

Langlie Sets Peace, Prosperity, Progress Keynote

Demos Hit for Corrupt, Split Party Record

Knowland Points Out 3 Wars Waged by Opposition

By WARREN ROGERS JR.
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Gov. Arthur B. Langlie of Washington has set the keynote of the Republican National Convention: "Peace, prosperity and progress."

Langlie, giving the convention's stemwinding speech late yesterday, told delegates:

"We are here to pledge to the American people four more years of honest, efficient administration . . . four more years of our crusade for a finer America in a better world under the competent, steadfast, forthright leadership of Dwight D. Eisenhower."

Langlie denounced the Democrats as corrupt and divided. He warmly praised the Republicans as bringers of "peace, prosperity and progress."

The 56-year-old governor, who is running for the U.S. Senate in Washington against Democratic Sen. Warren Magnuson, was presented by Sen. William F. Knowland of California, who also lambasted the Democrats.

In the 48 years he has lived, Knowland said, there has been peace under five Republican presidents and war under three Democrats.

Both Langlie and Knowland lit into the Democratic keynoter at Chicago last week — Gov. Frank G. Clement of Tennessee.

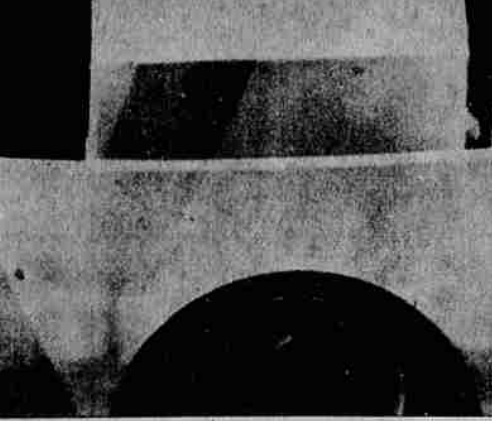

Obviously referring to Clement's hot brand of oratory, Langlie said the GOP's job is to give the people leadership "not to give 'em hell." Langlie drew a big laugh when he imitated Clement's style at the outset of his talk "How long, O America, will we keep our Republican administration in Washington?"

Then he replied to the question with great vigor and seriousness: "The American people will, I believe, and I hope, throw the Republicans out of office the day when, if ever, they copy the Democrats and put the party first and America second."

Knowland praised Vice President Nixon, with whom he had been at odds politically until recently, and Secretary of State Dulles, with whom he has often disagreed. He called Nixon an able assistant to President Eisenhower. He called Dulles "great."

In giving what he called a "factual account of our current stewardship," Knowland claimed the Republicans under Eisenhower have ended the Korean War, halted wage-price controls, balanced the budget, cut taxes, extended Social Security, "curtailed centralization of power in Washington," increased bipartisan consultation on foreign policy, emphasized unity among labor and farm-city elements and "rectified the New Deal usurpation" of territory he said rightfully belongs to the states.

Knight Hosts Republicans At Big Party

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Republicans went partying last night and forgot their few differences in a swirl of evening dress, music, champagne and crab newburg.

White-gloved waiters met guests at the door with a glass of champagne—California made, of course—when Gov. and Mrs. Goodwin J. Knight entertained some 8,000 Republicans here for their national convention.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon shook hands with presential aid Harold E. Stassen, the man who wants to replace Nixon on the GOP ticket with Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts. Herter was there too.

A life-sized elephant made of fresh carysanthemums revolved on a stand in the middle of the dance floor at Civic Auditorium.

Opera star Helen Traubel sang "I Could Have Danced All Night." Comedians cavorted around the stage. Dancers tapped their way across it.

Light Vote Due In Wyo. Today

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—A light vote was forecast today in Wyoming's primary election. The way race for the Democratic nomination for Congress.

The incumbent, Rep. Keith Thomson, is unopposed in the GOP primary.

Seeking the Democratic nomination are Jerry A. O'Callaghan, University of Wyoming professor; State Sen. A. M. Downey, 56-year-old Glendo rancher-machinist; Mrs. Dora Belle Harris, 66-year-old grandmother who barricaded a county road for nearly two years to protest a right-of-way award; and George W. K., bearded artist model.

Delegates Roar They're Happy And That About Closes Debate

By SAUL PETT
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Republican National Convention opened yesterday with a steal from Ted Lewis.

"Is everyone happy?" boomed National Chairman Leonard Hall from the speaker's platform. "Yes," the audience roared. "That about concluded debate for the day."

Mayor George Christopher welcomed the delegates to San Francisco. Gov. Goodwin Knight welcomed them to California. Then came a parade of 20 Republican congressional candidates. They moved in and out briskly, each with two minutes of denunciation of Democrats. The evening was no less exciting.

Actor Wendell Corey was master of ceremonies. He introduced the music and the flag demonstrations and then, with a flourish, as though the crowd had never met him before, he announced, "Ladies and gentlemen, the chairman of the Republican National Committee — Leonard W. Hall."

Big, bald Hall came down the ramp, beaming. As he spoke, he became an interesting study in self-confidence. He talked easily, almost languidly, with his hands in the pockets of his television-blue suit. It was a gentle sales talk. No sweat, no strain.

