

Amity Doubles Supply of Water

Springs Added To Resources By Engineers

Torrid Weather Hits Reserves at Dallas

AMITY—Assurance of an ample supply of spring water became a reality this week when Water Commissioner Cliff Wolf, turned a valve and into the main line of the city water main that doubled the flow of spring water, the main source of Amity's water supply.

The enlarging of the Matthews spring, to catch spring water that previously was beyond the range of city leased property, was a project started nearly two years ago by the city council, under the chairmanship of J. C. Johnson, who started negotiations with Auer Matthews, on whose property the springs are located.

State engineers were called in for consultation, right of way to the site was arranged for, and legal aspects to protect the Matthews and the city of Amity were studied. Purchase of digging equipment ordered at a special city council meeting in June, completed the arrangements. The new catch basin was excavated, cement retaining walls were set up and a corrugated iron building erected over the water supply.

The springs which feed this basin are the Matthews spring and the Breeder springs. From the basin the water flows into a main line along the Hopewell highway, west into Amity. When pressure is good this feeds into lateral pipes on either side of the highway. At the city center this flow is met in the summer, by water from the two city wells pumped into a line moving east, the combined spring and well water in pressure ratio then going into the reservoir.

The reservoir has a quarter of a million gallons capacity. The pressure of water flow from the springs determines whether reservoir or spring water is heaviest in ratio for city users.

Solons Break Deadlock on Housing Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—A congressional deadlock on public housing was broken Saturday when a compromise bill holding new construction to 25,000 units a year for the next two years was cleared for House action.

The compromise was sent to the floor by the House Rules Committee under what chairman Howard Smith (D-Va) described as "the tightest gag rule that could be devised."

The House will be given an opportunity to consider the matter on a "take it or leave it" basis with no opportunity for amendment.

Before the committee acted to break the housing logjam it spelled out the terms under which it would act.

This included an open understanding with Rep. Wolcott (R-Mich), chief foe of the measure, that the Senate also would have to accept the House provisions of nothing.

Wolcott assured the rules group that if the Senate "loaded up" the public housing section of any bill passed by the House he would invoke procedure which would throw it back into the rules committee to prevent it going into conference.

Such action at the very tail end of the session would almost certainly mean its death.

Ex-Con Caught In K.F. Case

KLAMATH Falls (UP)—A 21-year-old ex-convict who lead police on a 90-mile-an-hour chase for 10 miles was arrested by state last night near Oleno, Ore.

John Francis Jennings began his wild run from the police in a residential area of Klamath Falls, took the highway to Oleno, about eight miles southwest of Klamath Falls, where he ran a roadblock. Later he was stalled by a freight train at a railroad crossing and veered off into a dead-end road where he was arrested by police.

Jennings was released from the federal prison at McNeil Island last November. Previous to that he had served time in prison at El Reno, Oklahoma.

Whistler Said Cruel to Wife

DALLAS (AP)—Mrs. W. L. Blackerby won a divorce because she said her husband whistled all night on their honeymoon.

"Was it a sort of wolf whistle?" asked Dist. Judge James K. Everts. "A wolf whistle might not have been out of order on a honeymoon."

Mrs. Blackerby replied: "It was just plain whistling. He would sit in the rocking chair by the bed and whistle. And sing, too. No particular tune."

She said that her husband apparently wanted to aggravate her because of a minor argument.

"Cruel treatment indeed," observed Judge Everts. "Divorce granted."

Power Is Big NW Business, Pearl Asserts

IONE, Wash. (AP)—"Power business is the big business of the Pacific Northwest" and it will take a tremendous investment to keep it operating efficiently, the head of the Bonneville Power Administration said Saturday at the dedication of Box Canyon Dam.

"Power needs of the Pacific Northwest over the next 20 years will require an estimated capital investment of 7 billion dollars," said Dr. William A. Pearl.

"It is obvious that the federal government alone cannot assume this staggering responsibility. Therefore, projects such as Box Canyon are particularly important in seeking an answer to our poor development problems."

Box Canyon was built by the Bend Oreille County Public Utility District on the Bend Oreille River here where it flows north toward Canada. The 17 million dollar dam, with the whole project to cost an estimated 26 million dollars, will produce about 69,000 kilowatts of power.

The dam will form a 55-mile reservoir stretching upstream, south into Washington.

Construction, begun in 1952, has been marked by court controversy. A complicated suit between the PUD and original contractors for damages totaling more than 8 1/2 million dollars, is still being heard.

Clarence C. Dill, former U. S. senator from Washington and now counsel for the PUD, said a state supreme court decision on Box Canyon had paved the way for other PUDs to participate in the power development of the Pacific Northwest.

The state high court ruled in 1952 that the PUD could issue bonds to pay for the dam and could sell surplus power outside the county.

PUD dams in Washington now produce about 3 million kilowatts, Dill said, equal to six Bonneville dams.

Other dedication events at this small northeastern Washington town will include dances, dinners, boat races, tours and special church services.

