31 Solons Seek Advertising on License Plates

Thirty-one Republican and Democratic House members today introduced legislation that would require Oregon license plates to be coated with reflecting material and add the slogan "scenic wonderland" to the plates.

A figure in the shape of a fir tree also would be put on the license plates between number groups.

Keith Skilton, Eugene Democrat, introduced a bill increasing the salaries of all district attorneys by substantial and varying amounts. The bill also would prohibit district attorneys from receiving $10,000 or more from private practice and provide a deputy district attorney for each $30,000 of county population.

Daily nonresident fishing licenses would be made available at $1 a day for salmon and any game fish under a bill introduced by Thomas McClellan, Neotsu Democrat.

Salem Kiwanians were happy Tuesday to have Ole Roberts back with them—with his head.

Ole missed last Tuesday's meeting to make a trip to the coast. Enroute, he passed a lumber truck from which a board blew loose and onto Ole's car. He ducked in time to avoid having the board take his head with it, reports indicated, although the car was banged up quite a bit.

One reason Kiwanians are so happy to see him back, they say, is because it's so hard to get a good program committee chairman like Ole.

'The Stayton Mall has rechristened the freeway to our north as the "R. H. Baldock Signway." Editor Lawrence Spraker notes the blossoming of billboards every 1000 feet (the minimum distance allowed between them on the freeway). Just goes to show you, Editor Spraker, that you can kid all you want about the "third house" at the state legislature but the lobbyists still throw plenty of weight.

And just think, Mr. Spraker, plans have been announced for a border-to-border freeway on which we won't be overcome with "Highway hypnosis" from watching all those boring trees and mountains. Every thousand feet, a colorful advertising message will smack us right in the face to keep us awake.

One might take some consolation, however, in noting that on the Willow Run expressway near Detroit, advertisers are even getting along around the law requiring that signboards be several hundred feet from a limited access road.

A Detroit sign company is erecting a giant sign eight times taller and two to three times wider than the average highway billboard. The sign, suspended from cables, will allow the 60-mile-an-hour motorist a full minute to enjoy (?) the message, the designers claim.

There'll be one former All-American basketball player with the Harlem Globetrotters when the South Salem gymnasium Tuesday night—but he's not on the team.

'Tony Lavelli, 6-4 sharpshooter who set a major college scoring record and was named All-American while at Yale, is traveling with the team as part of the half-time stage show. He's an accomplished accordionist. He has had 40 songs published, his publicity agent says.

After playing pro basketball for a while after being graduated from Yale, the handsome Lavelli turned to music as a career. He has appeared in night clubs and theaters around the world.

First Proclamation Designates Week

National Crime Prevention week was given official recognition in Oregon by Gov. Robert Holmes Tuesday when he signed his first proclamation since becoming governor. The statement designates the week for Feb. 10-17 in keeping with the national program being sponsored by Exchange clubs. On hand with the Governor here were (left to right) Irvin Bryan, Oregon district governor of Exchange club; Dr. Dan Wiles, president of Salem Exchange club; Salem Police Chief Clyde Warren; Judge Joseph Felton, president of Salem community council, and Art Handly, secretary of Salem Exchange club. City Problems Form Theme of 'Blighted' Film

ACTION Production Billed at Leslie Thursday Night

City problems form the theme of "Our Blighted City," a show aimed at developing better homes, neighborhoods and communities, which is to be shown at Leslie Junior High school at a p.m. Thursday.

The wide screen production which includes animation, cartoons, black and white color pictures and movies, has been produced by Life magazine for the American Council to Improve Our Neighborhoods (ACTION).

Sponsoring the showing here are the Salem Junior Woman's club, the Salem Chamber of Commerce and the City of Salem.

Narrating will be David Hardy, noted lecturer and foreign correspondent.

In addition to presenting some of the problems which exist in cities, the production also shows what some cities have done to correct them.

Bus Franchise

Thursday night for adoption of some definite plan of bus operation.

City Ownership Alternative
The only alternative to the plan approved Wednesday morning by the Salem council would be municipal ownership, it was said. This would require a vote of the people and no one in the council believed the people would approve it.

The franchise, as planned, will be flexible. It will require registration with the city so the city can inspect buses, establish driver qualifications, and require an annual accounting to see that the franchise holder was receiving no more than a fair return on investment. The central agency would regulate fares and routes.

There is a possibility that Salem will be without bus service of any kind for a time between March 1 and the time when new operators take over. City Transit Lines gave the city an ultimatum that, because of financial stress, it would quit operation March 1 unless the city accepted the lease plan. Efforts will be made to expedite negotiations so this can be avoided.

Suggestions made at the meeting were that the Yellow Cab Company, which runs taxicabs here, might be interested in the franchise; although that company has not been contacted. It also was suggested that some trucking concern might be interested.

Council members and City Manager Mathewson were emphatic that Salem is under obligations to furnish bus service for the benefit of persons who have no other means of transportation. Numerous letters have reached the manager and the council from persons insisting on the necessity of service.

There is no probability that the new operators will take over the vehicles of the present system. A smaller type of vehicle is probable.

President Recent Freeze Harm to Roads Still Unknown

Stanley Grove, manager of the Salem Chamber of Commerce, was elected president of the Oregon Chamber Executives association at its meeting in Portland Tuesday.

Stanley Grove Heads Oregon Chamber Unit

PORTLAND (UP) — Stanley Grove, manager of the Salem Chamber of Commerce, yesterday was named president of Oregon Chamber Executives.

Other officers of the group elected yesterday were Fred Schneider, manager of the La Grande chamber as vice president and R. Frank Tucker, manager of the Klamath Falls chamber as secretary-treasurer.

The election climaxed a two-day meeting here of the Oregon and Washington Chamber managers and executives.

Named to the board of directors were Dave Baum, La Grande; M. M. Huggins, Medford; Orle Bagley, Cottage Grove; David C. Duncan, Portland; George Bartsch, Hood River; Malcolm MacEwan, Seaside; Ron Monroe, Springfield; R. V. Hillbrand, Milwaukie; Burford Wilkerson, Tillamook; and Verne Finnerfist, Pendleton.

FARMER RETURNS
GERVAIS (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Schindler and family have been welcomed back by friends to the Gervais area where they plan to resume farming at Rt. 1, Gervais. The Schindlers moved to Milwaukie last spring to become associated in the dairy business but returned during the past week.

Week, 10 Days Needed To Find Extent of Damage to System

Marion county roads may have suffered considerable damage from the recent freeze, although this cannot be determined before a week or 10 days have elapsed. This was the opinion voiced during Wednesday's session of the commissioners by members of the engineering department.

Frank Woelke, county road foreman, reported that the surface of some of the oiled roads is breaking up in spots which will result in chuck holes being gouged out by passing vehicles. "We can take care of the gravel roads without too much trouble, but the condition of some of the oiled roads worry me," said Woelke.

The crumbling surfaces mean that more attention should be given to a resealing program, commented Engineer John Anderson. If left too long without a fresh sealing coat being applied, the surface becomes dry, breaks up and is scattered by vehicles, light as well as heavy.

Anderson said the recent order fixing a 10,000 pound load limit had virtually closed the county road system in heavy hauling. Anderson said that repairs should not be undertaken until the roads have had a chance to settle.
