

Willamette Scrapes By Pacific in Overtime, 81-79

From the Saturday Wash

One of the fascinating things about the Rose Bowl game movies, shown to the Salem Breakfast club Wednesday, was an as-plain-as-day clipping violation by an Iowa player downfield on KeAny Ploen's 49-yard jolt that scored Iowa's first touchdown. Several viewers said they saw it, too, although the Oregon State coaches, who poured over the movies several times, didn't mention it.

What is more, the SBC viewers say that a striped-shirt referee ran right by it and didn't notice. Nevertheless, it wasn't called and with only 4:16 gone the Beavers had lots of wind knocked out of them. If the Moving Finger hadn't already written and moved on, as Omar said, it would be interesting to imagine what the outcome might have been if the run had been called back...

Not having the right attitude has cost two Oregon State football players dearly. Sometimes it makes us wonder, but we realize that they are representative of this modern age. Sonny Sanchez, sophomore guard from San Francisco, earned his letter and went to Pasadena with the gang, although he didn't get to play. He's the one Coach Tommy Prothro dropped from the squad Wednesday "for failure to develop normal or reasonable training habits while a playing member of the squad."

Awards Lost

As a result, the good prospect can't play football anymore for OSC; he didn't get a wrist watch last night as other players did at the Corvallis community banquet; he won't get a PCC championship jacket; and won't even get a letter. He was the only San Francisco prepster ever to make the all-city team three years, but OSC coaches found his attitude intolerable and they tried all kinds of psychology on him to no avail...

The other Beaver hard to understand was Phil Naylor, sophomore third string tackle from Riverside, Calif. He was out with the team all season and after the layoff came back to practice for the Rose Bowl. For some strange reason he quit just before the team took off for the Santa Monica training grounds because it was "too tough." Thousands of young men with more or less talent would have jumped at the opportunity.

Johnny Eggers, OSC publicity man, says that the color movies of the Rose Bowl were taken by Sports TV firm of Los Angeles, which has taken all of OSC's game films this season and for all PCC schools. They're the ones who provide the highlights shown on TV's "Parade to the Rose Bowl" weekly show... Iowa took its own college photographic bureau to take its Rose Bowl movies.

Odds, Ends from the Four Wins

Answer to a question: The District 8 A-1 "sub-district" which includes Bend, Redmond and Prineville does not have to play the other part of the district for a chance to enter the state Class A-1 basketball tournament. The sub-district winner goes directly to the 16-team event at Eugene, which should make Bend happy, since the Lava Bears almost made it last year for the first time, won the district title but lost out in playoffs which ironically Bend insisted on before the season began...

Athletic Director Harold Hauk of South Salem said he still is looking for a football game Nov. 8, final Friday of the season. It's tough to find an opponent because neither the Eugene and south Oregon districts have any room outside the district and they appear to be full on that date. "Have fun, will travel," Hauk declares... South Salem replaced Redmond Sept. 20 by going to Milwaukie...

Jerry McCallister, former Willamette university football, basketball and baseball player, will go into the Air Force the first of April, reporting to Lackland AFB at San Antonio, Tex. Right now he is working at Sears. At Lackland are other ex-Willamette athletes who took Air ROTC at the Salem school... Ron Holt, Willamette senior athlete, became a husband during the Christmas holidays. His bride is a nurse from Portland, now serving at Salem Memorial hospital...

This seems to be the year for assistant coaches to move to head coaching jobs. In fact, being an assistant is the best way to get a promotion these days. Look at the Missouri assistant who moved up into Don Faurot's place; the Nebraska aide who took over Pete Elliott's place; James Myers, UCLA line coach, who left the University of Washington position; and there's our Tommy Prothro of OSC, who was an aide at UCLA two years ago...

We Bow to the Truth

The Springfield high school principal, Dale P. Parnell, writes us that "the cry in this end of the valley is for the old Big Six to be revived in some fashion." We heartily agree and wish that the OSAA hadn't invented the districting that broke up the hot Big Six rivalry.

Springfield, Parnell writes, has travel problems because of the scattered nature of its district which requires going 130 miles to play Marshfield and North Bend, and to Medford and Klamath Falls to pick up opponents. "So here we are in the position of having schools that we can play within a radius of 70 miles and yet we are forced to go further because of district problems..." We wish the OSAA would make a COMPLETE study of the district problem in all divisions, and possibly come up with a five year plan based on projected school enrollments, something solid that would not be easily changed. I would even go so far as to recommend a Metropolitan division in addition to the A-1.

Mainly, though, Parnell wanted to answer our column of last week in which we mentioned that Springfield had cancelled a game at Lebanon because of lack of transportation funds, then played the same night at Corvallis. The same assertion appeared in the Albany and Corvallis papers.

Parnell explains that a year ago Lebanon had to cancel a game at Springfield because of weather conditions and signed a contract for only one game, Jan. 8, at Springfield, and a return game at Lebanon in 1958. "We couldn't play Lebanon two games because we already had 21 scheduled and only room for one more," the principal writes in straightening us out.

"The student body of Springfield, backed by the Board of Education, has a standard policy of sending our athletic teams first class and completely fulfilling all obligations," he concluded. We regret the misrepresentation. Some day we'll learn.

Machamer Scores 27 in 'Upset'; C of I Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Linfield upended league-leading Lewis and Clark College of Idaho thumped Whitman Friday night — "upset night" in Northwest Conference basketball.

