

Thanksgiving Weather to Be Fair and Cold

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
It was cold today over most of the western two thirds of the country and generally chilly and fair weather was the outlook for most of the nation on Thanksgiving Day.

The season's biggest snowstorm in sections of the Rockies spread into the mid-continent. The snow extended from the Dakotas eastward to Lake Michigan and southward into northeast Kansas and southwest Missouri.

Heaviest falls were in a narrow belt from northeast Iowa northeastward through extreme southeastern Minnesota and into most of Wisconsin. Falls measured up to 8 inches at Park Falls, Wis., and 8 inches at Eau Claire, Wis. More than a foot of snow fell in sections of the Rockies before the storm moved eastward.

Rain and sleet were reported in areas east of the snow belt. Rain and showers fell eastward through Lower Michigan, through New York and to the Atlantic coast, southward through the Ohio Valley, and tapering off to a narrow band of showers in the South through Arkansas and Louisiana.

The leading edge of the cold air extended southward through Lake Michigan, eastern Iowa and through northwestern Louisiana.

Warren AFB, Wyo., for a duration of 10 weeks.

Shift Made in School Border

An error of long standing in connection with school boundaries was corrected Tuesday when the Marion County Boundary board shifted property owned by Robert Hoyser from the Salem to the Riverside district.

Several weeks ago it was discovered that the Hoyser children were attending the Riverside school while their taxes were going to a district that became attached to Salem.

At the same time, the board transferred the Harold Arendt family home from St. Paul Union high to North Marion Union high, a move that shifted all of the Donald elementary district into North Marion.

Other Job Not Easy as It Looks, Town, Farm Men Find

Three Salem business men and three farmers of this area admitted to a largely attended meeting of Salem Kiwanians and guests Tuesday that "the other fellow's job," isn't as simple as it looks from some distance away and that "the grass isn't always as green as it looks from across the fence."

The six men traded jobs for a day as a feature of local observance of Kiwanis-Farm Bureau Farm-City week, the business man working on a farm, the farmer working at the business man's job.

The business men were two food store executives, Walter Guidinger of Erickson's and Harold Johnson of Safeway, and Gerry Johnson, proprietor of The Pike, ice cream shop. The farmers were Vern Harms who raises potatoes in the Fruiland district east of Salem and ships potatoes in here from central Oregon for distribution, Arnold Selnes of near Aumsville, who has 3700 turkeys in a diversified farming operation, and Joe Rogers.

Rogers noted in his short talk that while the farmer's job is physically exhausting it is "less exasperating" than that of the man who has to please the entire public. Ben Newell, county agent, who introduced the six speakers, said Oregon has 54,000 farms with an average investment of $40,000 and that Marion county farms produce about 100 products for the market.

Fred Joehke and Ted Hobart, agriculture committee chairman of the downtown and North Salem Kiwanis clubs, worked on the program here. Most of the club members invited farmer friends as guests and the directors of the Oregon Farm Bureau were guests. Several North Salem Kiwanians also attended.

The new members featured a meeting of the Salem Junior Chamber of Commerce at a "Bosses' Night" dinner held Tuesday night in China City restaurant.

The new members included Stanley Shotts, Donald Cruzon, W. O. Kanner, Bradley Hooper, Robert Coniff, Rodney Stade and Dave Baker.

Wilt Paulson, Astoria, national Jaycee director, conducted the initiation ceremonies and Henry Yoshikai was banquet chairman.

Guest speaker for the evening was J. C. Long, former stage partner of Will Rogers, Sr., and now state supervisor for Northern Life Insurance Co., with headquarters in Portland.

Long's speech was based primarily on humor, stressing the idea that humor is a necessary part of a full life. No matter how serious one's ailments or troubles, he said, he should always show a smile and have a cheery word to help make the world a happier place.

The former Vaudevillian had a word for the employers present, urging them to encourage leadership and initiative among the young men in their employ.

More than 100 Jaycees, "bosses" and other guests attended the dinner.

Many Employers To Get Reduction Of Payroll Tax

Reductions on tax rates levied on employers' 1957 payrolls will go to 12,272 out of 15,672 concerns, the state unemployment commission announced, following a preliminary survey.

The remaining firms will pay a slightly higher tax, the commission said. Concerns included in the experience rating system have increased from 14,621 last year to 15,672. Inclusion of firms with two or more employers, authorized by the 1955 legislature, was largely responsible for the increase.

Portland Airport Contracts Given

PORTLAND (AP)—The Port of Portland commission awarded two contracts yesterday for part of a new terminal at the city's airport.

Warren Northwest, Inc., Portland, received a $554,203 contract to build an airport apron. A $58,200 contract for a utility tunnel below the proposed terminal building went to Olson Electric Co., Vancouver, Wash.

A $614,000 federal grant for the airport work was accepted by the commission. That increased the total federal outlay on the project to 2 million dollars.
