Today in Salem

It was a cooperative prisoner city police arrested recently on a bad check charge.

It seems that they had left him alone in detectives' office to make a phone call to his family. He finished call and then answered when phone rang with call for one of detectives.

"This is Sheriff Ipswitch of Backwater county," said the caller. "Do you know anything about a guy named Engelhart Snarf. We want him for questioning about some bad checks."

"You don't have to look any farther, Sheriff," the prisoner replied. "I'm right here." He turned the phone over to the officer who had come in to answer it.

"And, boy! There are some fictitious names if I ever heard any."

Latest guess as to when KOCO will go back on air is March 1. It may not be KOCO any more. New owners are considering changing call letters.

Broadcasting will be from new quarters in Eagles Lodge building in 300 block on North High Street.

Embarrassing moment for Mrs. Harry Palladay, president of the Oregon Federation of Republican Women, at their meeting here Tuesday.

She got confused in the introductions and introduced state Senator Boyd Overhulse as Robert Overhulse and Mayor Robert White as Mayor Boyd White.

My friend Archibald suggested that maybe she should be excused since, after all, why should a good Republican be expected to remember Democrat Overhulse's name. He also thought that Bob White has been kidded enough about his bird-like name that he didn't mind being mistaken for a Boyd (ouch!).

Overhulse, incidentally, hasn't pulled a Morse and switched parties. He was invited to the Republican shindig as a personal guest of one of the brass and was introduced because he's top man on senate lotem pole.

This is the week to honor both the big truth and the big lie. It's the 21st anniversary of Washington's birth and the 272nd anniversary of the first Texas (La-Salle established the first settlement there in 1655).

There are some 4,500,000 families in the U.S. with two cars, says Highway Highlights magazine. To look at any road leading from the state capital five minutes after five weekdays, you'd swear that they were all on the road at once. And the mag predicts that there will be 10 million two-buggy homes by 1965.

Charge Against City Officials Made at Meet

Local Civil Service Unit Told Eight Have Had Other Jobs

Charges that seven Salem firemen and a city police officer have been working at jobs other than their city duties were voiced at the meeting of the Salem civil service commission Wednesday afternoon.

Proof of the charges would mean dismissal of the men from the city payroll as civil service regulations prohibit outside employment in jobs not connected with their duties.

Charges Made
Charges were leveled at the eight men in two letters from the Salem Trades and Union Council, W. J. Entress, chairman of the commission, said it was the first occasion when protests concerning outside employment had been registered with the commission from a citizen or group.

The letters charged that Peter F. McCaffery and Dene D. Ray, of the fire department, had been working with a local radio and television firm and that firemen G. A. Noffsinger, Ray Tompkins, Dick L. Craven, Ronald Ruck and Gerald Hall and police patrolman LaVerne Jenness, were engaged in building a house for profit under Hall's direction.

The commission indicated that hearings on the charges would be held but no definite date has yet been set.

Delay Certification
Members of the commission also delayed certification of recent fire and police department examinations until information on all of the applicants is complete.

Chief Robert Mills said that apparently through some misunderstanding, some of the applicants had not received a final check. The delay of certification was enacted to enable them to do so.

Appointment of Benjamin Bartell and Kenneth L. Burnett to rank of captain was reported as was the naming of Allen G. Tompkins as a regular member of the department.

Forty persons, most of them fire department members, were present at the meeting.

Vehicle Check Program Brings Award

Salem was commended for its traffic safety program Wednesday when a national achievement certificate was presented to Mayor Robert White (left) for a vehicle check program conducted by the junior chamber of commerce last summer. Walter Lunsford (center), Inter-Industry Highway Safety representative, presents the award while Ben Fortner, chairman of the Jaycee vehicle check committee, looks on proudly. The city of Salem has received a national certificate of achievement for the vehicle safety-check program conducted last August by the Salem Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Walter Holman Dies in Salem

Thomas Walter Holman, employee of the Sicks Brewery here for about 10 years before his retirement and a late resident of the Orchard Heights Rd., at Rt. 1, box 839, died at his home early Thursday morning. He had had a heart ailment for several months and death was from a heart attack.

Born at Corvallis, May 26, 1889, Holman was the son of the late Walter Holman and of Adelaide Holman Dalrymple, now of Portland. His family was among the early settlers of Oregon. With his family Holman, when a boy moved to Dallas and later came to the Saem area. Holman retired as sales manager with Sicks here in 1953. He was a member of the Episcopal church and of Salem Lodge No. 336, BPOE.

Surviving are his wife, the former Viola Vercher of Salem to whom he was married July 25, 1912; his mother, Adelaide Dalrymple, Portland; a sister, Mrs. Helene Knapp, Portland; and a brother, Denton Dalrymple, Wash., Wash.

Funeral services will be held at the Clough-Barrick chapel Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock with concluding services private.

Highway Safety committee presented the certificate Wednesday to Mayor Robert White and to Ben Fortner, chairman of the Jaycee vehicle check committee. Also on hand to view the presentation was Paul E. Lippold of the Salem Citizens Advisory Traffic Council.