With Bill Machamer bucketing 27 points, Linfield rolled to an 89 victory over Lewis and Clark at McMinnville. College of Idaho came from behind in the closing minutes to beat Whitman, 69-65, at Walla Walla. The win lifted the Coyotes out of the conference cellar.

Willamette edged Pacific University, 81-79 in overtime, in third league game played at Salem.

Linfield and Lewis and Clark were knotted, 39-38 at halftime. Linfield made its move after the intermission and pulled steadily away in the second half.

Accuracy at the free throw line gave College of Idaho the winning margin over Whitman. Each team hit 22 field goals, but the Idahoans picked up the winning points at the foul line. Don Moore dropped in 21 points for the winners to take scoring honors.

The Oregon Collegiate Conference basketball race grew tighter Friday night as Oregon College of Education upleading Eastern Oregon, 71-56.

That threw Eastern Oregon into a tie with idle Oregon Tech. Each has a 3-2 record.

Portland State pulled into a tie with Southern Oregon for second place by spilling the Red Raiders at Portland, 76-70.

Ced Aichele, 6-3 center, ran up 25 points in leading the Portlanders to the victory. Bill Hollingsworth, leading conference scorer, had 20 for Southern Oregon.

At Monmouth OCE moved into a 38-35 halftime lead and then added to the advantage through the second period. Cece Miller led OCE with 17 points. Earl Smith had the same total for Eastern Oregon.

The teams will meet again Saturday night.

Driver Decides Tilt On 2 Free Throws

Guard Becomes Hero After Buzzer at End of Extra Period; 2nd Game Tonight at Forest Grove

By A. C. JONES
Capital Journal Sports Editor

Keith Driver packs a lot of action into a short time, a lot of nautic in a small frame, and shoots his free throws with every bit of his abundant talents. In fact, he has hit 100 per cent of his 14 free rows this season and the Willamette university guard was the perfect one for Pacific to foul here last night at the tail end of the overtime.

The sophomore from Hubbard was the unmitigated hero of Willamette's 81-79 victory and yet he played only the last 42 seconds of the overtime as a part of Coach John Lewis' strategy. The net result was to keep the Beacrats in the thick of the Northwest conference race.

At Pacific Tonight

Tonight the scene shifts to Forest Grove, where Pacific hopes familiarity with its own baskets will even the series.

Driver hadn't missed a free throw in 10 attempts up to game time and he made good on all four tries. His chance for the tie-breaking pair after the overtime found him taking a little more time than usual but he came through brilliantly, was mobbed by teammates after the first and clinching one, then hit the second when the referees cleared the floor.

Eddie Grossenbacher, freshman whiz of a guard, performed a heroic feat to get Willamette into the overtime by whooosing a 35-foot shot with 10 seconds remaining to make it 72-72. He tied with Neil Causbie at 17 points for Willamette's best and Vic Backlund was next with 16 big ones.

Tied in Last 2 Seconds

Here is how the tense overtime developed and how the foul by Don Brennemman came, which surprised most fans because it was lost in the noise and confusion that accompanied Pacific's tying tip-in by Bob Gehrts with two seconds left in the five-minute bonus period.

Ron Barendse fouled Grossenbacher, who hit his first and it was 73-72 for WU to open the overtime. Gehrts fouled Dick Hartley, who hit his second one, 74-72, then Backlund sank a basket but fouled out and Dick Smith hit his one free throw to make it 76-73 with 2:15 gone.

Jerry Kalapus sank a follow-up, 76-75, but fouled Causbie and the 6-7 center made good on both with 2:10 remaining. Ron Holt stole the ball but missed his lay-in and Don Adams of Pacific used a fast break with 1:10 left to make it 78-77 for Willamette.

Calls Time Out

Barendse fouled Causbie with 1:03 left, he missed his first free throw and hit the second for an important two-point bulge. So with 42 seconds to go, Lewis called time out for a conference with his eager Beacrats.

In went Driver, joining the rapid moving guards Masa Watanabe and Grossenbacher, the idea being to keep the ball moving until the clock ran out.

Smith of Pacific tied Watanabe up with 15 seconds to go, got the jump on the little fellow but Willamette got the ball out of bounds on a violation. At mid-court, Gehrts intercepted a pass, relayed to the left side to a teammate who missed his shot, then followed up expertly for the basket that deadlocked the score at 79-79 in the last two seconds.

The sharp eyes of referee Doc Archer detected that Brennemman had fouled Driver as everyone scrambled for the rebound at approximately the same time as the buzzer ended the overtime. It couldn't have happened to a nicer free throw shooter.

cils twice to stay in the game. Finding the Pacific switching man-to-man defense frustrating, the 'Cats fell behind 16-23 midway through the first half, then made 16 in a row in the next four minutes to go ahead 32-23 and led at halftime 42-41.

Bad passing and inability to get rebounds hurt Willamette and it got no better as the visiting Badgers piled up a 66-50 lead halfway through the second half. Nobody would have given a wooden nickel for Willamette's chances then.

Grossenbacher got to hitting long shots, Jim Thompson came in to hit a couple and Dick Hartley two more and with four minutes left Pacific led only 70-68.

Bill Caldwell added two free throws for Pacific with 1:05 left, then fouled Causbie, who made both charities with 50 seconds remaining to set the stage for Grossenbacher's tying swisher. This was made possible only because a Pacific pass went wide and out of bounds with 22 seconds left.

Willamette jayvees won their prelim handily from Pacific's Badgerlings, 78-54.
