

THE WEATHER

CLOUDY and slightly cooler, showers tonight; few scattered showers and partial clearing Thursday. Low tonight, 45; high Thursday, 68.

Yankees Win Series by Crushing Brooklyn, 9-0

Adlai Rally Draws Demos to Portland

Morse Assist Due in Talk Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Adlai Stevenson was due in Portland Wednesday for a night rally in the public auditorium, probably the Democratic presidential nominee's last visit to Oregon during the campaign.

Democrats arranged a mass greeting for Stevenson arriving at the airport from Seattle in the afternoon. They said the motorcade taking him to a downtown hotel included 100 cars from Gresham, 15 from Klamath Falls, 25 from Salem and many from Portland and other parts of Oregon.

Plea for Morse Due
Stevenson was expected to make a strong plea in his 7:30 speech for support of Democratic Sen. Wayne Morse, who bid for reelection is being strongly contested by Douglas McKay, who quit as Interior Secretary to make his campaign.

A major issue in the Morse-McKay campaign was highlighted Tuesday when the U. S. Court of Appeals upheld a Federal Power Commission license to the Idaho Power Co. for three small dams in the Hells Canyon reach of the Snake River.

McKay, in the cabinet, withdrew the Interior Department's opposition to Idaho Power's plan. Morse and other Democrats have strongly criticized that action. They favor federal construction of a single high dam in Hells Canyon, on the Oregon-Idaho border.

McKay was pleased with the appeals court ruling. He said, "The court's decision should make it clear to the people of Oregon, once and for all, that the Hells Canyon matter was decided in accordance with the law, and that Morse's intemperate speeches are merely defiance of the orderly processes of the law for his own selfish political advantage."

(Continued on Page 5, Column 3)

Vets Schedule Parade, Open House Nov. 12

Veterans Day in Salem will be observed Nov. 12 with a parade, program, open house dance, it was decided at a meeting of several veterans organizations Tuesday night.

The veterans decided to celebrate their "day" on the 12th since Armistice day falls on Sunday this year. The Salem groups are the only ones in the valley which will do this.

The day will begin early in the morning with a breakfast at the Legion hall given by Capital Post No. 9. There will also be open house there all day with a dance in the evening.

The parade will organize on the Capitol mall at 9:45 a.m. and will begin at 10:30. After the parade a program will be held at the court house. In case of rain the program will be in the armory. Veterans of World War I will have charge. Chairmen for the day, who were appointed at the meeting at the court house Tuesday night, include: Fred Birch, chairman; Reginald Miller, general co-chairman; Harriet Belcher, contact chairman for women's groups; Frank Young, program; Mel Clemens, parade; Reginald Rees, bands; William McKinley, transportation; R. J. Baldwin, military; Morris Keller, Boy Scouts; Charles Stannett, public address system and M.C.; Alvin Armstrong, Legion open house; Richard Spencer, Spanish War veterans color guard; R. J. Baldwin, publicity.

Ike Says Democrats Stand for Inflation

Pittsburgh Crowd One of Biggest Of Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower accused the Democrats last night of practicing "political irresponsibility at its worst" and said they stand for inflation and a centralized federal government.

For his own administration he claimed "almost four years of clear accomplishments." He received a roaring ovation from a packed house in Pittsburgh's Hunt Armory who heard in person his address, carried nationwide by radio and television.

Ear-Splitting Ovation
That traditionally Democratic city gave him an ear-splitting ovation.

Demos in Red, GOP Balance Over $500,000

Parties Give Financial Report to Senate Committee

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Republicans reported Wednesday they had more than a half million dollars in their treasury on Oct. 1. The Democrats said they were almost $106,000 in the red.

The national committees of the two parties gave the figures to the Senate Elections subcommittee in response to a questionnaire. The Senate group has been keeping a running tab on campaign contributions and spending.

For the month of September, the Democratic committee reported receipts more than twice those of the Republicans. The Democrats also spent more.

The figures:
Democrats—September receipts $382,047 and expenditures $692,808. Bank balance at month's end $14,894 and unpaid bills amounting to $120,665. The Democratic committee began the month with a balance of about $35,000.

