'STRIP' ACT Fashions Allow Quick Changes

ROME (AP)—Milady next summer can dress for the supermarket or the dance floor and end in the swimming pool if she likes with only a quick strip act.

Winding up the Rome spring fashion openings, Mingolini-Gugenheim presented ensembles that started out as demure street dresses or frothy dancing frocks in green and white organza.

Skirts and tops whipped off to disclose trim swimsuits underneath. In cotton, the idea looked practical. It seemed a little improbable, though, in the more fragile organza.

Mingolini - Gugenheim like ensembles. Hardly a dress was without its matched coat or jacket. Wool coat linings tie in with print silk dresses, companion capes and shawls complete evening gowns. The old-fashioned coat or wrap that covers several dresses is out. The new idea suggests removable, changeable linings to make good coats more versatile.

Hatfield Asks How to Deduct Senator's Pay

Secretary of State Mark Hatfield asked Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton Monday how he should deduct pay from the salaries of the state's 30 senators.

The law directs the secretary to pay $600 to all members of the Legislature following the 15th day of the session. It also says they shall receive no compensation after the fifth day "until organization shall have been effected."

The House was organized the first day, so there is no question about the representatives' pay. But the Senate went through its sixth day Monday bogged down in a partisan fight over election of its president.

Hatfield asked Thornton to decide whether deductions from the senators' pay should be computed on a daily basis over a year's period. If so, the senators now are losing $1.66 a day until they settle their differences.

French Gets 20-Day Term

Upon the motion of the district attorney's office, two charges of obtaining money by false pretenses had been dismissed against French.

French had written checks against a LaGrande bank for $8 and $20. Investigation revealed that he had had an account in the bank which was closed out without his knowledge.

Don't Rush Into Dating Too Soon, 14-Year-Old Is Advised

By DOROTHY DIX

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Boys always like me as a first choice, then after one or two weeks of dating, break off. I can't understand it. I'm considered attractive, am a top student, popular and have a good disposition. I don't get serious over boys and like to have a good time. I'm 14, and believe I should be getting somewhere by this time—Jody.

DEAR JODY: You are getting somewhere, and going surprisingly far for a youngster your age; you're learning about boys, all kinds of boys! The sort of dating you're doing, even if it's unwillingly, is ideal for young teen-agers. Don't rush into steady dating too soon.

As you go along, you'll learn what attracts and what repels young men. Perhaps your attitude is superior, perhaps your talents are so numerous an ordinary male is afraid of competition. Whatever it is, the problem will iron itself out—and do have fun in the process.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Two weeks before I was married, my husband-to-be escorted a girl from the office to a dance. She asked, and he obliged. I would have called off the wedding had I known about it then. I didn't discover it until months later. Now after two years of marriage, the incident still pops into my head. My husband hasn't looked at another woman, but I see red when I think of this girl—Mrs. H.

DEAR MRS. H.: Keep harping on it and you'll chase your husband out! The incident was certainly small, and should have been dismissed long ago. Your husband, knowing your jealous nature, tried to keep peace by withholding the information. When you feel your jealousy rising, say a little prayer and in time it can be subdued.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: When I visit my sister-in-law, she sings constantly. I dread going over because I know I'll get a headache.—Alyce.

DEAR ALYCE: Join in on the chorus. Participation will put an end to aggravation.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I've been going steady with Tom for seven months and am very fond of him. Two months ago I met Mike, and I like him, too. Tom says either I go steady with him, or stop seeing him. It will break my heart to lose Tom, but I like Mike almost as well—Kitten.

DEAR KITTEN: In your attitude of heart, steady dating is out. It's open competition, and may the best man win.

Send your problem to Dorothy Dix. Or write for her free leaflet D-14, "Are You Sure It's Love?" In all cases, be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and send request to her, care of this newspaper.

Tips Given on Mailed Plants

Suggestions concerning the handling of shrubs and plants that are sent through the mail have been outlined by Postmaster Albert C. Gragg.

Since much of the stock is perishable, it is vital that it be given prompt service, the postmaster points out.

Persons who are expecting nursery stock and who will be away from home, should arrange for a neighbor to accept the shrubs or plants, which should be kept moist and cool until they can be planted.

Transportation companies should be notified if delivery of perishable materials is to be delayed for any reason. In such case it is possible to store plants for a short period in a cool place.
