

Ike Seems Supremely Confident; Adlai Pins Hope on 'Inept' Job

Adlai to Make Final Talk in Boston Tonight

CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson brings his second campaign for the presidency to a close today with Boston as his last stop and Eisenhower administration foreign policy his major target. His decision to ring down the curtain in Boston tonight was dictated by the arrival of a 9-pound, 7-ounce grandson yesterday in Lying-in Hospital in Boston.

After visiting his son Adlai Jr., Adlai's wife Nancy, and the new baby, Stevenson will remain in Boston for a nationwide television originally planned for Chicago in which he and other Democrats will make their election eve appeals to the voters.

Stevenson's latest foreign policy move came yesterday in the form of a telegram to President Eisenhower urging him to take the lead in flying United Nations observers into Hungary and other satellites under attack or threatened by Soviet Russia. The telegram said: "It may be, Mr. President, that some better plan will occur to you, but I earnestly hope you will receive this suggestion from me in the spirit in which it is sent. If you think well of it, may I respectfully urge that you ask the United Nations to put it into effect as soon as possible."

Stevenson's suggestion was that Eisenhower ask either the U. N. Assembly or Security Council to set machinery in motion under a six-year-old U. N. resolution. Under it, he said, the U. N. could mobilize large teams of "official observers" and fly them into Hungary, or at least the still-free parts of Hungary, and also into any other satellite nations, such as Poland, that might welcome or consent to their presence."

Democrats gave Stevenson a rousing reception Saturday night when a police-estimated crowd of 250,000 spectators turned out for a parade down Madison Street to the Chicago Stadium, in which more than 19,000 people cheered his last major rally.

Tree Planting Festival Set For Nov. 9-10

OAKRIDGE, Ore. (AP)—The fourth annual Tree Planting Festival—a 10,000-tree affair—will be held here Nov. 9-10.

Residents of neighboring Westfir will join this Cascade Mountain community in setting out the trees on part of a 70-acre covey section of Shady Gap. All Boy Scouts in the Oregon Trail Council will participate.

Men for the logging show and preparation of the site will be provided by Pope and Talbot Lumber Co. of Oakridge and Edward Hines Lumber Co. of Westfir. The seedlings will come from the U.S. Forest Service.

A pageant at the grade school will start off the festival Friday evening. Saturday there will be a parade to the site, the planting, then a logging show with demonstrations of high climbing, felling, bucking and yarding.

Parties' Costs Estimated at $25 Million

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson rests his hopes for the presidency in tomorrow's voting on the effectiveness of campaign efforts to depict President Eisenhower as a likable but inept and bumbling president. Eisenhower appeared outwardly supremely confident that the verdict at the polls would favor him as a leader for peace and a promoter of prosperity.

Except for election eve get-out-the-vote appeals tonight by both candidates, the 1956 campaign is history written in millions of spoken words, millions of dollars spent and thousands of miles traveled. Some estimates put the campaign cost at about 25 million dollars.

Stevenson started his campaign late in August with a cross-country effort to rally and solidify the Democrats and ended it in a slashing fusillade of criticism directed at Eisenhower's foreign policies. For Eisenhower, the campaign beginning was a sedate one, in which he planned to defend his record in half a dozen telecasts with "whistle-stopping" and "barnstorming" definitely barred. His and the Republican theme was one of "Peace, prosperity and progress."

But as Stevenson's assaults grew more intense and reports piled up that Republican candidates for the Senate and House were not arousing expected support, the President stepped up his own efforts. The White House bubble-top car was transported to the Iowa corn fields and other strategic areas. The figure of Eisenhower, standing with his hand on his shoulder above the car's roof, his arms aloft, became a familiar one.

Everywhere he went Eisenhower brought shrines to the crowds lining the roads and streets. At times, as in Des Moines, he was almost mobbed by well-wishers. His meetings were packed, his listeners nearly always responsive. Stevenson lasted some of the same sort of admiring, but his camp's advance work sometimes was faulty. At times his caravan moved through almost empty streets. However, crowds generally filled the halls in which he appeared and seemed almost as enthusiastic as those Eisenhower drew.

Television which was to have been the great medium to reach the mass of voters, seemed to have proved something less than expected in that respect, although each party spent about two million dollars on major and minor TV productions.

Before he concluded his campaigning in Philadelphia last Thursday night, Eisenhower had traveled 13,614 miles, mostly by air, to visit 13 pivotal states. They included Pennsylvania, Iowa, Illinois, Ohio, Kentucky, Minnesota, Colorado, New York, Florida, and Virginia.

This was a far cry from the 51,000 miles he covered in campaign appearances in 45 states in 1952.

Stevenson, as the challenger, was far busier. He rolled up 37,619 campaign miles in 32 states. He paid no campaign visits, however, to Delaware, Wyoming, Nevada, Utah, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas.

Stevenson's primary campaign objective was to win back to the Democratic fold party members who had strayed away in 1952 when Eisenhower carried all but nine states and rolled up 442 of the 531 electoral votes. The Democratic nominee operated on the theory that his was the majority party. He apparently had no real hope of matching Eisenhower's personal popularity, an

Estes Closes His Big Push In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Sen. Estes Kefauver headed back to Washington today from his long, long campaign trail and as the hours played out he charged the Eisenhower administration "has tried to keep the world's problems out of sight of the American people by sweeping them under the rug."