Republicans—September receipts $244,587 and expenditures $368,923. Bank balance at month's end $540,289 and unpaid bills amounting to $24,000. The Republican committee began the month with a balance of over $664,625.

.34-Inch Rain Bathes Salem

The predicted rain came for the valley areas late Tuesday and by 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, more than a third of an inch of precipitation was measured for Salem. The fall amounted to .34 of an inch.

Outlook is for more cloudy skies and showers tonight and Thursday, although some clearing is due tomorrow afternoon.

The rainfall was the first measurable precipitation for October here, and the normal fall to this date is .78 of an inch.

TERRAZZANO, Italy (AP)—Police shooting a village school Wednesday night and liberated 95 children and 4 teachers held prisoner for ransom by two berserk brothers. None of those in the school was harmed.

Demos Go Into Lead In Alaska

Ahead in All 3 Top Races; Sweeping Legislature

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—Alaska's "weather-vane" election showed increasing signs of good weather for the Democrats today as partial returns trickled in from all of the sprawling territory's 271 precincts.

Alaskans balloted Tuesday for two U. S. senators and one representative under an Alaska-Tennessee plan which would send their choices to Washington to lobby for statehood.

Democrats were leading in all three races. Their candidate for the territory's non-voting delegate-to-congress post had piled up a 2-1 lead over his Republican opponent, and Democrats were leading in 21 out of 24 contests for House seats in the Territorial Legislature and in 6 out of 9 Territorial Senate races.

Former governor Ernest Gruening, a Democrat, held a 5,806 to 2,510 lead over Republican John Butrovich of Fairbanks for one "Senate" seat.

In the other "senatorial" contest, Democrat William Egan of Valdez had 6,337 votes to 4,755 for Robert Atwood, Anchorage newspaper publisher and GOP candidate.

Democrat Ralph Rivers of Fairbanks led Charles Burdick, Juneau Republican, 6,423 to 4,670 for the unofficial seat in the House of Representatives.

And Democratic incumbent E. L. Bartlett topped Republican Byron Gilliam of Anchorage, 7,908 to 3,975, in the congressional delegate battle.

Judge Upholds Church's Right Of Solicitation

PORTLAND (AP)—House-locks solicitation by religious groups is part of "the free exercise of religious liberty" and may not be prohibited by city ordinance, a circuit judge held Tuesday.

Judge Alfred T. Sulmonetti ruled in favor of an elder of the Seventh Day Adventist Church in nearby Gresham in ordering the community to stop using its so-called Green River ordinance to restrict solicitation by religious organizations and the selling of church literature.

Sulmonetti said such a restriction takes away religious freedom guaranteed by the federal and state constitutions. He noted that courts have upheld the ordinance when applied to commercial solicitation, but added:

"The giving, selling and distributing of religious literature, when done as part of the method of spreading the distributor's religious beliefs, is an exercise of religion within the meaning of the first amendment."

The test case here stemmed from the prearranged arrest last November of C. Lloyd Wyman, then assistant pastor of the Gresham church. He was arrested at the home of J. D. McMillan, Gresham police chief, and later convicted in municipal court of illegal soliciting. Filing of a "friendly" suit followed.

Weather Details

Maximum yesterday, 50; minimum today, 42. Total precipitation today, .34; for month, .34 normal, 1.31; season precipitation, 1.31; normal, 2.12. Rain here 1.13 feet. (Report by U. S. Weather Bureau.)

The gunmen also fired on three parents—two men and a woman—who entered the school in an attempt to free their children before the police arrived.

The woman, Mrs. Irene Lingieri, was wounded in one leg before she could reach her son, Gianni. Terrazzano, a village of less than 1,000 population, lies eight miles north of Milan.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of Election Held on September 24 to Create a Water District in the Keizer Area is Challenged in a Petition Filed with the County Court Today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem Attorney and a Resident of the District.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

The proposed district lies north of the Salem city limits and between the Oregon Electric tracks and the Willamette river. The election resulted in a 439-374 vote in favor of the district.

Laird attached to his petition a long list of property owners in the area who protested the formation of the district and all of whom, he said, are willing to testify in support of his allegations.

