VIET BUDGET DEBATED
SAIGON — South Viet Nam's national Legislative Assembly began an extraordinary 10-day session Monday to debate President Ngo Dinh Diem's budget for 1957.

Today in Salem

Maybe it's true what they say about Texans throwing away their diamond rings when they get dirty.

At least, city police are wondering after finding a 1956 Cadillac with Texas license plates abandoned on a downtown street. Nope, it's not stolen, either. Texas authorities say. The guy who owned it left El Paso recently and reportedly was to meet someone in Oregon. Mapsnap he left here with his friend.

The Cadillac WAS a bit dirty, officers noted.

David Hardy, producer and narrator of the movie shown here last week by and for ACTION (American Council to Improve Our Neighborhoods), says the biggest problem that Salem has in getting some action in community planning is that it doesn't have a major problem.

That may sound contradictory at first hearing, he pointed out, but it's true. Problems in the Willamette valley are comparatively minor at the moment. But with the terrific influx of population expected here in the next decade or two, the area will suddenly find itself with a number of major problems and everyone will be screaming, "Why didn't somebody plan ahead?"

Slums are on the way toward being a major problem now, he said. Not the tenement-type slums of the big cities, but the "shack city" type of blighted area that shows in a few spots around Salem now. Planning and community pride can prevent it, he said.

City Manager Kent Mathewson took considerable kidding from Hardy at an informal gathering after the show and lecture. It seems that the CM had left his cigarettes somewhere, so several times he had to "borrow" one from Hardy.

"Boy, you've got a regular moocher here for a city manager," Hardy grinned. "He ought to save you money."

"What's the matter?" he asked later. "Didn't they have cigarettes in Virginia? I bet he stepped outside and pulled a couple of tobacco leaves off a plant and rolled his own."

Mathewson retaliated later in the evening by giving Hardy a king-sized cigar and insisting that he smoke it then and there. He didn't, though. It was tucked away in his coat pocket.

Hardy, in return, said he didn't mind being kidded about his accent as long as it wasn't referred to as British. A good Irishman won't stand still for that, he said.

Hardy and Secretary of State Mark Hatfield got off into a corner for a few words and found they have a number of things in common.

A mention of China brought forth the discovery that both were familiar with some of the same area. Mark had delivered troops in the area with the navy air wing, Hardy, as a British Commando, had helped deliver secret agents ashore and had been on missions in the area. Spent some time there after the war, too.

The two also had some similar political thoughts, but their discussion wasn't offered for public record.

Gain Announced In Postal Receipts
A gain of approximately seven per cent in postal receipts during the second period of the year has been shown as compared with a similar period a year ago. Postmaster Albert C. Gragg announced Monday.

Receipts for the period just ended were $86,743, as against $80,975 a year ago. For the first two periods of 1957 the increase was approximately five per cent.

The legislative session may be responsible for a portion of the increase, reports the postmaster.

Saddler Feels Better; Relief Drive Goes On

17 Collection Bottles Spread Throughout Salem Area

Jerry Saddler, confined in an iron lung since being stricken with infantile paralysis last week, was reported cheerful and with good morale at Salem Memorial hospital Monday.

Attendants at the hospital said he was making "good improvement."

The campaign to provide funds for Saddler and his family is continuing in three different phases. Saturday collection jars were placed in a number of businesses and public places in the Salem area. Each bears the label "Jerry Saddler Polio Relief Fund."

The jars were prepared by Mrs. Eugene E. Johnson, 1389 N.W. St., who said 17 jars were distributed and that others would be given on request.

Two other funds have been established for Saddler. Some 100 fellow workers at Mayflower Milk company have pledged $1 a month and a group of women are staging a series of "chain" benefit coffees.

Funds from the coffees are being placed in the Commercial Bank of Salem in a special account credited to Mrs. Saddler. The account stood at $77.25 at the close of business Saturday.

Legislature
Most of the Thornton measures are outgrowths of the Multnomah county vice investigation.

Would Bar Threats
Another bill would amend the conspiracy statute so that it would be a crime for a person to use threats or force to prevent another person from carrying on his occupation, or to obstruct justice or the administration of law. It also would be a conspiracy to commit any act injurious to the public health, morals, trade or commerce.

