats pulled low over the forehead—the deep-dish varieties that have down-curving brims and reach almost to the eyebrows.

The newest Dior evening dresses have skirts short in front and long in back. One of these is a white and gold printed satin taffeta with a skirt that fans from calf length in front to floor length in back.

Designer Anthony Blotta introduced something he called the "hobble silhouette." Blotta pulls in skirts low on the hips with an inch-wide band of self fabric. Occasionally suit jackets are hobbled too. The bloused back is cupped in near the hemline with a hobble band.

Ben Reig showed suits with shorter jackets, a general trend, and dresses with most of the pleats and bows in the back. One of his black silk dinner dresses for spring has a low-cut neckline in back and tiers of ruffles that flutter from the back sash.

After watching the predictions of a score of leading American designers, one fact is obvious:

A woman's most important measurement this spring will be her hip size. The loose-fitting jackets will camouflage too-big middles; the draped bodices and big collars will build up bustlines, but only one thing will help a girl in all the slim-skirted outfits—slim hips.

HOSTESS to a group of friends for luncheon on Thursday was Mrs. Herman Jochimsen, bridge following the luncheon.

AMONG club hostesses of the week was Mrs. C. E. Hicks who entertained her bridge group Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Hicks are leaving soon for Seattle to live. Mr. Hicks to be executive vice president with the Secoma Distributing company.

MOLALLA—Initiation of new officers for Molalla Theta Rho is scheduled for Monday at 7 p.m. in the IOOF hall. It will be a formal affair. The new president will be Miss Jane Wise, with Miss Paula Johnston as retiring president. Refreshments will be served by Oak Rebekah Lodge members.

HOSTS on Thursday night to members of their dinner and bridge club were Mr. and Mrs. Merrill D. Ohling.

ROY STENDER urges everyone who is interested in riding with the group to come out for practice. A large group came out this week but there is always room for more.

Tomorrow (Saturday) the annual meeting of the Governors' Guard will be in the Coral Room at the Marion hotel at 12:30 p.m. All Posse members are urged to attend, for this is the day they will elect new officers for the coming year.

Cards from the Graham Sharks tell us that they are now on their way back to Tennessee to attend a convention and that they will be home around the 21 of the month. While in Los Angeles for the holidays they attended the Rose Bowl game and thought it was wonderful.

Marlene Tracy, Jaunita and Stender will have charge of fun night tonight, so this promises to be another good one.

The retiring patron and matron, were Mrs. and Mrs. Paul Worthington, who received their jewelry. Lighting the candles for the installation were Sonie Holt and David Dickinson.
