

Girl Feared Suicide Over Her False Belief Sister Is Dead

NEW YORK (AP)—A 14-year-old girl was missing Friday—feared a possible suicide in the mistaken belief she let her infant sister die while baby-sitting.

Margaret Julie Mizzi ran away from her Queens home Monday, leaving this note: "I was washing the dishes. I went over to look at the baby. The pillow was on her face. I took it off. I shook her but she did not move. I think she is dead. I get scared. I am running away."

"Daddy will kill me when he finds out. I want to save him the job. By the time you read this I will be dead. I will always love all of you."

But when Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mizzi returned home after spending an hour out shopping for a Christmas tree, they found 4-month-old Carol sleeping soundly and healthily in her crib.

Julie, as the older girl is known to the family, was gone. She was wearing blue jeans and a red coat and, as far as is known, had no extra clothes, food or money with her.

Mizzi, an employee of the New York City Transit Authority, notified police. They have spread the alarm in 14 states.

"I am worried sick," Mizzi said. "I want Julie back. Of course it was all a terrible mistake."

Killer Blames 3 Victims for Father's Death

ANGOLA, Ind. (AP)—A 40-year-old eccentric bachelor said Friday he killed three of his neighbors and wounded two others because he thought they had caused his father's death.

In the Steuben County jail, where he was held without charge, Bible-quoting Merlin McNaughton told a reporter: "I might as well tell you—I made up my mind a long time ago to take a crack at those buggers (his neighbors) if I got a chance. Tuesday night I decided I had waited long enough."

McNaughton, who described himself as an "executioner," accused his neighbors of breaking into his two-story home at nearby Ray "several times a week" before his father died in January, 1955.

"I know what they were doing, too," he told a reporter. "They were putting carbon compound in the food, and that's what caused my father's heart attack."

Sheriff Harry Dirim, who overheard the interview, said McNaughton's story was "concocted by a deranged mind."

Preston Bradley, one of the wounded neighbors, said McNaughton "hated everybody," had shot at some boys last summer and "slept in the daytime and ran around at night watching people."

Larry Chestnut, assistant manager of the branch, said the man laid a sack on the counter, pulled out a gun and told him to give him "all the money or I'll blow your brains out."

Indian Graves On 2 Islands Being Moved

THE DALLES (AP)—Indian tribal representatives and Army Engineers, supervising removal of the remains of Indians from Grave Island and Memorial Island in the Columbia River, expected to complete the first part of their task Friday.

Grave Island, which was abandoned by the Indians as a burial site after the 1894 floods, and Memorial Island, five miles upstream, will be flooded as the Columbia River rises behind The Dalles Dam.

Only authorized workers and supervisors were allowed on Grave Island, where work was to be completed Friday, and the only photography permitted was for government records. Crews next will move to Memorial Island.

The skeletons from Grave Island will be kept at a mortuary here until a vault overlooking the river is constructed. The remains from Memorial Island, the more modern burial ground, will be interred in a new cemetery on the Washington side of the river a mile above the dam.

Sumatra Army Coup Reported

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Newspapers in the Indonesian capital said Friday the army has staged a coup in Sumatra.

The newspapers carried a speech by Ruslan Mulkohardo, governor of Central Sumatra, saying he had transferred his power to a local army commander, Lt. Col. Ahmad Husein.

There have been widespread rumors in the past month that the army has been planning a coup.

Leaders of eight political parties, apparently fearing such a development, met in Jakarta Sunday and agreed to bury differences and work together for the preservation of Indonesian democracy.

There were no details on the action reported in Sumatra, or any confirmation from official Indonesian sources.

ICC to Allow Express Boost

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission said Friday it will permit a proposed 4 per cent increase in charges on less-than-carload shipments of railway express to become effective Dec. 27.

The hike, proposed by the Railway Express Agency had already been given clearance by a three-man ICC division, acting for the organizations and the Agriculture Department appealed to the full 11-member commission.

The full commission simply announced it would not interfere with the increase, which covers less-than-carload business generally, exempting only milk and cream, newspapers and human remains.