The other Thornton measures would grant immunity from prosecution when a person gives self-incriminating evidence, make it illegal for public employees to accept gifts, and set up stiffer penalties for gambling.

The house taxation committee began hearing evidence on a bill to make it illegal for the state to levy a property tax. This bill would repeal the law under which a property tax is levied automatically when there isn't enough other revenue to run the state.

The senate taxation committee will hear evidence Monday night from Multnomah County taxpayers who are protesting against higher property taxes on homes.

The 50 per cent increase in state school support now in the Joint Ways and Means Committee, had appeared to be a sure thing, but some Democrats said Monday they don't think the state can afford the 30 million dollars a biennium that it would cost.

President of the Senate Boyd Overhiser (D), Madras, said he thought about 10 million would be enough.

His statement was in line with the recommendation of the Oregon State Labor Council.

Two new pieces of milk legislation were introduced in the House Monday. One, by the Food and Dairy Committee, would make it illegal to add water to milk. The other, by Rep. Joe Rogers (D), Independence, would license milk dealers.

Reps. Robert L. Elstrom (R), Salem, and Eddie Ahrens (R), Turner, introduced a proposed constitutional amendment to permit a 15 million dollar bond issue for new state institution buildings. It was requested by state Treasurer Sig. Under.

Rep. Grace O. Peck (D), Portland, chairman of the House Public Welfare Committee, sponsored a new bill to build a one million dollar correctional institution for women.

It would be completely separate from the penitentiary, and could be used for county jail inmates, as well as women sentenced to penitentiary terms.

The Board of Control has asked for a $725,000 women's unit, to be built outside the walls of the prison, but to be under prison administration.

The Legislature will hold a joint session at 10 a.m. Tuesday to pay tribute to Abraham Lincoln. The speaker will be Dr. Howard W. Runkel, speech professor at Willamette University. The program will last a half hour.

Speaker

Dr. Howard W. Runkel, chairman of the speech and drama department at Willamette university, will deliver the Lincoln Day address before the legislature at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Runkel Slated For Lincoln Day Address

Dr. Howard W. Runkel, head of the department of speech and drama at Willamette university, will be the principal speaker at the Lincoln Day services at the Oregon legislature Tuesday at 10 a.m.

The program has been arranged by four Marion county legislators, Sens. Lee V. Olmstead and Sidney Schlesinger and Reps. Robert L. Elstrom and Guy Jones.

The house and senate will convene in joint session with Gov. Robert D. Holmes and other state officials in attendance.

Johnny Carpenter, radio and television announcer, will sing the national anthem, followed by the invocation by the Rev. James Harris.

The capella choir of Willamette university will sing both before and following Dr. Runkel's address.

2 Gas Leaks Repaired Here

Two weekend gas line leaks were reported by city police and firemen. The lines were quickly repaired.

There was no danger, Portland Gas and Coke company officials said, as the minor leaks were in the open and would have been burned with a small flame if ignited.

One leakage was reported late Saturday night in the 1000 block of Hunt street and the other Sunday night in an alley west of Sunday street off Belmont street.

There was no danger and no interruption of service, PG&C district manager Joseph Dodd said.

Norstad Bargains

LONDON — Gen. Lauris Norstad, Supreme Allied Commander in Europe, arrived Monday for two days of tough bargaining talks with government officials anxious to reduce Britain's military forces.

Police Arrest 2nd Burglary Suspect Here

Dale Robinson Picked Up Sunday Near Restaurant

The second of two men, acquitted Friday on burglary charges, was arrested Sunday afternoon in connection with another burglary, city police reported.

Officers arrested Dale Neilon Robinson, 28, Bakersfield, Calif., after finding him hiding in bushes near Shattuc's Chateau restaurant 2895 Silverton Rd. They were called to the area on a report that a man had been seen walking around the building.

The new charge against Robinson involves the last October entry of the Norris Walker Paint company, 1719 North Front St. Also being held in connection with the charge is Philip Thomas Tupper, 27, Sandy, who was arrested Friday immediately after the trial in which he and Robinson were found innocent of charges of burglary of the L. E. Hammer garage, 1485 Pine St.

The two burglaries occurred the same night. The two men were arrested in Portland after a car chase in Salem in which the car was wrecked and two men fled on foot, city police said.

