sion forces back of the 1949 Palestine armistice line.

Israeli sources said Hammarskjold's report was not clear enough and declared it gave a legal approach to a political problem.

Hammarskjold informed the Assembly yesterday Israel has not fully complied with five resolutions cailing for withdrawal of its forces. He added that numerous political and legal barriers prevent the U. N. from accepting Israel's conditions for a complete pull back.

Israel still holds two areas seized in the October-November invasion, the Gaza Strip and the Sharm El Sheikh sector on the Gulf of Aqaba. Israel insists it must have firm guarantees that its interests will be protected before quitting those areas.

Sharm El Sheikh guards the Gulf of Aqaba, Israel's link with the Red Sea. Prior to the recent invasion, Egyptian guns had kept Israel shipping out of the area. The Gaza Strip on the Mediterranean was controlled by Egypt after the 1948 Palestine War. Israel repeatedly has charged it was used as a base for Arab commandor raids into Israel iterritory.

Israel was aaid to feel that Hammarskjold's report, harks back to the 1949 armistice, which Israel considers a failure and no solution to the problem.

The Israelis also were suid to feel that the right of navigation in the Gulf of Aqaba is not an armistic question, but one of preventing belligerency.
