Service to In-Laws Under Duress Confusing to Bride

By DOROTHY DIX
DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am curious to know why you suggest a life of service to others as the answer to all problems concerning happiness.

I am married into a family with, apparently, the same idea. I don't share it!
After two years of married life, we have acquired a small house next to my in-laws. We moved here partly because the older folks need help, financially and physically, partly because my husband doesn't want to be away from his parents. Now I find myself involved in a continuous round of helping with medical expenses, sharing nursing care (at which I am no good), and practically giving my husband back to his family. If any one of them—parents, sisters or brothers—need help, my husband is right there.
He's not interested in going any place. His only pleasure is being with his family. Perhaps I'm indulging in self-pity, but I would like occasional gaiety and laughter, a home where I could retire to some privacy, and money for children of our own—Pamela.
DEAR PAMELA: Don't confuse voluntary service, which is conducive to happiness, with forced servitude, which is not. Responsibilities that are thrust on one are quite different from those that are sought. Service under duress is apt to be given begrudgingly, and cannot co-exist with happiness.
Perhaps, Pamela, you are indulging in self-pity, but who can blame you? Coming, as a bride, into a household ruled by illness was not a cheerful prospect. Trying to convey your feelings to your husband is the only answer. Let him know you're willing to do your share of nursing, etc., if he will take you out occasionally for a bit of fun. This surely isn't asking too much of him, when you're pitching in with so much co-operation.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: As the result of an operation, my sister-in-law cannot have children. Three weeks ago she married suddenly, and when asked by us if she had told her husband this, she said no, and she didn't intend to. We feel he should be told. Are we right?—Shelia.
DEAR SHELIA: The husband should have been told while he was still a fiance. To tell or not to tell, however, must be left to your sister-in-law's honor.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My steady beau is to be an usher at his best friend's wedding. He has informed me that I probably won't be asked to the wedding dinner, as the number of guests will be limited. I feel I should be invited. My friend knows me and I think my boy friend should ask for an invitation for me.—Robertia.
DEAR ROBERTIA: Your boy friend is not in a position to solicit invitations to a wedding dinner. It would be courteous of his friend to invite you but certainly it isn't obligatory. Do be pleasant about the incident and don't make an international episode out of it. The bride's family is doubtless having enough trouble with people who would like to come, but can't.

Send your problem to Dorothy Dix. Or write for her free leaflet D-12, "Ten Commandments For Happiness." In all cases, be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and send request to her, care of this newspaper.

VISIT 'LIKE A DREAM'

Ingrid Departs; U.S. Kindness Thrills Her

NEW YORK (AP)—A tired but happy Ingrid Bergman returned to Europe today, thrilled about her first visit to America in nearly eight years.
"It was almost like a dream and I'll start to remember it when I get back to Paris," commented the Swedish-born actress as she boarded her plane last night at Idlewild Airport.
"I enjoyed my trip very much although I got very little sleep," she said of her 34-hour visit.
She came here to receive the New York Film Critics Award for best actress of 1956 for her performance in "Anastasia."
During the time that remained, the 42-year-old blonde actress crammed in a matinee performance of the hit Broadway musical "My Fair Lady," did a little shopping and talked to friends.
It was her first visit here since 1949 when she left to make a film in Italy with Roberto Rossellini. She and the Italian film director had a son while she was still married to Dr. Peter Lindstrom.
It touched off a wave of criticism and ended her Hollywood film career. However, she was warmly greeted by well-wishers during her brief weekend visit.
"I was surprised by how nice people were to me everywhere I went," she said. "I want to thank all those kind people who put presents in my car and handed them to me wherever I went."
At the airport, Miss Bergman disclosed that she had talked by telephone with her daughter Pia, a child born of her marriage with Dr. Lindstrom.
"I am very happy about the talk," the actress said. "It was very personal, and should be left to the two of us."
Pia, now called Jenny Ann, is 18 and a student at the University of Colorado at Boulder. She did not come to New York to visit with her mother.
Miss Bergman scotched all rumors that she might return to the United States to live. "Europe is my home now, although I had 10 wonderful years in America," she said.
Waiting for Miss Bergman in her Paris apartment are her three children, Roberto, 7, and her twin 4-year-old daughters Ingrid and Isabella.
Miss Bergman is appearing on the Paris stage in the play "Tea and Sympathy."
Rossellini, whom Miss Bergman married after a divorce from Dr. Lindstrom, is in India on film location.

Leaving With a Smile

Actress Ingrid Bergman smiles during news conference at Idlewild Airport before she boarded plane to return to Paris. "I was surprised by how nice people were to me everywhere I went," she said of her first visit to U.S. in nearly eight years. She made trip to accept New York Film Critics' award for best actress of the year for her role in "Anastasia." Coincidentally was given her by Robert Anderson, author of "Tea and Sympathy," the play she is currently appearing in, in Paris. (AP Wirephoto)
