Objections to Walk Closure Given Council

Opposition was voiced to the city council Monday to a plan to close the north pedestrian crossing of Capitol street at Center street.

Presenting the objection was W. J. MacMahon, leader of the Capitol Shopping Center association, who presented a petition signed by more than 150 persons. He said the signers were both business people in the shopping center and residents of the area.

Will Prevent Backup
The proposal to close the crosswalk at the busy intersection came from the Oregon highway commission which seeks to prevent traffic backups at the heavily traveled intersection.

F. B. Crandall, chief traffic engineer for the department, explained that the present five phase signal time results in "jam ups" at the intersection. He said that now there are five signal changes in each 55 seconds. His proposed plan would mean two changes.

Hazard to Pedestrians
He explained that the crosswalk elimination was wanted because of the hazard to pedestrians from cars turning from Center onto Capitol if the two-phase signal were put into effect.

MacMahon also cited safety to pedestrians in objecting to the closure. He said there were a number of elderly people in the neighborhood and that they would be required to make three street crossings rather than one to get to the shopping center if the street were closed. He feared some persons might cross the street despite the pedestrian barriers.

He also said the businessmen are not interested in speeding up the traffic and noted that access is valuable and important to a business district.

NEW DELHI (AP)—Indian officials and Western diplomats say they expect Prime Minister Nehru to renew his invitation to President Eisenhower to visit India as soon as he can. Dogs Kill 12 Sheep, 18 Gone

A dozen sheep have been killed by dogs on an eastern Marion county farm and 18 other sheep were reported missing and believed killed by the canines, the Marion county sheriff's office reported Monday.

The sheep belong to Ivan Elam, Rt. 1, Aunsville, whose farm is about three miles east of Shaw, county livestock control officer Ervin Ward said. The sheep were killed in the past few days, he said.

Such losses are normally partially reimbursed from the county dog license fund, Ward said. But Elam will be unable to claim payment from the fund as he has two unlicensed dogs of his own. Ward did not connect the two dogs with the killings.

Empire Prefix to Go Into Effect at 11 p.m. Saturday

A Salem telephone directory that is as new inside as it is outside is being delivered Tuesday.

A total of 33,800 copies of the new directory will be distributed in Salem, Woodburn and Hubbard between Tuesday and Friday. Also included in the directory are sections for Dallas, Falls City, Independence and Monmouth.

Printed inside for the first time are the Salem numbers with the new Empire prefix that goes to work here at 11 p.m. on December 15.

Pacific Telephone Manager E. A. Berglund had this warning about the new directory for Salem users.

"Although everyone will receive the new directories before 11 p.m. December 15 when the Empire prefix becomes effective, it is important to remember not to dial Empire before then," he said. "It won't work."

Berglund also pointed out that while the Woodburn-Hubbard numbers are listed in the Salem section there will be no new prefix added in that community.

Reflecting the growth of the Salem area this year's directory contains eight more pages of alphabetical listings than did last year's version.
