

Democrats Consider Calling Hearings on Army vs. AF Fight

Wilson to Make Personal Probe Of Feuding

WASHINGTON (AP)—There were some indications today that Democrats in Congress will move to air fully and in public a row between the Army and the Air Force over defense spending and strategy.

The row flared up Saturday—Armed Forces Day, which is supposed to be dedicated to unity of the military services. While they were cooperating in displays across the country, some sources in the Pentagon gave newsmen documents declaring that present emphasis on air power could lead only to "national disaster."

Secretary of Defense Wilson promptly announced he would look personally into this "most unfortunate business." He said the armed services "don't have to practice psychological warfare on each other."

Reaction among Congress members was mixed. Sen. Francis Case (R-S.D.) said such rivalry between the services "keeps them from getting sloppy." Rep. Mahon (D-Tex.) called it "a healthy thing."

Sen. Jackson (D-Wash.) said service rivalry has led to "waste and duplication," particularly in the missile field.

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) told an Armed Forces Day audience at Ft. Campbell, Ky.:

"One sure and certain way to reduce our military capacity is to permit the existence of an imbalance between the priorities and funds allocated to the various branches of our armed forces."

"I most respectfully request the President to use all the powers of his office to bring about a proper balance. . . . It is a situation which only the commander-in-chief can resolve before it reaches the proportion of a national scandal."

Mahon, chairman of a House tee which handles the defense budget, said on a CBS radio-television interview yesterday, "This thing is going to be busting out all over until . . . some decisions are made."

He said he had hoped that the Joint Chief of Staff would have made before now decisions on the missions of the different services—"these basic explosive questions which are smoldering in the Pentagon." Mahon added, however:

"I am not in agreement with those who have deplored the fact that this controversy is out in the open. It should have been out there until these issues are resolved."

He suggested hearings might be undertaken by the House Armed Services Committee, which held hearings on a somewhat similar Navy-Air Force row over the B36 bomber in 1949.

Other differences among the services have recently been aired. One involves an Air Force contention that the Navy air arm could deliver only a "small" strategic punch. Another centers around rivalry over missile development.

Touching off the new row was the release of various Army papers to reporters for several newspapers, including the New York Times, New York Herald-Tribune and St. Paul Pioneer Press. One of them said in part:

"We continue to pour excessive manpower and money into an air force which has been substantially neutralized and which pleads for more money, more money, more money. We continue to divert large quantities of our military manpower into a navy that is seriously threatened by a nation with practically no naval experience or tradition."

That was a reference to Russia's growing submarine fleet.

Senators Case and Jackson debated the matter on an NBC-TV program. Case said sharp rivalry between the armed services keeps them on their toes and thus helps the defense effort. But Jackson said the Defense Department has not made basic decisions about missions, adding: "I think quite clearly that what is happening is that these problems are being passed up to Congress."

INSIDE HOLLYWOOD

With Bob Thomas
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—If the trend continues, graduates of the Actor's Studio may prove as sought-after as fledgling engineers.

BOB THOMAS

You know how the big corporations send talent scouts to universities in hopes of enlisting engineering graduates? I have visions of the same thing happening at the Actor's Studio—representatives from the studios and networks standing outside the place, waiting to grab hopefuls as they emerge.

It hasn't happened yet, but it could. After all, the New York acting school has produced such notable names as Marlon Brando, the late James Dean, Rod Steiger, Paul Newman, Eva Marie Saint, Julie Harris, Jo Van Fleet and provided training for such earnest learners as Marilyn Monroe and Shelley

Winters. The studio's latest contribution to Hollywood is a blonde beauty named Elaine Aiken, who is already finishing up her first starring role in "The Lonely Man."

Now she has rented a home high atop the Hollywood hills and Paramount is predicting big things for her film career.

To gaze at Elaine with her high cheek bones and blonde hair, you'd never guess that her blood was pure Spanish. She was born Elena Angela Arizmede seven months after her parents had arrived in New York from Spain.

She grew up and went to high school in Queens. She spoke nothing but Spanish until she was 8 years old.

She has worked at everything from running elevators in the Empire State Building to conducting a charm school at 17 in a Fifth Avenue salon. She and a boy friend ran a publicity office with the State of New York as one of their clients.
