Chief Brown Transferred To Glenview

Chief James E. Brown, who came to Salem in March, 1949, with the original station keeper group at the Salem Naval Air Reserve facility and since then has been in charge of the personnel section there, will leave here Feb. 28 for duty at the Glenview Naval Air station, near Chicago. Going with Brown to the new assignment will be his wife and their two children.

Chief Brown is the second one of the original station keeper group to go to duty at Glenview and the fifth of the original group to leave the Salem facility the past year. Chief Robert Dant, hospital corps man at the facility, left for duty at Glenview last November.

Woodburn

too bad. Nearly everyone who comes into the store is talking about it today, and most of them are unhappy about it."
"It's much to be regretted," said Richard Grabshorn, "for it undoubtedly would have been of great benefit, not only to real estate, but for all business in the area."

At Gervais Emil Ronner, merchant and member of the city council, said that "while I have always felt that it was a questionable item, I think that overall, if it had come as a permanent thing, it would have been good for the community. So far the worst part of it has been letting it hang fire for the farmers, who have been uncertain what to do about their plans and their property."

"No Regret"
No regret was expressed by Mayor T. L. Workman of Woodburn. "We are glad to get it settled," he said. "We are growing anyway, and don't feel to a badly about it. It had the farmers considerably upset."

Some of the farmers in the area said they were glad the project had been cancelled. This was true among Fairfield residents, well represented by Mrs. D. B. DuRoth, who said "it is like being taken out of hot water after a whole year."

"Everybody out here will be happy," said Mrs. Percy Moore, also of Fairfield.
Mrs. Killian Smith of Woodburn wasn't happy about it, but declared the "area will grow anyway." Her husband has started a subdivision in the Woodburn district, mainly because of the supposed airbase project.

Freshman Glee Plans Readied At Willamette

Juniors Get Favorite Rating for 49th Annual Event
Rules for Willamette university's 49th annual "Freshman Glee" have been compiled and distributed by the glee committee in preparation for the event on March 16.

The song competition between classes will this year have the theme, "Alma Mater," and song writers from each class will compose original words and music to be set to a marching formation based on the theme. Then classes will turn out one week prior to glee for "three-daily practices" in marching and singing.

A total of 360 points is possible for any class to achieve in order to win the glee. Four judges for presentation and three for words and music will determine who wins the glee banner.
Points will be awarded in the following manner: music, 20 points; words, 20 points; vocal rendition, 40 points; formation, 20 points.

No stage properties nor change in appearance of wearing apparel is permitted other than a backdrop constructed by the freshman class. Therefore, in order to carry out a theme in formation, classes use different colored costumes on the stage.

For the past two years, the class of 1959, the juniors, has won the glee, first with a novelty tune, "Jason Daddly," and last year with a tangulike serenade, "Rose Marie." Therefore, they are favored to be the victors again, while the senior class, which lost and had to swim the waters of the mill race one year ago, is figured to be the "dunking" class once again.

Coroner Bill Goes to Senate

A bill to require that county coroners must be funeral directors, embalmers, physicians or surgeons was introduced in the Legislature Friday by Sen. Carl Francis (R.) Dayton.
It follows the approval by the people of a constitutional amendment last November to let the Legislature fix qualifications for coroners.

The new bill would not apply to any coroner now holding office.
Surviving are a son, Col. Kenneth O. Schellberg in France with the army; two nieces, Mrs. Daisy Dillard, Stayton, and Mrs. Jack Owens, Fallbrook, Calif.; and two grandchildren.

Y Classes Train Future U.S. Citizens

Future United States citizens are learning about their adopted country's government and its constitution in a class being conducted every Friday at the YMCA.
The "Y" has been conducting the class for several years as a public service to those who are seeking to become U. S. citizens. Claude Kells is instructor.

1956 First Citizen Beams Her Joy

Salem's new First Citizen, Mrs. Bernard O. Schucking, was the happiest person in the city Friday night after getting the surprising announcement at the annual award banquet. Mrs. Schucking, who has lived in Salem all her life and participated in countless community services, holds the award plaque with the bouquet of roses which she made herself to give to "the first citizen's wife." (Capital Journal Photo).

Candidate Ankrom Here For Duty as AF Recruiter

Master Sgt. Merlin W. Ankrom, U. S. air force, arrived in Salem this week to take over his duties as a recruiter for the air force, coming from two years of duty with the 317th fighter squadron at McChord AFB, Tacoma, Wash.
Ankrom, an air force man since August, 1947, prior to that had a year and a half of duty with the naval reserves, and seven years of service with the marine corps. Five and one-half years of the time he was in the marine corps was on overseas duty and four years of that was spent in a prison in Japan. The sergeant was taken prisoner by the Japanese on Guam on the third day of World War II. Coming to Salem with Sgt. Ankrom were his wife, Frances, and daughter, Merlene. The family resides at 3459 Rawlins St.

Willner Inspects Mental Facilities At State Hospital

State Rep. Don Willner (D-Portland) this week inspected the Oregon State hospital. Willner pointed out that doctors at the hospital can average about four minutes spent weekly with ordinary treatment of patients and 19 minutes with those with intensive treatment. He further noted that he was convinced increased legislative attention is required for the problems of mentally ill and expressed surprise over the fact that the hospital has only one trained recreation therapist and a two trained occupational therapists.

Salem YMCA Member Drive Passes Quota

The Salem YMCA went over the top in its membership drive here Friday. One of the last to sign up was none other than Oregon Gov. Robert D. Holmes.

With a one-week extension and some added work, the "Y" reached a figure of 1,086 in its drive. This topped the quota which had already been set.

Total membership of the "Y" now exceeds 4,500, according to Carl Greider, adult program director of the organization.
The campaign was the biggest membership push ever staged by the Salem YMCA. It came about from the expanded program and facilities made available by the addition of the new youth wing.

Charles Nielsen was top individual campaigner with a total of 36 new members. Top division honors went to the women's division with 276 new members. Mrs. Lyle Bayne, Salem, with 19 and Mrs. Robert Norton, Stayton, with 16 new members were the high women campaigners.

PASSES $600 MARK Saddler Still in Lung; Fund Push Continues

Contributions made for the fund for Salem's polio victim, Jerome Saddler, 27, of 727 Menlo Dr., have passed the $600 mark.
Saddler, who has been described by attendants at the Salem Memorial hospital as "doing as well as can be expected" has been in an iron lung for the past two weeks.

Those contributions made to the fund to aid Saddler are being deposited in a local bank, with total amount banked Friday being $544.47. However, there are still other contributions that have not been banked.

By Friday a total of $159.62 had been donated through the Mayflower Dairy where he was employed. This was from customers on his route, fellow employees and other persons and most of it had been banked.
Members of the Employees association at the dairy plan to make contributions to the fund each pay day, which is twice weekly, and expect that approximately $100 will be received each pay day from the 75 members of the association.

Still other contributions have come to the fund from a series of coffees given by Salem women and contributions are also being made in donation jars at various places. The jars were distributed under the direction of Mrs. Eugene Zuger, 1369 Norway St.
