Mainwaring Will Filed for Probate

The United States Bank of Portland and Jennie L. Mainwaring are named co-executors of the estate of the late Bernard Mainwaring, newspaper publisher, under the provisions of his will filed with the Marion county probate department. Neither will be required to provide performance bond.

The will, which was signed Sept. 16, 1954, directs Mrs. Mainwaring to make any newspaper publishing stock which is included in the estate. She is also allowed all personal and real property.

Under the trust agreement, a son, William Lewis Mainwaring, a student at the University of Oregon, and a daughter, Ruth Helen Mainwaring, at home, become the ultimate beneficiaries of the estate. The estate is valued in excess of $10,000 in the order admitting the will to probate.

Today in Salem

Tom Wright, press administrative assistant to Governor Holmes, is doing his share to help the new administration keep its promises of saving money for the taxpayers. Needing some new reference books for his work, Tom went shopping at a Salem bookstore.

He noted that a world atlas that had been dropped and the corner crumpled was $3 less than the others, he bought it. Same information inside, he remarked.

A major wire service has warned its members to look out for a "news" story that has been cropping up around the country, usually with someone trying to pass it off to the local papers as a true story.

The story is of a Sunday driver who called police to report that someone stole "the steering wheel and all the foot pedals from my car." A squad car was dispatched to the scene. A moment later the man calls back to report, "Everything is all right. I was looking in the back seat."

It's a little early to worry much about it but Harry Holloway, district manager for Pacific Tel. and Tel., advises phoners they had better make sure of their number when the nation-wide dialing system goes into operation.

A slip of the finger or failing to remember the number correctly may result in a completely different section of the country than the one he is trying to call. Instead of just getting someone out of the bath tub to answer a wrong number you do now, you're likely to be billed for a long distance call you didn't even want to make.

Of course, it could be straightened up if the mistake is reported right away but it would still be a nuisance. However, he told the Salem Board of Realtors, don't get ulcers over it just yet. It'll be some time before the new system goes into effect.

One of the newer definitions of an old-timer is the guy who lives within three blocks of a high school and can remember when he could park in front of the house almost any time.

He cited the fact that Oregon, in the winter months, has the highest unemployment rate in the country, and said cheap power would bring new industries to the state.

He declared that the high dam would provide 40 per cent more power than the low dams, and at only a third of the cost.

The fight against the memorial was led by Rep. Emil A. Stunz, Nyssa, the only Democrat who opposed it.

"It is foolish for this body," Stunz said, "as a relatively poorly informed group, to say that the Federal Power Commission didn't know what it was talking about when it granted the license to Idaho Power."

"The three low dams would produce as much power as the high dam, and we won't have to pick up the check for the low dams."

The only Republicans who voted for the memorial were Reps. Herman Childers, Molalla; George Laysman, Newberg; Charles A. Tom, Rufus; and Sam Wilderman, Portland.

Late Model Car Stolen in Salem

The theft of his late model car was reported to city police Tuesday morning by Buster A. H. Tolley, 340 Boice St.

Tolley said his 1956 Ford was parked near Boice and Mountain View drive about 10 p. m. Monday and was missing when he looked for it about 7 a. m. Tuesday.

State Broiler Growers Slate Meeting Here

Commission Formation To Be Discussed At Session

A statewide meeting of Oregon broiler growers will be held in Salem Feb. 13, to discuss formation of a state broiler commission or to develop some other program for overcoming the serious situation confronting the state's $5,000,000 broiler and fryer industry.

"The future of our industry is at stake," Cornelius Bateson, Salem grower and president of the Oregon Broiler Growers association, said in announcing the meeting.

Bateson pointed out that surplus fryers from southern producing areas 2500 miles away have forced Oregon fryer prices far below the cost of production. This situation is likely to continue for some time, he said, because "vertical integration" has placed control of southern area broiler production in the hands of big feed companies, processors and hatcheries.

Bateson believes a vigorous advertising program to acquaint consumers with the farm freshness and high quality of Oregon birds will obtain consumer preference for homegrown fryers.

A grower-administered state broiler commission, with authority to collect an assessment of not more than 1 1/2 per cent, seems the only feasible way of financing such a program, the association president said.