The Democratic candidate for vice president concentrated on foreign policy in his final major campaign address at the St. Louis Municipal Opera House last night. The Eisenhower administration, he said, "has never sought and has never been equal to the task of reaching solutions to the basic problems which troubled the world."

"It has sought armistice instead of peace. And everywhere it has done so, the threat of war remains." Kefauver flies today to Washington, with short stops in Ohio on the way. From Washington tonight he will participate with his running mate Adlai Stevenson in the Democrats' windup broadside.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, appearing at last night's rally with Kefauver, declared the Russian attack on Hungary might have been averted had Henry Cabot Lodge, U. S. ambassador to the United Nations, acted with more speed and vigor after the Hungarian rebellion.

Hoover Denies Family Interest In Mid-East Oil. NEW YORK (UP)—Former President Herbert Hoover denied today that his son, Undersecretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr., or the Hoover family had any personal interests in Middle East oil. Mr. Hoover, in a statement issued here, said:

"Sen. Estes Kefauver's statement in St. Paul Saturday Nov. 3 that Herbert Hoover Jr. and members of the Hoover family had personal interests in Middle East oil is an absolute lie. "And I might add that Herbert Hoover Jr. not only resigned all of his professional connections but also disposed of any business interests anywhere in the world at great sacrifice to himself when he accepted the position of undersecretary of state."

Equalization Board Studies Complaints. The Marion County Board of Equalization was in session Monday investigating complaints of taxpayers concerning assessments of real property. Perl Geer Dies In California

SILVERTON (Special)—Perl Geer, member of pioneer Willamette valley family, whose stage name of Willard Cary was well known in the amusement world, died last week at the age of 83 in southern California. Funeral service was in charge of the Masonic lodge.

Geer was born June 29, 1873, a son of Calvin and Ellen Leonard Geer, pioneers of the Silverton area. He was a cousin of Homer Davenport, Silverton cartoonist who won national fame for his work. Survivors are his wife, Molly Geer and two sisters, Mrs. Ida Clymer, Yuma, Ariz.; Mrs. Mary Brown, Tacoma, Wash. Last visit of Perl Geer to the Silverton country was during the 1954 centennial celebration where he was an honor guest.

Bypass Crash Brings Injury. A two-car collision on the Salem by-pass early Sunday resulted in a minor injury to one person, state police reported.

Officers said cars driven by Howard Scriber, 1030 North 21st St., and Robert James Nyhan, Portland, collided about 5 a.m. about a half mile south of the Market street junction. Scriber was treated at Salem General hospital for a lip laceration.

Reaching Hand, Resemblance Result in Arrest for Robbery

By VICTOR B. FRYER Capital Journal Writer A hand reaching from behind a door to pay the rent and a close resemblance to a Salem man led to the arrest of Paul David Sims, 44, Portland, Sunday on charge of robbery of a Salem store, city police reported.

Detectives said they had a pretty good idea of what the holdup man looked like after the operators of the Cover Girl women's apparel store, 190 North Liberty St., told them he looked very much like a Salem man that both they and the detectives knew. A phone tip from a Salem hotel that one tenant had not only refused to leave his room for two days but that he paid his room rent by opening the door a short distance and reaching out with the money led officers to investigate.

When detectives saw Sims, they noticed "a remarkable resemblance" to the Salem man mentioned by Mrs. Aleck Cohen and Mrs. Edna Phelps, operators of the Cover Girl store, they said. Sims, a former bellhop at a Portland hotel, offered no resistance to their entrance to his room and told them to go ahead when they asked to look around, detectives stated. They found $115 in a topcoat pocket and $36 in Sims' billfold, they said. On a closet shelf was a seven-inch stick that may have been used to simulate a gun in the holdup, police said.

Salem Student Wins Contest. A Salem student has won a commercial art contest at Oregon Technical Institute, Klamath Falls, the school announced. Glen Wagers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wagers, 4250 Silverton Rd., won the contest involving a cover design for the program of the Pacific Northwest chapter of screen printers to be held in Portland soon. Some 35 other OTI students also competed in the contest.

Methodist Men to Hold Dinner Meet. The Methodist Men's club of the First Methodist church will hold a no-host dinner in the dining room of the church at 6:30 Tuesday night. A corn display will constitute a part of the program and several hobbyists will exhibit.

The meeting will be concluded by 8:30, in time for the men to follow the election returns at home.

Death Claims Clyde Allender. Clyde Allender, 61, Salem motel operator, died unexpectedly early Sunday morning from what was believed to be a heart attack. Allender operated the Allender Motel at 4195 Portland Rd. He died in the apartment at the motel where he stayed.

He was a resident of the Salem area for the past nine years and was born April 6, 1895, at Cambridge, Ohio. He resided at Cincinnati, Ohio, prior to coming to Salem.

Survivors include the widow, Mrs. Anna M. Allender, Salem; daughter, Mrs. Mary Ella Springer, Bedford Heights, Ohio; sons David Allender, Santa Monica, Calif., and Charles and Richard Allender, both of Salem; brother Roy Allender, Denton, Texas. Announcement of funeral services will be made by Clough-Barwick chapel.