Non-Tax Bill Passes House

The house passed and sent to the Senate Monday a bill that would prevent county assessors from collecting personal property taxes on campus fraternity and sorority houses.

The legislation, recommended by the legislative interim tax study committee, resulted from an opinion by the attorney general that assessors could go back five years and pick up tax levies on the student living organizations.

The living groups now pay real property taxes.

Rev. Edwin E. Cone (R), Eugene, said the disputed assessment would amount to only $10,000 in Benton and Lane counties where Oregon State college and the University of Oregon are located.

Similar legislation was introduced in the Senate by Sen. Francis Ziegler (R), Corvallis.

Safecrackings

Nothing was missing from the feed and supply store, state and county officers said. A door was jimmied to gain entry.

An attempted break-in at the Tun-A-Lum Lumber company, 3215 South Commercial St., was reported to the sheriff's office. A window was pried open but apparently the thief was frightened off without gaining entry, Sheriff Young said.

Another weekend burglary in Salem involved the Hollywood Ice Cream store, 2234 Fairgrounds Rd., where about $100 was taken from a can in a freezer. Some cigarettes and cookies were also reported missing by owner Gail Jones. The burglary occurred Saturday night.

A McDonald Candy company truck was broken into sometime Friday night while it was parked on a lot at Wolgamoot's service station, 1090 South 12th St., police said. An undetermined amount of beer was taken from it. Several cases of beer were also taken from a company truck Thursday night while it was parked at a company lot at 1375 Howard St. Paddocks were broken or cut in each case to open the trucks.

Farmers Looking for Better Prices, Harley Libby Says

OFU Prexy Gives Opinions in Interview

By CLAUDE STEUSLOFF
Capital Journal Writer
Most farmers hope "a little better" prices are coming, Harley Libby, said in an interview just after being installed for the fourth time as president of the Oregon State Farmers Union in Salem, Saturday afternoon.

"We expect some benefits from the re-assessment program, now going on in Oregon, but feel that real property is paying more than its fair load of educational demands," Libby stated.

A panel discussion on education at the convention brought out the feeling that the state board of education requirements on new school construction are too rigid. Mrs. Paul Youngman of McMinnville said costly architect fees could be cut if local school boards were allowed to select their choice from standard plans for substantial school buildings based on utility.

In legislative work the Farmer Union "will request a economy where economy can be constructively employed," Libby indicated.

Want Benefits
"In stressing the family size farm we have no desire to protect inefficiency, we recognize and believe in increased benefits inherent from good management," the farm leader continued.

Minors who do agricultural work such as hoeing, plowing or bean stringing must be paid 50 cents per hour. Minors who pick produce by the pound, hallock or box will be exempt, Norman Nilson, state labor commissioner, told the delegates. He said a public hearing is to be held March 11 in Portland for final disposition of the picking exemption.

An active campaign by the public health department to increase use of the new sample supplies of Salk vaccine for polio immunization was requested in a resolution passed by the delegates.

A n o t h e r approved resolution would permit money collected from trading stamps, not redeemed within five years, to be impounded and placed in the Basic School fund. A companion action requested legislation to make the use of merchandise coupons illegal.

Families Hard Hit
Some 400 families in the Milton-Freewater area, hard hit by the freeze of November, 1955, received approval of their resolution that in a disaster area farmers may file for maximum social security benefits, regardless of their gross income.

O t h e r approved resolutions were: Request early start on construction of Green Peter dam; request federal government use the soil bank to sow grass seeds in south areas; request sufficient funds for protection of Willamette river banks from high water damage due to influence of newly constructed dams; request high legislative priority for a new youth dormitory at the state fairgrounds after due reference to cost and need; request a hearing by the state labor commissioner regarding the age limitation for electrician apprentices.

Two Dewey Cummins, not the same man but father and son, both of Kings Valley, were elected vice presidents of the state group. One will serve the adult and one the junior division.

Henry Dixon, Milton-Freewater, Robert Elkin, Malalla, and Ammon Grice, Salem, were elected to the board of directors.

Other junior officers are: David Cunningham, Linn county, president; Janice Jeros, Washington county, secretary, and Sharon Johnson, Linn county, reporter.
