Mills Selected As CD Deputy

Robert Mills, Salem's new fire chief, was appointed deputy for fire for Marion county civil defense, according to an announcement today by Director Wallace S. Wharton.

As in taking over the Salem fire department, Chief Mills succeeds Chief E. L. Smith as the county civil defense fire deputy. Chief Smith has been fire deputy since August, 1952, and has taken an active part in developing the mutual aid system and the fire radio network, which knits the Salem department and the 22 rural fire protection district departments into what is in effect a county-wide fire fighting organization.

At the recent meeting of the Marion County Fire Fighters association the appointment of Chief Mills to succeed Smith in the county civil defense post was unanimously ratified.

August Birth Rate Highest Of This Year

Births in Marion county in August totaled 307, the highest number in any single month this year, Dr. W. J. Stone, county health officer reported at the Marion county health board meeting Thursday.

Dr. Stone said that the total for the year, 1,760, is still trailing the 1,834 recorded in the first eight months of 1955.

August deaths reported totaled 70, bringing the total thus far to 604 as compared with 556 at the same time last year.

Heart disease still leads in cause of death, the 32 for August bringing the total since the first of the year to 299. Through August in 1955 the heart disease caused deaths totaled 201. Stone reported apoplexy accounted for 96 deaths in the county this year and cancer 72. This count was reversed in 1955 when cancer took 105 lives and apoplexy 70 in the first eight months of 1955.

Seven cases of polio have been reported so far this year compared with 18 at the same time a year ago. Dr. Stone reported, seven cases of mumps in August, nine ringworm; five streptococci sore throats, three polio, two whooping cough, two hepatitis, and one each of German measles, scarlet fever and tuberculosis.

In addition, three deaths were caused by a case of pneumonia and two cases of bronchial ailments during the month.

Mrs. Ann Clark and Mrs. P. H. Brydon were designated by County Judge Rex Hartley, to assist Mrs. Bernice Yearly, director of nurses, on plans for an open house at the new county health building near Salem General hospital.

Linn Escapace Appeal Argued In High Court

Arguments were heard by the Oregon Supreme court Thursday on an appeal of James A. Patton, 39, Long Beach, Calif., one of four prisoners who escaped from the Linn county jail, September 7.

Patton, Earl Junior Bonney, 31, Silverton and Ernest Loring Gibson, 29, Coos Bay, are still at large while the body of the fourth man, Dan Ott, 35, a transient, was found floating in the Willamette river Thursday.

Lawrence Morley, Lebanon, defending Patton made no mention of the escape since this was not considered pertinent to the issue before the court.

Morley contended that his client was not given a fair trial in Linn county and charged that Circuit Judge Victor Oliver made improper suggestions or interferences to the jury in the February trial. Morley was convicted of participating in a holdup of an Albany market last October.

Morley maintained his innocence at the trial but two market employees positively identified him. The conviction means a possible life sentence for Patton under the habitual criminal act.

Norblad Says Push-Button Warfare Near

The day of push-button warfare is very close to being a reality, Congressman Walter Norblad declared at the state convention of County Assessors Thursday in Newport.

"Development in the field of guided missiles by all three services are greater than most people realize," Norblad said. "I for one, concur in the thinking of certain members of the joint chiefs-of-staff that in the near future we can materially reduce the large numbers of men in our defense establishments," Norblad said.

Norblad said that he didn't think the day is too far off when the modern jet airplane will be placed in a secondary role as a weapon either of defense or offense.

Norblad is one of the ranking members of the house armed services committee.

Night Driving Brings Hazard

Increased hours of darkness and return of fog and rain to the weather scene were listed today as possible traffic trouble-makers in the weeks ahead.

Night driving is about three times more deadly than daytime travel, despite the fact that more miles are driven during the day, the Oregon Traffic Safety commission noted.

This is true, safety officials said, because some drivers overlook the fact that they cannot see as clearly at night and drive at speeds which do not permit a stop within the range of their headlights.

Drivers can do little to remove dangers presented by fog, but in daylight they can do themselves a favor by using full headlights on low beam when fog sets in. This gives oncoming drivers a better opportunity to see them. Some drivers persist in driving with parking lights in fog, a sometimes fatal error, the Commission reports.
