Explain Need For Support Of Symphony

Unless Salem music lovers support the programs more generously this season concerts by the Portland Symphony Orchestra may be discontinued. Theodore Bloomfield, conductor of the Portland orchestra, warned in an address before the Salem Rotary club at the Marion hotel Wednesday noon.

Bloomfield said that ticket sales here to date are far short of the requirement to pay the cost of bringing these concerts to Salem. The first of three concerts scheduled for Salem this winter will be given here Tuesday night. Bloomfield urged his listeners to "tell your wife to tell her friends and tell your own friends," if this cultural treat is to be continued in the capital city.

Bloomfield went into detail in describing the manner in which a symphony concert season is set up. Discussion of the programs, he said, starts as early as October or November for the next season. Employment of soloists, he said, is a highly important consideration and depends largely upon the amount of money available for this purpose. Each concert, he explained, is preceded by from four to five rehearsals.

The Portland Symphony orchestra, previously limited to 68 members has now been increased to 77 with additional musicians coming from as far away as New York and Los Angeles. One number to be played during Tuesday night's concert in Salem will employ 80 instruments — the largest "and probably the loudest" symphony orchestra ever to perform in this city.

Much care, he said, is given to the preparation of the program to be presented in Salem because of the high cultural tone which the city enjoys.

Ticket sales pay only about one-half the cost of the concerts presented in Portland, the other one-half being provided by subscriptions to the Portland Symphony Society. The Portland concert season is being extended this year to 12 programs instead of the ten previously presented, he said.

Bird Display Slated Friday

The annual Bird Display, sponsored by the Salem All-Variety Bird club and the Capital Budgeter-Breeder's association will be held in the auditorium of the Meier & Frank store in Salem, from 12:15 to 9 p.m. Friday, October 12 and from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday, October 13.

Choice canaries, normal and rare parakeets, finches and other domesticated and foreign birds will be on display. Many of these birds are show birds or bred from show stock. Canaries include red factors, red persimmons, apricots, orange, cinnamon, citron yellow, white and Yorkshires and roller canaries in colors.

The general chairman of the display is Mrs. C. N. Quartier; Mrs. A. F. Beardsley and Dale N. Bever are assistant managers.

Hearing Against Livestock Yard Set Up by State

A hearing against a Salem livestock auction yard was postponed Wednesday by the state agriculture department at the request of the yard owner.

Earl Gillaspie, owner of the Gillaspie Livestock Auction yards, 1615 South 25th St., was charged with preventing an assistant state veterinarian from inspecting the firms records as well as certain animals in the yard.

The hearing will be held on Oct. 24.

Harrisburg Firm Wins Willamette River Job

Morse Brothers, Harrisburg, have been awarded a $1,960 contract by the Portland district, Corps of Engineers, for furnishing and placing asphaltic concrete on damaged portions of the revetment at Jacobs Bend location.

This location is on the Willamette river south of Corvallis. Work must be completed by Nov. 15.

Ladd and Bush Bank Will Get 'Face Lifting'

The long-gray Ladd & Bush bank building is getting a new coat of paint.

The building, constructed 87 years ago, is having its iron facing trimmed in charcoal, yellow and white.

Lee Charges Norblad Fails In Washington

Jason Lee, Democratic nominee for congress, charged Congressman Walter Norblad with failure to further the economic development of Oregon.

Lee made this and other charges against the congressman when speaking before the Salem Exchange club at the Marion hotel Wednesday.

"Norblad has succeeded in passing only two insignificant bits of legislation during his 10 years in office and is a lazy, do-nothing congressman," Lee said.

"What Oregon needs is a man in Washington who will fight hard for hydro-electric development and river and harbor projects," Lee continued.

Lee said Norblad was "asleep when it came to obtaining initial funds for dredging the mouth of the Columbia, the Warrenton Ship basin and the Tillamook Bay and Bar projects."

Juniors Gain Bridge Honors

Mrs. David Eason and Mrs. Myrtle Watson, junior players, posted a score of more than 65 per cent to win from 23 other teams in the weekly duplicate game of the Elks Bridge club.

Another pair of Juniors, Wallace Wilson and Val Sloper, finished third among the east-west teams. In the eight-week series, now at the halfway point, Walter M. Cline held the lead by a small margin over Mrs. Ward Graham and Ellis H. Jones. Points also were awarded Mrs. Jose Moritz, Mrs. Percy Miner and R. D. Hutchinson, all of Corvallis; Mrs. R. I. McKesson, Mrs. C. B. Benton, Mrs. E. E. Boring, Mrs. Elmer O. Berg, and Mr. and Mrs. Max Moore of Seio.

In the first October master point at the Elks club, honors were divided by Portland and Salem contestants. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Peterson, Mrs. L. O. Gandel, Marian Andrews, Mrs. Lucille Wheeler and Father Botzum were the winning visitors, while Mrs. Rupert L. Park, L. W. Miles, Mrs. Arthur L. Lewis, E. O. Berg, Jack Neilsen, Mrs. George Rein and Carl Ruder won points for the local club.

Next main event of the Elks Duplicate Bridge group will be master point Monday, October 15, followed by the charity party Friday, October 19, which will be open to all.
