Greek Right Scorns Reds

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Right-wing election opponents of Premier Constantine Karamanlis Tuesday renounced their alliance with Communist line parties and said they would support the Premier's foreign policy.

In Sunday's election Karamanlis' party won at least 155 of the national Parliament's 300 seats. The National Democratic Union coalition which opposed him, an alliance of rightists and extreme leftists took 142 seats, according to incomplete returns.

The Communist front parties demanded during the election campaign that Greece withdraw from the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance (NATO).

Weather Forecasts on TV Attract Large Audience

By CHARLES MERCER
 NEW YORK (AP)—For some incomprehensible reason I'm a sucker for weather forecasts on television. I'll cut off a spectacular any time for a quick forecast of what it's going to do tomorrow.

The weather never has any bearing on my activities. I've lost my rubbers and don't own an umbrella and I'll have to get to the office no matter what happens. But time I will to anybody on the screen who offers a forecast.

The curious thing about it is that in this area there is only one good TV forecaster to my way of thinking. His name is Tex Antoine. He appears only locally on the NBC-TV outlet.

All TV and radio forecasters get their information from the Weather Bureau, of course. But Antoine is the only one who makes me comprehend how it might rain or it might shine. He's authoritative, but not dictatorial. With an eloquent shrug he can explain how it might not turn out the way he expects at all.

There are a lot of women forecasters on TV around the country. Personally I'd give all of them other assignments. Weather is a man's business. When a woman gets into it she's either too positive or too negative. She always makes me aware she's a woman when I only want to concentrate on the weather.

A tall, slim fellow with a flair for a good phrase and a talent for drawing, Antoine was a radio announcer for 12 years before they suddenly put him on the weather beat. In the past few years he's become such an expert that he's now writing a book about you know what.

My increased interest in weather since the advent of a TV set is shared by many. Antoine assured me. His mail proves it. How fundamental weather is to the human condition is shown, he believes, by the fact that angry letters almost always arrive in periods of depressive weather.

"Depressive weather seems to have a real relationship to cardiac conditions and the schizoid personality," he said. He pointed out: "People generally are more interested in weather during the winter than in summer. But the time of greatest interest is when a hurricane is approaching. A forecast of rain usually leads to some silly phone calls such as, 'Will it rain by 11 o'clock tonight?'"

Weather just "is" and I don't think ever will be that predictable," Antoine said. "It's like standing at the edge of the Atlantic and demanding to know just what wave will wet your toes."

Legionnaires at Aurora For District 2 Conclave

By ANNA POWELL
 AURORA—More than 150 representatives from the national, state and area, were present at the banquet program following the separate business sessions of the American Legion and Auxiliary annual state district No. 2 conference, Sunday afternoon and evening at Aurora.

Clarence B. Grund of Manmouth is district No. 2 commander, and Mrs. Pearl Simkins of Salem is auxiliary president. At the banquet hour, each district official presented committee chairman and Mr. Grund served as master of ceremonies.

Brief summary talks were given by the President of the Department of Oregon, American Legion Auxiliary, Mrs. Harold L. Leach of Bonneville, and the Department of Oregon Commander, Jack Larson of Springfield. Both stressed Americanism as projects of the Legion program and warned quick action in contacting the congressmen concerning the War Veterans' Security Bill No. 7886, by writing approval to Oregon's congressmen.

At the special session of the auxiliaries during the afternoon hours, the national representative guest, Mrs. Charles W. Gunn gave educational information on "Girls' State and Girls' Nation and on the Status of the Public Relations program of the Legion Auxiliary."

The afternoon auxiliary business hour was opened by the Aurora unit president, Mrs. Clara Ehlen, who introduced the presiding officer, the president of District No. 2, Mrs. Simkins, who in turn presented the president of the Department of Oregon, Mrs. Harold J. Leach; the vice-president of the state of Oregon, Mrs. Clarence B. Grund; the secretary and the treasurer of the department of

Legion Plans State Conclave

ALBANY—Members of the American Legion auxiliary convention commission will join with the Lebanon convention commission Sunday in a conference with members of a former convention commission, including Astoria, Seaside and Redmond, to discuss plans for the 1956 department Legion convention to be held at Albany July 26, 27 and 28. The meeting will open at 10 a.m. at the Legion hall here.

Mrs. Gail Jones, general chairman of the auxiliary convention commission, Monday announced the list of her appointments to positions of responsibility in the preparation and local conduct of the auxiliary phase of the department assembly.

Besides Mrs. Jones the officers include Mrs. Louis Scheer, vice-chairman; Mrs. Harry Elmer, secretary; Mrs. Roy Collins, treasurer; and Mrs. William Bacon, Jr., representing the local auxiliary unit as president; Mrs. Doris Parker, vice-president; and Mrs. Walter Krupp, representing the past presidents, representing the past presidents.

Rugged Competition Looms In Contest for Movie Oscar

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Ernest Borgnine, whose acting earned him only $50 a week three years ago, and James Dean, who is dead, emerged Monday among early favorites in what looks like the tightest Oscar race in years.

Susan Hayward, who portrayed singer Lillian Roth in a battle of the bottle in "I'll Cry Tomorrow," and Anna Magnani, the fiery Italian widow of "The Rose Tattoo," rate the same nod for the top feminine prize in the annual Academy Awards selections.

Only in the top picture and best supporting actor and actress categories are single standouts favored. They are: "Marty," the picture that defied every Hollywood norm for commercial success; Arthur O'Connell, the trapped bachelor of "Picnic," and Jo Van Fleet, Dean's madam-mother in "East of Eden."

But all face rugged competition from other nominees named Saturday night over a nationwide NBC telecast. There are no show-ins.

Three previous Oscar winners, Spencer Tracy, James Cagney and Frank Sinatra, were nominated for the best acting performance. Tracy, a two-time winner, was named for "Bad Day at Black Rock," Cagney for "Love Me or Leave Me," and Sinatra for "The Man With the Golden Arm."

Jennifer Jones ("Love is a Many Splendored Thing") and Katharine Hepburn ("Summertime") and Eleanor Parker ("Interrupted Melody") were the other three top actresses named. Both Miss Jones and Miss Hepburn have won Oscars before.

The four other top pictures named are "Love is a Many Splendored Thing," "Mr. Roberts," "Picnic" and "The Rose Tattoo."
