Wedding Dress Designer Visits Here

An engineer who now designs an exclusive line of wedding dresses, because, he says, there is a challenging engineering problem there, too, William Cahill of Beverly Hills, was a visitor in Salem Saturday to present his new collection of wedding frocks.

He and his charming wife, who was here with him, have just completed a tour that took them to New York City and Washington, D.C. and back across the country with stops at Minneapolis, Denver, Salt Lake City, Seattle, Portland, and other cities, the array of spring and summer wedding dresses being presented at each place.

A husky, jovial person, Mr. Cahill says he got his start with wedding dresses when a relative asked him to design one for her wedding. That was about 11 years ago and he is still at it with increasing success each year. He still keeps up his engineering interest in building lines, although the main interest is his field of wedding dresses. He also designs formal and debutante dresses, and has been creating dresses for both the Portland Rose Festival and the Pasadena Tournament of Roses.

Mrs. Cahill's glamorous collection of wedding dresses was shown here Saturday afternoon at a special program in Meier & Frank's Salem store.

Most of the showing was of lace and tulle frocks, many of the Chantilly lace patterns being the designer's own; and there were some orandy and taffeta creations. All the materials were combined in a sensational dress for the finale in the show-orandy, ap-

Social Club

The Social club of Chadwick chapter, Order of Eastern Star, enjoyed a program significant of Lincoln's birthday at its meeting last week.

Mrs. Carrie Peterson read the Gettysburg address and musical numbers were provided by Miss Carol Smith and Miss Sue Zwickle of the Ronald Craven studio.

Mrs. Effie King conducted a business session following the program.

HOSTESS for an informal tea Saturday afternoon was Mrs. Clifford Mudd, entertaining to honor her mother-in-law, Mrs. Effie Mudd, on the occasion of the latter's 80th birthday anniversary. Guests included 42 neighborhood friends and members of the American War Mothers to which the honoree belongs.

FALLS CITY (Special)—Magnolia Bebekak, No. 140, enjoyed a Valentine and handkerchief exchange at their regular meeting last week.

The refreshment committee, composed of Mrs. Arthur Mack, Mrs. Lloyd Ames, Mrs. Fred Dornbecker and Millie Wray served heart-shaped cakes.
