Crab Apples Put Her in Business

Mrs. Kenneth Bernet, 632 Dearborn Ave., made more and more spiced crab apples because she did not want the apples to go unused and finally found herself in the spiced crab apple business this year with the canned product selling both in stores and to a restaurant. She is shown above pouring some of her syrup into a glass after removing the spiced crab apples from the jar. (Capital Journal Photo)

Spiced Crab Apples Turn Into Growing Concern Here

DIDN'T LIKE WASTE

Because Mrs. Kenneth Bernet, 632 Dearborn Ave., couldn't stand to see crab apples go to waste she found herself in the spiced crab apple business this year.

For some time now Mrs. Bernet on asking friends what she can bring for a meal has gotten the answer "some spiced crab apples." And often she has given them to friends and family as gifts.

This year she found two trees of crab apples and thinking they were so beautiful they needed to be used she canned some of them in glass fruit jars, labeled them and began selling them to stores.

Moved to Cannery

Business boomed to the point that she could no longer can them in glass jars at home so she moved to a custom cannery, though she still makes her syrup for the crab apples at home.

Telling of her project Mrs. Bernet commented, "I started on my own here at home in a few fruit jars that I had. Then I had more than I could do at home." She said that at first she picked her own crab apples, but that later her husband helped her with the picking and she did the canning—in all she canned about 300 cans.

With the enlargement of the business—in addition to selling to stores Mrs. Bernet now has one restaurant using her crab apples and cans these in gallon containers.

Mrs. Bernet found she had to have a label and a brand name. The business is still too small to have them printed commercially so her husband worked out a block print for the label.

Soft-Hearted Thief Nabbed

CORVALLIS—A 21-year-old youth who police say became soft-hearted after robbing a motel proprietor, Tuesday faced charges of armed robbery.

Harvey W. Gibbens, Jr., Corvallis, waived preliminary hearing in district court Monday and was bound over to the grand jury.

He is charged with holding up Archie F. DeVoe, manager of the Riverview Motel, Sunday night. He escaped from custody about 8 p.m., and returned to the motel shortly before midnight to return the five dollars he had taken.

Police nabbed him on his second visit.

2 Quit; Herter Likely to Join Administration

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower accepted two more resignations Tuesday and the White House let it be known he is considering bringing Gov. Christian A. Herter, Massachusetts into his administration.

Herter's term as governor ends in January and James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, said "I would hope" that Herter's services can be used in some capacity by the federal government.

The resignations accepted were those of Roswell B. Perkins as assistant secretary of health, education and welfare, and William H. Jackson as presidential assistant for national security affairs.

Herter is the man presidential assistant Harold E. Stassen, wanted the Republicans to nominate as vice president instead of Richard M. Nixon. Stassen's maneuver fell flat.

PNP Disputes Dams Battled

WASHINGTON—An attorney for the Pacific Northwest Power Co. contended Tuesday that private utilities in the Pacific Northwest area have for many years said there were power shortages in the region.

Alan Smith, PNP lawyer, was attempting to disprove, during a Federal Power Commission hearing, a Portland power consultant's statement that private utilities in the Pacific Northwest have been fighting federal power construction.

The consultant, Samuel Moment, had testified Monday that three of the organizing companies of Pacific Northwest Power had waged an intensive publicity campaign against federal dam construction.

Smith, during cross examination of Moment, said the power load forecasts made by private utilities were more accurate than those made by the Bonneville Power Administration.

Smith said private utility officials for many years have urged Congress to construct federal power facilities in the Pacific Northwest.

Moment countered with the statement that the private utility overtures to Congress were "nullified" by a national advertising campaign directed by the private utilities against federal power.

"For a few years," Moment said, "the utilities presumed to favor federal generation but they carried water on the other shoulder by means of the advertising campaign."

The exchange between Smith and Moment, a witness for public power forces, came during an FPC hearing on PNP's application for a license to construct the Mountain Sheep and Pleasant Valley dams on the Snake River.

2 Top Officials To Visit Dams

SEATTLE—All major Pacific Northwest dam projects will be viewed next week by Col. J.L. Person, acting assistant chief of engineers for civil works, U. S. Army, and R. E. Merriam, assistant director, Bureau of Budget.

The two will address the 23rd annual convention of the Inland Empire Waterways Assn. at Yakima Tuesday, Nov. 27.

They will leave later that day for Pasco to fly over McNary Dam and motor to Lee Harbor Dam. Wednesday flights will be made over sites of proposed dams on the Clearwater and middle and lower Snake Rivers and over Grand Coulee Dam and a visit be made to Omak.

A motor trip will be made to Chief Joseph Dam and a flight to Eugene, Ore., for visits to dam sites in the Willamette Valley Thursday. Friday visits will be made to the Eagle Gorge Dam site and the Mud Mountain Dam in Western Washington.

'Marty' Sues Studio About 'Harassment'

SANTA MONICA, Calif.—Ernest Borgnine, who won an Academy Award for his role of "Marty" on the screen, claims his studio bosses harassed him by offering him a "walk on" role in a new film.

Borgnine won a restraining order in Superior Court yesterday against Hecht-Lancaster Productions. Hecht-Lancaster said they were forced to suspend "any harassing action pending trial" of his suit to break their contract.

Borgnine claimed he received only $35,000 for two lead-out roles, while Hecht-Lancaster got $150,000, and said the part they offered him in "Sweet Smell of Success" was a small one.

Producer Harold Hecht said the part, "although not a large one, is a very good one x x x."