Laird asked the court to hold a hearing on his charges before the official vote is canvassed. The court referred the petition to the district attorney's office for advice before taking any action.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of an election held on September 24 to create a water district in the Keizer area is challenged in a petition filed with the county court today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem attorney and a resident of the district.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

The proposed district lies north of the Salem city limits and between the Oregon Electric tracks and the Willamette river. The election resulted in a 439-374 vote in favor of the district.

Laird attached to his petition a long list of property owners in the area who protested the formation of the district and all of whom, he said, are willing to testify in support of his allegations.

Laird asked the court to hold a hearing on his charges before the official vote is canvassed. The court referred the petition to the district attorney's office for advice before taking any action.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of an election held on September 24 to create a water district in the Keizer area is challenged in a petition filed with the county court today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem attorney and a resident of the district.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of Election Held on September 24 to Create a Water District in the Keizer Area is Challenged in a Petition Filed with the County Court Today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem Attorney and a Resident of the District.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

The proposed district lies north of the Salem city limits and between the Oregon Electric tracks and the Willamette river. The election resulted in a 439-374 vote in favor of the district.

Laird attached to his petition a long list of property owners in the area who protested the formation of the district and all of whom, he said, are willing to testify in support of his allegations.

Laird asked the court to hold a hearing on his charges before the official vote is canvassed. The court referred the petition to the district attorney's office for advice before taking any action.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of an election held on September 24 to create a water district in the Keizer area is challenged in a petition filed with the county court today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem attorney and a resident of the district.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

The proposed district lies north of the Salem city limits and between the Oregon Electric tracks and the Willamette river. The election resulted in a 439-374 vote in favor of the district.

Laird attached to his petition a long list of property owners in the area who protested the formation of the district and all of whom, he said, are willing to testify in support of his allegations.

Laird asked the court to hold a hearing on his charges before the official vote is canvassed. The court referred the petition to the district attorney's office for advice before taking any action.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of an election held on September 24 to create a water district in the Keizer area is challenged in a petition filed with the county court today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem attorney and a resident of the district.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of Election Held on September 24 to Create a Water District in the Keizer Area is Challenged in a Petition Filed with the County Court Today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem Attorney and a Resident of the District.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

The proposed district lies north of the Salem city limits and between the Oregon Electric tracks and the Willamette river. The election resulted in a 439-374 vote in favor of the district.

Laird attached to his petition a long list of property owners in the area who protested the formation of the district and all of whom, he said, are willing to testify in support of his allegations.

Laird asked the court to hold a hearing on his charges before the official vote is canvassed. The court referred the petition to the district attorney's office for advice before taking any action.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of an election held on September 24 to create a water district in the Keizer area is challenged in a petition filed with the county court today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem attorney and a resident of the district.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

The proposed district lies north of the Salem city limits and between the Oregon Electric tracks and the Willamette river. The election resulted in a 439-374 vote in favor of the district.

Laird attached to his petition a long list of property owners in the area who protested the formation of the district and all of whom, he said, are willing to testify in support of his allegations.

Laird asked the court to hold a hearing on his charges before the official vote is canvassed. The court referred the petition to the district attorney's office for advice before taking any action.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of an election held on September 24 to create a water district in the Keizer area is challenged in a petition filed with the county court today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem attorney and a resident of the district.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of Election Held on September 24 to Create a Water District in the Keizer Area is Challenged in a Petition Filed with the County Court Today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem Attorney and a Resident of the District.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

The proposed district lies north of the Salem city limits and between the Oregon Electric tracks and the Willamette river. The election resulted in a 439-374 vote in favor of the district.

Laird attached to his petition a long list of property owners in the area who protested the formation of the district and all of whom, he said, are willing to testify in support of his allegations.

Laird asked the court to hold a hearing on his charges before the official vote is canvassed. The court referred the petition to the district attorney's office for advice before taking any action.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of an election held on September 24 to create a water district in the Keizer area is challenged in a petition filed with the county court today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem attorney and a resident of the district.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

The proposed district lies north of the Salem city limits and between the Oregon Electric tracks and the Willamette river. The election resulted in a 439-374 vote in favor of the district.

