

THIS IS WHERE I CAME IN'

Big 3 Talks Have Monotony Ring

By WARREN ROGERS JR. WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower consults in the next few weeks with his British and French counterparts, and many of the issues facing them have a "This is where I came in" familiarity about them.

British and French leaders, then Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Premier Joseph Laniel. Big Three unity, European defense, German reunification, disarmament, Middle East tension—all these were awaiting resolution at the December 1953 Bermuda talks.

In 1953 European defenses were staggering in the face of French opposition to rearming West Germany. That particular hurdle has been crossed. But European defenses are threatened again. This time it is primarily because Britain, in economic straits, is trying to cut down on its four-division contribution.

Accused Spies Plead Innocent

NEW YORK — Two men and a woman charged with spying for Russia pleaded innocent yesterday and were ordered held without bail for a trial possibly beginning March 18.

The government had asked continuation of $100,000 bail each for the trio, Jack Soble, his wife Myra, and Jacob Albam. U.S. Atty. Paul Williams said the government was willing to start the trial March 18, but "it is the obvious intent of the defendants to put off the trial as long as possible."

NW 'To Grow' As Aluminum

PORTLAND — As aluminum grows, so will the Pacific Northwest, Ken Johnson of the Reynolds Metals Co. said yesterday. A vice president of that firm, he told the Rotary Club the aluminum industry is 10 times larger than before World War II and predicted it will double the next decade.

He spoke of growing use of aluminum in the automobile industry and in construction. Johnson said his company now employs 900 persons at its Troutdale, Ore., plant and 500 at Longview, Wash. He reported the company payrolls at $4,800,000 annually at Troutdale and $2,900,000 at Longview.

HARD TO DETECT

Medics Warn of Whiplash Injuries

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. — A panel of surgeons today recommended that persons injured in automobile accidents be examined for possible hidden "whiplash injuries" — those caused by a sudden snapping back of the head. The surgeons said these often occur when a car is struck from the rear. The panel said in statements prepared for delivery that whiplash injuries are common because many collisions involve cars standing still. The discussion took place at the end of the Mid-Atlantic Regional Meeting of the U. S. Section, International College of Surgeons.

"It is only when the symptoms occur at a later date that the patient comes to the orthopedist or neurosurgeon for assistance," he said, adding that such injuries often involve the nerves in the unprotected back of the neck. Listed symptoms include pain of a neuralgic type over a large part of the neck or headaches, often with some degree of concussion. If the force of the strike is at an angle, Dr. McIntire said, a severe rotation of the neck will cause other symptoms, including muscular spasms, dizziness, nausea and inability to see properly. "Very often symptoms do not arise, in cases where there have been no fractures, for a period of many years," he added. "Early treatment is important and that means early diagnosis. Every injury of the cervical spine should be investigated promptly, for it is at this period that much can be done."
