Pendleton East Oregonian, on economic trends and prospects in all parts of Oregon. By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Cattle and wheat are the great bases for the economy of the counties of Eastern Oregon. But there are strong additions to this economy in some, and notable expansions of it in others. Completing a survey of the economy and trends in Oregon's counties, J. W. Forrester Jr., editor of the Pendleton East Oregon dian, found encouragement in the county may or projected. This is the way he viewed them:

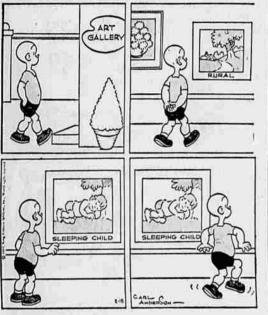

Malheur County — Great cattle county — Six million acres of land are under irrigation, the water bringing a dramatic example of agricultural growth. Before irrigation, Malheur's economy as all beef cattle and hay. Now it is all broadly diversified agriculture with a 31 million dollar business; food processing; and ment packing; and ment packing against the tide in one respect. It is a county of smalls farms and there are more farms now than there were when the 1930 census was taken. Even greater agricultural production can be looked for. Baker County — There has been trouble here and a falling off in agriculture, but that has been checked. The situation now is stable and the possibility of irrigation—and at the same time for checking floods—which can bring a strong upturn in farm crops.

Lumbering floods—which can bring a strong upturn in farm crops.

A new plant to burn high chemical grade lime is being built at Baker. The quest for various minerals is being stepped up in the county to determine whether those known to exist are present in commercial quantities. quantities

Union County — As in Baker Union County needs dams both for flood control and for irriga-tion. However, the most likely irtion. However, the most likely irrigation rivers promise high cost reclamation so the immediate likelihood is for some channel straightening to check floods, and no important irrigation dams. Although irrigation would help the agricultural outlook the county is doing well. A more diversified farm picture is developing with attention to grass seeds especially attention to grass seeds especially noticeable. The county's agricultural income of around 11 million dollars a year has wheat as its No. 1 Inctor—some 2½ million dollars—and seed crops now come in second place ahead of beef cattle, which themselves account for most themselves account for most themselves. which themselves account fo more than a million dollars in in

But one of the most hopeful fields for future prosperity lies in the incomparable scenery of Union and the county for which it is the gateway, Wallowa. A movie company which filmed "Pillard in the Sky" in Union county left behind some three quarters of a million dollars! And there is a lot more movie scenery around.

Umatilla County — This county produces one per cent of all the wheat grown in the United States—and yet in dollar volume lumbering runs right side-by-side with agriculture. Although wheat is big, it is only one part of the diversified picture.

The county took a severe loss. Movie Scenery

The county took a severe loss in the 1955 freeze and it's not yet certain what recovery will be made from it. The crop of prunes, apples, cherries and peaches was worth $1,700,000 in 1955—and brought only $897 last year! This orchard tree kill has brought hardships but the economy as a model is overrowing that? hardships but the economy as a whole is overcoming that and looks good for the future. There is a start being made on cattle feeding, which could become important. The county is producing an increasing amount of corn and there is talk of stepping up swine production. Meat animals, wool, lurkeys all are major income items.

Full utilization of wood had some of its pioneering applications in Umatilla County and such large operations as Harris Pine Mills, Pilot Rock Lamber Co. and U. S. Gypsum's hardboard plant have profited from this. Privately owned timber stands are being depleted by the several small operators and the annual cut in the county may, in later years, be reduced by as much as a half. However there are large stands in the hands of big operators and federal timber is available.