Mongrel Dog Honored for Aid In Research on Heart Repair

BOSTON—Dog of the Year—selected by the National Society of Medical Research—is a black and white mongrel with a plastic patch on his heart.

Dr. Paul Dudley White, President Eisenhower's heart consultant, yesterday placed a silver collar on the 44 pound mutt named Airplane, at the Children's Medical Center.

He was aided by 4-year-old Joanne McLaughlin, who only a week ago underwent a heart operation made possible by surgical research on Airplane's heart.

Doctors said a new surgical technique for repairing small holes between the left and right ventricles of the heart was developed by experiments on the dog's heart.

A defect was artificially created in Airplane's heart two years ago and then corrected surgically with a plastic patch.

Does 1 Year Age Difference Make Her a Cradle Snatcher?

By DOROTHY DIX

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My folks constantly tease me because my boy friend is a year younger than I. He's a very nice boy, much more sensible than my older friends. I'm sure if my folks didn't know Roger's age, they'd be immensely impressed with him—Olive.

DEAR OLIVE: The calendar is a most unreliable guide to romance. If your friend is congenial, and you like each other, people should refrain from teasing. If they persist, learn to take it sportingly. As soon as your family realizes you're in different to their joshing, they'll let up on you.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I'm in love with a married man of 26. When we have a date he doesn't come to the house, as I don't want my mother to know I'm going with him. It would just about break her heart. Will you help me decide what to do?—Lorna.

DEAR LORNA: Just what is your problem, dear? To have the man come to the house and break your mother's heart, to break your own by ending the association, or to meet him in a town and break your reputation? My decision would be to let your own heart be shattered; it would be soonest mended.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I grew up with Tim, and am very fond of him. In fact, it was generally assumed that some day we would be married. Recently he moved to another town, wrote me a few letters, then stopped. Whenever he comes back, he comes to see me. Do you think he really likes me or is just trying to be friendly?—Betsy.

DEAR BETSY: I think he really likes you, but has a severe case of writer's cramp—an affliction at any age but an absolute scourge in adolescence. Make the most of your times together, send him clippings of hometown activities, news items of personal interest and he won't forget you in between.

Don't nag about those letters that never get written, but remind him now and then you'd like to hear from him.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have been going with a girl for two months. She left home some time ago because she couldn't get along with her mother. I'd like to marry her, but she is very headstrong and stubborn. I have doubts about the success of our marriage.—Puzzled Thomas.

DEAR THOMAS: This is an occasion where it pays to be doubtful as well as puzzled. If a two-month friendship has impressed you with the young lady's obstinacy, think what a lifetime will do!

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My boy friend recently got into trouble. He's paying for his mistake now, with a prison term. I love him very much and would never be happy with anyone else. My parents don't know about the situation, since he lives in another state. Should I tell them?—Kay.

DEAR KAY: By all means, tell, and rely on your judgment, even if you do consider it harsh. The nature of your friend's difficulties could have a large bearing on your future happiness. Your parents' counsel can help you determine whether to stick with him or not. Be guided by their decision.

Send your problem to Dorothy Dix. Or write for her free leaflet D-43, "Puppy Love." In all cases, be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and send request to her care of this newspaper.

Pamela and James Mason Have 11 Cats, But Only by Accident

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—With National Cat Week over, Mrs. Pamela Mason has a confession: The reputation she and her actor husband, James, have for cats is all a mistake.

The Masons, it's true, have 11 cats in their menage and I visited the four-footed members of the family during National Cat Week because the Masons are Hollywood's most famous cat-owners.

But Mrs. Mason, a brunette dressed in pink from shoes to earrings, sighed that it's all a fraud in a surly sort of way.

"We love cats, but I!" she sighed. "The idea is to have two cats. It's all a tremendous mistake."

The great cat caper began when Pamela and James were in England. She owned a Siamese and Mason was inspired to adopt a stage door tabby. By the time they were married they owned two cats apiece.

Cahill Enters Prison Again

Otto Cahill, convicted of converting water district funds to his own use, entered the Oregon state prison Tuesday for the second time in a year to serve a one-year term.

Cahill, former official of a water district in Lincoln County, had gone to prison in June but was released a few days later, pending outcome of an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court. That court refused to consider the case and Cahill was ordered back to prison.

He was accused of misappropriating $750 belonging to the Tilt-Nelscott-Cleaves water district. Cahill was a leader in an anti-crime crusade in Lincoln County two years ago, and his charges led to a grand jury investigation. The only indictment returned was against Cahill on the misappropriation charge.

White Cat Strays

"Then once we lost our white cat, Whitey, on a train and it caused a great deal of trouble," Mrs. Mason said. "We found him 24 hours later—He had crawled under a seat. The story got out because James is an actor and from that moment on we've never had a moment's peace with cats."

"When we arrived in this country, eight years ago with five cats, this same Whitey had ezecema. We put a big collar around his neck so he couldn't bite himself. When the photographers saw that, well!"

She added thoughtfully: "Whitey died last year of heart failure. He had been on digitals for a year."

Some Hollywoodites adopted the Masons as cat uncies. Judy Garland gave them a cat; other celebrities arrived from fans and friends. The Masons now are owned by their 11 cats.

Zig Zag Forester to Shift to Washington

PORTLAND—Appointment of James P. Langston to the supervisor's staff of the Gifford Pinchot National Forest in Washington was announced Monday by the U. S. Forest Service.

Langston had been district manager of the Zig Zag district of the Mt. Hood National Forest. In his new post he will direct recreation planning and related activities. No successor has been named for the Mt. Hood vacancy.
