Asphalt Concrete

Asphalt Penetration Macadam

Compacted Stone, Slag or Gravel Subbase

ABOVE: Cut-away view of typical modern asphalt highway shows how strength for the loads of the future is built up by layers. These layers spread the load... hug the earth... absorb shock and pounding without cracking.

Here's why you'll enjoy smooth riding comfort for years to come on modern ASPHALT highways

Look how these highways are built from the ground up! They're engineered for rugged wear... constructed to stand up under today's heavy traffic load... designed to make driving a pleasure for you for years to come.

And what a pleasure driving is on modern Asphalt highways! No other paving material is as quiet... as relaxing... as smooth to ride on. The seamless surface has no expansion joints... to play a monotonous tattoo of thump... thump... thump on your eardrums—or your car. The traffic stripes are easier to see... help you drive more safely. And Asphalt absorbs glare... prevents those pesky strain of bright reflections. In winter months, snow and ice melt quickly... your way ahead is clear, quicker. Asphalt pavements are not harmed by de-icing chemicals, either!

All this comfort and safety is built-in—to last... in durable modern Asphalt pavement. And, at low cost per mile, enabling Highway Engineers to plan more miles of up-to-date roads for your tax dollars. Yes, modern Asphalt highways benefit you, the taxpayer... as well as you, the driver. Get more of the facts. Send for the new booklet, "From The Ground Up."

TOMORROW'S SUPER-HIGHWAY NETWORK!

This 41,000-mile network of heavy-duty Interstate roads, linking every state and most major cities is called the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways. This entire network is to be improved and constructed to meet modern traffic needs using a bill passed by Congress and signed by the President.

Building roads for the future is a job ideally suited to modern Asphalt construction. Asphalt highways are not only lower in initial cost, they can be widened, resurfaced, and reconstructed to meet changing traffic demands more quickly and at less cost than roads surfaced with any other pavement.