Laird attached to his petition a long list of property owners in the area who protested the formation of the district and all of whom, he said, are willing to testify in support of his allegations.

Laird asked the court to hold a hearing on his charges before the official vote is canvassed. The court referred the petition to the district attorney's office for advice before taking any action.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of an election held on September 24 to create a water district in the Keizer area is challenged in a petition filed with the county court today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem attorney and a resident of the district.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of Election Held on September 24 to Create a Water District in the Keizer Area is Challenged in a Petition Filed with the County Court Today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem Attorney and a Resident of the District.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

The proposed district lies north of the Salem city limits and between the Oregon Electric tracks and the Willamette river. The election resulted in a 439-374 vote in favor of the district.

Laird attached to his petition a long list of property owners in the area who protested the formation of the district and all of whom, he said, are willing to testify in support of his allegations.

Laird asked the court to hold a hearing on his charges before the official vote is canvassed. The court referred the petition to the district attorney's office for advice before taking any action.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of an election held on September 24 to create a water district in the Keizer area is challenged in a petition filed with the county court today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem attorney and a resident of the district.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

The proposed district lies north of the Salem city limits and between the Oregon Electric tracks and the Willamette river. The election resulted in a 439-374 vote in favor of the district.

Laird attached to his petition a long list of property owners in the area who protested the formation of the district and all of whom, he said, are willing to testify in support of his allegations.

Laird asked the court to hold a hearing on his charges before the official vote is canvassed. The court referred the petition to the district attorney's office for advice before taking any action.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of an election held on September 24 to create a water district in the Keizer area is challenged in a petition filed with the county court today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem attorney and a resident of the district.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of Election Held on September 24 to Create a Water District in the Keizer Area is Challenged in a Petition Filed with the County Court Today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem Attorney and a Resident of the District.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

The proposed district lies north of the Salem city limits and between the Oregon Electric tracks and the Willamette river. The election resulted in a 439-374 vote in favor of the district.

Laird attached to his petition a long list of property owners in the area who protested the formation of the district and all of whom, he said, are willing to testify in support of his allegations.

Laird asked the court to hold a hearing on his charges before the official vote is canvassed. The court referred the petition to the district attorney's office for advice before taking any action.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of an election held on September 24 to create a water district in the Keizer area is challenged in a petition filed with the county court today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem attorney and a resident of the district.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

The proposed district lies north of the Salem city limits and between the Oregon Electric tracks and the Willamette river. The election resulted in a 439-374 vote in favor of the district.

Laird attached to his petition a long list of property owners in the area who protested the formation of the district and all of whom, he said, are willing to testify in support of his allegations.

Laird asked the court to hold a hearing on his charges before the official vote is canvassed. The court referred the petition to the district attorney's office for advice before taking any action.

Water District Vote Challenge Filed by Laird

Validity of an election held on September 24 to create a water district in the Keizer area is challenged in a petition filed with the county court today by Eugene E. Laird, Salem attorney and a resident of the district.

In his petition Laird charges that the election board permitted persons to vote who had not resided in the district for the required 90 days. He further charges that the board did not require voters to sign the poll books, which he claims the law requires to be done and that the board adjourned before the ballot count was completed.

Many areas in the proposed district, Laird points out, already have an adequate water supply whereas the formation of the district including their property will impose an additional tax burden upon them with no compensating benefits.

Here's How Yogi Belts World Series Final

Yogi Belts 2 Homers, Skowron 1 Kucks Hurls Tight 3-Hitter for Champs

BROOKLYN (AP)—The New York Yankees overwhelmed the Brooklyn Dodgers and Don Newcombe with a record-breaking home run assault Wednesday and won the World Series, 4 games to 3, with a 9-0 victory.

Yogi Berra hit two homers and Bill Skowron smashed a grand slam homer to back up superb 3-hit pitching by 23-year-old Johnny Kucks.

Yanks' 17th Crown
The Yankees thus duplicated Brooklyn's 1955 feat of winning a seven-game series after losing the first two games. It was the Yanks' 17th World Series victory in