He spoke of the greatness of President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon, whose pictures, each 10 by 20 feet, hung from one end of the hall. There are no other pictures there.

"There is nothing we need say about Adlai Stevenson that Kefauver hasn't already said," Hall said to laughing approval. "There is nothing that we need say about the Stevenson-Kefauver ticket that Harry Truman hasn't already said."

A little later, Hall said this is a "free and open convention." Gov. Arthur Langlie of Washington, as keynote speaker, was an interesting contrast to Gov. Frank G. Clement of Tennessee, the Democratic keynoter. In effect, it was like the difference between warm ovaline and corn liquor.

Langlie got his share of applause but he didn't set the hall on fire. He used none of the thunder and oratorical calisthenics displayed by Clement. Langlie was no spell-binder. He was more like a high school history teacher, earnest, neat, orderly.

Actress Irene Dunne read "The President's prayer." At a signal from Murphy, the big organ at the other end of the hall began "America, the Beautiful" and rolled up a great crescendo as Miss Dunne finished.

Hall entertained a motion to adjourn and it was so moved.

Ike to Arrive In S.F. at 6:30 This Evening

Big Welcome Reception Planned for Party At Airport

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower files to San Francisco today to confer with delegates to the Republican National Convention and accept nomination for a second term.

All signs pointed to convention selection of Vice President Nixon as Eisenhower's running mate again. But there still was no public word from the White House as to what the president's role may be in filling the No. 2 spot.

Nomination of Eisenhower, probably by acclamation, and of his running mate is the convention business for tomorrow. On Thursday Eisenhower and the vice presidential nominee will make acceptance addresses.

The President's plane is scheduled to arrive at San Francisco's International Airport at 6:30 p.m. after a nonstop flight from the capital. A big, welcoming reception is planned.

Accompanying him are Mrs. Eisenhower; their son and daughter-in-law, Army Maj. and Mrs. John Eisenhower; the White House physician, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder; press secretary James C. Hagerty; and a small White House staff.

As for the vice presidential situation, Hagerty late yesterday caught a fresh barrage of questions from newsmen trying to find out whether Eisenhower may tell the delegates they are free to choose a running mate, or (2) submit a list of candidates acceptable to him.

To all of those inquiries Hagerty replied: "I don't know." Then he added:

"Let's put it this way: Am I stalling? Yes.

"Do I know what is going to happen when we get to San Francisco? No, I'll wait and see."

Eisenhower divided his time yesterday afternoon between watching the opening session of the GOP convention on television and putting in more work on the acceptance speech he will make Thursday.

Immediately after delivering that address Eisenhower will go to the Cypress Point Club, about 100 miles south of San Francisco, for three or four days of golf.

Ike Invites Key Convention Delegations to Call on Him

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—President Eisenhower comes to town today to put his personal touch on a Republican convention geared to renominate him and Vice President Nixon.

In advance of his scheduled arrival late in the day, leaders of key state delegations reported they had received telephoned invitations from the White House to call on him.

Some said they felt certain there would be no discussion of Harold E. Stassen's languishing campaign to dump Nixon from the ticket.

In fact, a surge of Nixon strength among delegates made it appear that the time had passed when the vice president could be sidetracked by anything other than direct presidential word that Eisenhower didn't want him.

No one expected that Eisenhower had said he would be delighted to have Nixon on any ticket with him but has not excluded the possibility that he might be satisfied with another candidate.

Nixon's strategists said they had completed a check of delegations which indicated that even if Eisenhower should say that some others are likewise acceptable to him, the vice president would win renomination hands down.

One by one the then named as possibilities by Stassen took themselves out of the picture. Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin of Maryland said he won't let his name be presented to the convention.

While Gov. Goodwin J. Knight of California has not categorically eliminated himself, Sen. William F. Knowland, the Senate's minority leader, predicted California will place its 70 votes squarely behind Nixon at a caucus today.

Several others, including Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts, said their names won't be placed in nomination. Originally Stassen picked Herter as his top prospect, but Herter was selected to put Nixon's name in nomination tomorrow. Later Stassen named others he said had more political pulling power than Nixon.

Stassen, on leave as Eisenhower's disarmament assistant, continued to insist he had a 50-50 chance to replace Nixon. He said delegates were hearing from the home folks.

If they were, many leaders said the messages must be in favor of Nixon—the mention of whose name brought lusty cheering at yesterday's opening convention sessions.

Gov. Arthur B. Langlie of Washington, the convention keynoter, reaffirmed his support of Nixon. Langlie called on the Republicans in his speech to unite for "four more years of our crusade for a finer America."

Eisenhower's decision to arrive here a day earlier than originally scheduled was generally accepted by convention leaders as evidence of his belief in his physical fitness to take command of a new GOP "crusade"—his word for the 1952 campaign.

Eisenhower's appearance here is calculated to afford a chance to meet with him to some delegates who otherwise would see him only when he makes his acceptance speech at Thursday night's closing session.

Reports that Eisenhower would hold open house for possible rivals of Nixon were discounted on the ground that all of these persons proposed by Stassen already have had clear evidence that any move to stick their heads up against