He added that a voluntary program was tried but did not result in sufficient funds for a program of the size and scope necessary. Washington broiler growers, he noted, currently are forming a state commission.

The meeting will start at 1:30 p. m. in Mayflower hall.

4 Auto Accidents Reported Monday

Salem police investigated four accidents Monday, they reported.

A car-train accident at 14th and Mission streets about noon resulted in considerable damage to a car driven by Silas W. Kenney, Turner, officers said. The train incurred minor damage and a sidewalk railing was damaged when the car struck it.

I. S. Peterson, Portland, was engineer of the slow-moving freight, police said. No injuries were reported.

A car driven by Emma Camenzind, 1142 Edgewater St., was involved in an accident with a car driven by Harvey Calvin Whitfield, 2340 Hyde St., about 1:25 p. m., officers reported. The woman was cited on a charge of failure to yield the right of way. She backed from the curb into the Whitfield car, officers said. Damage was minor.

About 2:40 p. m., cars driven by William G. Boswell, Turner, and H. L. Goff, Whittier, Calif., were moderately damaged in a collision at 12th and Court streets, officers reported.

About two minutes later, cars driven by Cecil May, 5280 Portland Rd., and Phillip Marcus Rolfe, Cloverdale, collided at Lana avenue and Portland road. Considerable damage was done to the front end of both cars, officers said, and Mrs. Rosemary May suffered a bruise to forehead.

Sacred Heart Play Nearly Polished

The four lead players in Sacred Heart academy's musical comedy, "Miss Caruthers Returns," were polishing up their parts Tuesday with the play scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday at the Parrish junior high school auditorium. The four include (left to right) Sally Joseph, playing Miss Thyrza Caruthers; Marlene Burton as Mrs. Jones; Brenda Davidson, Bridget the cook, and Gloria Koch, Desdemona. (Capital Journal Photo)

City Workers' Part-Time Jobs Draw Protest

The question of outside employment for city civil service employees on their days off, has again come up to worry city officials.

Charles Westergard, secretary of the Salem Building Trades council, has written a letter to Mayor Robert F. White, the city council, the civil service commission, and Fire Chief Robert Mills, protesting part-time employment of two city firemen by a Salem business concern.

The civil service commission has a definite rule against employment of this kind, except in cases of emergency such as crop harvesting.

The position of the Building Trades council is that this part-time employment tends to take work from labor union men who do not have other means of livelihood.

Civil Service Hearing
The House Local Government Committee will hold a public hearing at 1 p. m. Wednesday on a bill to place county employees under civil service.

SPEAKING OF ALGERIA

Independence in Two Years, Shea Predicts

Algerian independence within two years was forecast by Dr. Robert Shea, director of the American school in Tangier, Morocco, in a speech to the Salem Chamber of Commerce Monday.

He said the French cannot hold Algeria and that in a year or two the country would be independent.

Dr. Shea said he would like to see the United States take steps to promote a North African federation between Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia and Libya.

Bloodless Revolution
In discussing Morocco, Dr. Shea said the revolution there was relatively bloodless and left the moderates in control. He pointed to the educational and economic problems which exist in the nation which obtained its independence in March, 1956. He told the audience that Morocco was the first nation to recognize the independence of the American colonies during our revolution.

Speaking of the problem of education he said that less than 12 per cent of the population had any hope of attending school and that there is consequently a tremendous shortage of educated people in the country.

The American school, of which he is director, is a private institution established seven years ago by Americans living in Tangier to educate their children. It takes children of any nationality, he said.

Holiness Group Holds Final Meet

The Rev. Max Morgan this morning opened the second and last day of the Oregon State Holiness association convocation meeting at the First Free Methodist church.

Election of officers and reports of state and county associations was to be the order of business for the day.

Dr. Edison Habegger, president of Cascade college, Portland, addressed the group of 66 at an early afternoon meeting and the Rev. Max Morgan will talk at tonight's closing session.

Many Apply

Dr. Shea recalled that when the school was organized, there were facilities for teaching 35 students. With only 28 American students, officials of the school thought that some of the native children might be interested and inserted an advertisement. Two thousand applied for admission, he recalled. The school now numbers 225 students from 17 countries.

The school teaches an American curriculum with "lots of reading, writing and arithmetic and a minimum of basketball, basket weaving and baton twirling," he said.
