Columbus Day Not Holiday

Christopher Columbus will be honored Friday by a day named after him. His discovery of America was not sufficiently important event to make a full-fledged holiday out of it, however, so city, county state and other employees will work as usual.

And, city police said, parking meters will be doing their regular duty. So, they advised shoppers and other downtown motorists, don't forget to pungle up that nickel—Columbus Day or not.

Plaque Given Oregon

Herbert Higgins, left, director for the Institute of traffic engineers, presented Gov. Elmo Smith with a plaque this week honoring Oregon's traffic engineering program. It was the third straight year Oregon has been recognized.

State Traffic Control Wins Third Plaque

Governor Elmo Smith and W. C. Williams, Chief Highway Engineer, were in Portland Tuesday to receive a plaque honoring Oregon's traffic engineering program. The plaque was presented by Herbert Higgins, district director for the Institute of Traffic Engineers, and marked the third consecutive year the Oregon department has been so recognized.

Oregon was one of only eight states in the nation earning the "certificate of merit" award for 1955. To be honored, the state must have an efficiency rate of 90 per cent or better in signing, traffic control, accident prevention and other traffic engineering aspects.

Also present at the meeting was J. Al Head, assistant state traffic engineer.

Earnings Up in '56
For Disabled Workers
The Oregon rehabilitation program in the year ended last June 30 helped 760 disabled Oregon residents, who had been averaging earnings of only $495 a week, to boost them to $53.13.

Gov. Smith made that report Wednesday in a talk in connection with national "Employ the Physically Handicapped Day."

He pointed out that disabled persons not having jobs cost the government in assistance payments, while those with jobs pay the government tax money.

Power Outage on Westside Reported

DALLAS (Special)—Power consumers between Dallas and West Salem were without electricity for 14 minutes Thursday morning because of a flashover on one of the lines near Independence.

The outage was caused by a fire built under one of the power lines by a county road crew, according to Harlin Rohrbough, manager of the Dallas office of the Pacific Power and Light Co.

Woman Facing Check Charge In Two Cities

A Portland woman is being held in Portland on bad check charges from both Multnomah and Marion counties, Salem police said Thursday.

Arlene June Curtis was arrested in Oregon City Wednesday on a vagrancy charge in connection with a Marion county charge of obtaining money by false pretenses. The charge involved a $75 bad check passed September 18 at a downtown Salem service station. The woman was also being sought in connection with a car taken from Post Auto Sales, 1105 South 12th St., Tuesday on a trial basis and not returned. The car was recovered in Gladstone by state police. No charges were filed in connection with it.

After her arrest in Oregon City, she was turned over to Portland authorities on a bad check charge there. A hold order has been placed on her on the Salem charge. Bail on the latter is $2,500.

KRNR TRANSFER OKAYED
WASHINGTON (U)—The Communications Commission Wednesday approved assignment of license for radio station KRNR, Roseburg, Ore., to James Doyle for $90,000.

Eisenhower

few weeks, was devoted to politics. Eisenhower did say, in response to a question, that he is willing to go anywhere and do anything to help bring about a peaceful solution of the Suez crisis. He said, however, it must be a peace with justice.

Eisenhower had been asked whether he would be willing to go before a meeting of the United Nations in the interest of trying to find a solution.

Eisenhower said he would make a personal appearance before the U.N. Security Council if he felt that would help solve the problem.

On the political front, Eisenhower's assertion that management of America's internal affairs is the main issue of the presidential campaign came when a reporter asked him to give his view on that matter.

What the government must undertake, Eisenhower said, are programs in the field of social security, health, unemployment insurance, aid for education, plus trying to see that the nation has a sound dollar.

The President placed great stress on need for a sound dollar and a stable economy, saying that without them, pension schemes all over the country would fall to the ground. That, he added, would affect millions of older folks.

As for his re-election prospects,

Heltzel Plans Hearings on Train Service

Charles H. Heltzel, public utility commissioner, announced Thursday that he will hold hearings on his own motion, with regard to the proposed curtailment of service on the Shasta Daylight train by the Southern Pacific company.

The commissioner has power, Heltzel said, to investigate, hold hearings, and then make determination with respect to the adequacy of existing passenger service. A recent Marion county circuit court decision, now on appeal, ruled the commissioner lacks power to suspend time tables reducing railroad passenger service prior to a hearing.

Investigations already have commenced in preparation for the hearing, Heltzel said.

Eisenhower said the only thing he has to go on in trying to evaluate his chances for a second term are the campaign crowds and receptions he encounters in traveling around the country.

The receptions, he added, have warmed his heart. Then he went on to say that if America wants him to serve another term, he will be delighted but he will abide by the decision of the voters.

Stevenson

the President and the men around him represent an administration "favoring a single set of interests."

He said Eisenhower seemed in his speech from Pittsburgh Tuesday night to resent the Democratic charges he has been "indifferent" toward labor, social security and the unemployed. He said that reminded him of an old comment that "what some people do speaks so loud you can't hear what they say."

Like Listening to Hoover
He said that, as he listened to Eisenhower's speech, he thought he was listening to Herbert Hoover, and the language was the language of Madison Avenue.

"We would be well along the road to meeting the school crisis today," he said. "If the President had put one half the swift action behind the school bill that he did behind the Dixon-Yates contract and the bills to give tax relief to the big corporations and to turn the Hells Canyon dam site over to the Idaho Power Co."

Stevenson will make a nationwide television-radio broadcast tonight on his medical care proposals.

It is scheduled at 8:40 p.m. EST, over NBC from San Francisco.

At Portland yesterday he hailed the Democratic victory in Alaska congressional races as heralding a Democratic victory in

ber. Attacks McKay
In his Portland speech last night, Stevenson drew comparisons between Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) and his opponent, former interior secretary Douglas McKay and between Democratic vice presidential candidate Estes Kefauver and Vice President Nixon.

He called McKay a candidate "sent into Oregon from Washington, air mail, special delivery and stamped—approved by the President." He said Morse "wears no man's collar." He accused McKay of trying, as secretary of interior, "to stop the whole public power program."

Speaking of a "basic difference," Stevenson said, "our vice presidential candidate doesn't have to turn over any new leaf when he goes before the people." And he said, "We didn't have to throw anybody out of our convention to get Estes Kefauver nominated."
