

BEGGING U. S. IS BITTER PILL

Britons Face Up With Shudder To High Cost of Egypt Invasion

LONDON (AP)—Britons faced up with a shudder today to the bill for the invasion of Egypt. The country's morale was hit squarely by fears of mounting inflation, unemployment, wage strikes, higher taxes and crippling fuel shortages.

Another bitter pill to many was the thought that the nation had once more gone begging for help from the United States, widely blamed here for Britain's empty-handed withdrawal from the Suez Canal zone.

Newspaper headlines exhorting everybody to pull together and get Britain out of the mess often had an effect opposite to that intended. Too many people were reminded that similar inspirational slogans in the past had heralded a period of grim struggle to rescue the national economy from dire peril.

The House of Commons continued the big post-mortem on the Egyptian military adventure with the start of a two-day foreign policy debate, due to reach a climax tomorrow night when the Conservative government asks for a vote of confidence.

Prime Minister Eden's government was expected to survive the vote, probably by a reduced majority, but feeling continued to mount that Eden himself would resign soon. The Prime Minister is due back in two weeks from Jamaica, where his doctors sent him for a rest at the height of the Suez crisis.

But the political furor was all but drowned in a chorus of groans from the man in the street as his immediate future struck home.

A quick rise in the cost of living was accepted on all sides as inevitable. A hike of 1 shilling 5 pence (20 cents) on diesel oil was alone enough to guarantee this. This increase was announced by the government and oil companies yesterday.

Because of greater transportation costs, the prices of bread, milk, meat and farm produce in general were expected to start climbing quickly. So were prices of most manufactured goods.

A big slump in automobile sales was predicted, with widespread unemployment in motor centers.

The Daily Telegraph, the Daily Sketch and the Daily Mail—all Conservative government supporters—expressed regret that in its need to conserve dollars Britain had asked Canada and the United States to waive the 104 million dollars in interest payments due them Dec. 31.

"Better to tighten our belts," asserted the Sketch.

"We have no sympathy with the unthinking anti-Americanism that is so prevalent today. But after the heavily strained relations of the last few weeks, the time is wrong for such a request."

"It will be interpreted as a confession of weakness. It will not improve our standing in the vital negotiations that lie ahead."

Chancellor of the Exchequer Harold Macmillan hinted in the House of Commons yesterday he would have to increase the income tax in his budget next April. The talk-around London was that he was thinking in terms of a 5 per cent increase. That would jack the basic British income tax rate up to 47½ per cent on all taxable income between $1,400 and $5,600. Above that surtaxes take an ever-increasing bigger bite.