Recess Taken In Nunn Trial

MEDFORD (AP)—The first degree murder trial of Billy Junior Nunn was in recess Saturday, but the weekend was reported used by court officials to hear purported confessions, including a tape recording.

Circuit Judge Hebert K. Hanna Friday cleared the courtroom Friday for the start of the tape recording. The jury was not to hear it without his prior approval.

Nunn is charged with strangling Alvin William Eacret, 14, after a sexual assault against the boy at Tubbs Springs in Jackson County. Jury selection occupied most of the first week of the trial and the first witness was called Friday.

Furrier Found Guilty in Fake Store Robbery

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Convicted of staging a fake robbery at his Beverly Hills fur store and filing a false insurance claim for $248,000, Albert Teitelbaum has been ordered to appear July 30 for sentence and probation hearing. His lawyer, Isaac Pacht, will argue a motion for a new trial at that time.

A jury convicted Teitelbaum late yesterday after deliberations since Thursday morning.

The 42-year-old Teitelbaum maintained that four gunmen bound him and an employee, Al Stan, and escaped with 277 fur pieces last Dec. 27. Police branded the story a hoax and claimed the furs never left the store.

The Los Angeles County grand jury indicted Teitelbaum March 7. Sinner Mario Lanza was among witnesses who testified for the furrier. Among other witnesses for Teitelbaum were actresses Joan Crawford and Joan Caulfield; Dore Schary and columnist Louella O. Parsons.

Teitelbaum is liable to imprisonment of one to 10 years on the fake robbery charge and 1 to 3 years on the insurance claim count. He is at liberty on $5,000 bond.

Seaton Halts Land Leasing For Crop Use

EMERGENCY PRESS CENTER, Operation Alert (AP)—Secretary of the Interior Seaton announced Saturday no more federal land would be leased for growing of price-supported crops which are in surplus supply.

The order does not affect the 100,000 acres already under lease for agricultural purposes.

Seaton's action follows a May 21 directive by President Eisenhower that leasing of federal land should be "consistent with the administration's program to reduce price-depressing surpluses and to bring agricultural production into line with markets."

Bridges Denies Split With Ike on Hoffman

'Healthy Thing to Have Difference of Opinion'

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Bridges (R-NH) said today "it's a healthy thing to have an honest difference of opinion, even with President Eisenhower."

He said this in discussing with a newsman his opposition to Eisenhower's nomination of Paul G. Hoffman as an American delegate to the United Nations.

Bridges, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, was one of 16 Republicans who voted "no" yesterday when the Senate confirmed Hoffman's appointment. The vote was 64-22. Twenty-seven Republicans and 57 Democrats supported the nomination.

Several of the Republican senators who spoke against Hoffman's confirmation made it clear they felt he was soft on communism.

The New Hampshire senator denied that any serious break with Eisenhower was involved in the sizable GOP Senate opposition to the man credited with having had much to do with Eisenhower's decision to seek the presidency in 1952.

"This administration has sent several hundred major appointments to the Senate for confirmation and I have voted for all but three of them," Bridges said in an interview. "That makes me a 99.99 per cent supporter of Eisenhower and that's a pretty good record."

"It is a healthy thing to have an honest difference of opinion, even with the President. I shall continue to support practically all of his nominations but I reserve the right to oppose any I do not think should be confirmed."

Bridges said he had opposed the nomination of Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen as ambassador to Russia, and Robert Bowie as assistant secretary of state. Both Bohlen and Bowie were confirmed.

Bridges told the Senate yesterday Hoffman had associated with "questionable characters" and had made statements susceptible to "double interpretations" and had criticized congressional investigations into communism and subversion.

Chairman Schoepel (Kan) of the Republican senatorial campaign committee and three senators seeking re-election this year joined Bridges and others in opposing Hoffman. The three are Butler of Maryland, Dirksen of Illinois and Young of North Dakota. Sen. Welker (Idaho), also a re-election candidate, was "paired" in opposition to the nomination.

Dirksen, who is campaigning as a staunch Eisenhower supporter, said in a separate interview he voted against Hoffman for "personal reasons" that he didn't want to outline publicly.

The narrower channel was not able to handle the runoff from the sudden cloudburst that broke over the surrounding hills and the town's business section was washed away, they said.

Planes Collide On Takeoff, 4 Die in Illinois

GRANITE CITY, Ill. (AP)—Two small planes that took off from separate but converging runways at Lakeside Airport collided last night, killing four persons, including two St. Louis business executives.

The victims were Arthur J. Brauer, president of the Brauer Brothers Shoe Co., his daughter, Becky, 15, Albert Johnson, 41, chief engineer of the Continental Boiler Co., and his wife.

The two planes collided at an altitude of about 150 feet. "They were so close I couldn't tell whether either pilot tried to avoid a collision," said Jerry Adams, 18, a mechanic at the airport. "They more or less tore apart when they collided."