During the two days of the Salem program, 372 cars were checked and of that number 157 were found to have mechanical defects. Lunsford stated that this was a higher percentage than the national average which runs about one defective vehicle out of every four checked.

Of the cars checked in Salem, the following faults were listed by the committee: exhaust system, 55; defective rear lights, 49; broken or clouded glass, 41; defective tires, 31; defective brakes, 25; defective headlights, 19; defective steering, 17, and windshield wipers, 8.

Lunsford commended the Jaycees and the assisting organizations for conducting the check program. The groups assisting were Allstate Insurance company, Marion County Lifesavers, New Car Dealers' association and Valley Motor company.

The vehicle safety check program will again be conducted nationally during the month of May and will be sponsored by the Inter-Industry Safety committee, the National Safety Council and Look magazine. Salem is again planning to take part in this national program.

6 Schools Get

This year's project included stories concerning the Bill of Rights and other American history subjects and a large mural map of U. S. cities and highways.

Richmond also won its fourth consecutive award. It received library awards in 1954 and 1955 and a gold medal last year. A mural depicting American history and a scrapbook of Richmond school activities were the principal portions of the entry.

Leslie, which won an honor medal last year, duplicated the feat this year. Mrs. Alice Robinson, art teacher, was in charge.

Groups Mull Plans For Vaccinations

The executive board of the Marion County Department of Health, representatives of P.T.A., Dads and Mothers clubs and various volunteer groups, were in conference Thursday afternoon in an effort to work out ways and means of implementing a mass inoculation program against polio on the school level.

The meeting followed the recent decision of the Marion-Polk Medical society to provide physicians for the actual inoculations providing the health department makes the arrangements.

Boating Group Lays Tentative Regatta Plans

Plans for a regatta, adoption of a new constitution and selection of a new name were the main items on the agenda of the Salem Yacht and Boating club Wednesday night at the Salem Memorial hospital chapel.

Tentative plans for the regatta, which would open the boating season May 25 and 26, call for a boat parade, a commodore's ball and racing events. Water events would be scheduled at Wallace Marine park.

Other boat clubs in the area would be invited to join in the events. Named to plan the regatta are Coy Delapp, G. Dudley Henderson, Melvin Elkins, Gil Ward and David Melson.

Adoption of the new constitution and the change of the name from the Salem Boat club to Salem Yacht and Boating club were accomplished at the meeting.

In other action, the group presented yellow rescue ribbons to Elkins, Henderson, Lee Dugger and Al Harder for actions in rescuing fellow boaters in distress last summer. Henderson and Dugger are the only previous winners of such awards in the club.

Taxes in boat clubs must go up, too, it was decided, and dues were increased to $10 a year and a $15 initiation fee was adopted.

Club participation in the May 4 regatta in Portland was approved in a vote.

A nominating committee was named with Graham Sharkey as chairman. Elections are set for March 20.

Postmaster Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Norblad (R-Ore) has recommended appointment of Mrs. Lola Louise Mitchell as acting postmaster at Dale in Grant County, Ore.

She would fill the vacancy created by death of Hazel Arbogast, the former postmaster. The position pays $1,886 a year.

Dr. Willard J. Stone, county health officer, said that there was a certain amount of tax-purchased Salk vaccine available. After that was exhausted there is a possibility that a fee might be charged each individual receiving the vaccine.

Plan Outlined
The plan is to set up clinics in various schools and public buildings, made available during the 1955 campaign, and secure volunteer assistants for the physicians. It would be the obligation of the medical society to assign the doctors.

According to the proposal of the physicians, the inoculations would be given one day each week during March.

Members of the medical profession are not unanimous in their backing of the plan that was adopted by the Marion - Polk Medical society Tuesday night. However, the vote to support the project was 43 to 12.

Nevertheless, many physicians would welcome an opportunity to take care of the inoculation program in a single effort. One doctor said there was no money to be made in giving the shots, particularly if the charges had to be entered on the books.

Charges for the inoculations vary. They range from a minimum of $2.50 to a maximum of $5. This means that for the three-shot series the cost would be from $7.50 to $15 for each individual.

One large clinic has adopted a program of giving reductions in price to family groups if all members present themselves at a single time.

The cost of the Salk vaccine to the doctor has been approximately $1.20 per cc. It is understood that this price has been slightly reduced recently. A given number of the containers of the vaccine will not inoculate the same number of persons, it was said, since there invariably is a slight loss of fluid for one cause or another.

In a few instances members of the medical profession express unqualified opposition to any sort of mass inoculations where doctors are called upon to give their services without charge. "It borders on state medicine," they contend.

Four Guardsmen Promoted Here

Four members of Company D, 162nd Infantry regiment, Salem national guard company, have received promotions.

Boyd M. Aydelott was moved up from SP 3 to SP 2; John P. E. Bailey from SP 3 to Sgt. E-3; Edward Guest from Pfc. to SP 3; and D. Lonnell Tetrick from Pfc. to SP 3.

A new member of the company is Recil Ray Fleshman who enlisted as Sgt. E-5. He had previously served in the regular army.
