Meat Inspection Bill Stirs Hot Arguments

A bill to have the state Department of Agriculture inspect all meat that isn't federally-inspected was the subject of controversy Thursday at a hearing before the House Agriculture Committee.

The state, during the past two years, has conducted a pilot inspection program to find out if a permanent program is necessary.

The plan would cost $516,383 in the two-year budget period.

H. E. Barker, Salem, argued that Oregon is a dumping ground for meat that is unfit for consumption, since California and Washington have inspection.

Opposing speakers, including slaughterhouse operators, said the bill is unnecessary. They said it would drive small operators out of business.

William McGill, Portland television producer, asked the Board of Control Thursday for permission to film a weekly television show at the state penitentiary.

The board said it would discuss the request with Warden C. T. Gladden.

McGill said the program would center on men about to be released, and he added that it might influence the public to give jobs to released inmates.

Elimination of the offices of district court clerk in Multnomah county and consolidation of the courts there with 25,000 population was called for in a bill introduced in the Oregon House today.

Reps. Vernon Cook, Gresham Democrat, and Ed Benedict, Portland Democrat, sponsored the bill.

It provides that the functions of court clerk and constable be transferred to the county clerk and sheriff respectively as soon as the terms of present incumbents expire.

Included in the tidbits of information is the fact that the national guard owes its name to Lafayette (not its latest name, however, that came from Secretary of Defense Wilson).

The New York state militia first was changed to national guard in honor of Lafayette's Garde Nationale. And the guard is to observe his birthday all over the nation this year.

Recipes a la Lafayette include escargots maison and homard palee. The first one will probably find little favor here—it's cooked snails—but the latter could be popular.

"Things You Didn't Know About Lafayette" include the fact that he was an American Major-General at 19, that he named his son Georges Washington for his friend with a similar name and a daughter Virginia (for the state of Virginia), that he was an abolitionist and an amateur violinist.

Rep. Eddie Ahrens (R-Marion) today condemned a bill to place the State Fair back under the control of the state agriculture board.

He said it would be another step in the direction of centralization of government and providing dictatorial powers for the governor.

"Since its adoption in 1951, the state fair board has put on some of the finest fairs in the history of the state," Ahrens said.

Over, after making many new improvements the board has been successful financially and has a large cash balance.

Ahrens said that never before in the fair's history has so much livestock been exhibited, as has been the case during the last few years, plus a tremendous increase in the exhibits of the 4-H clubs and FFA.

"Most of the commissions are democratic in the process of running various agencies of the state government," he added.

Decisions Units To Hold Meets On Neutrality

Swiss Native to Take Part in Panel Discussion

Neutrality will be the topic of Great Decisions discussions next week.

Among the phases of the topic which will be studied are the meaning of neutrality and whether neutralism can be a morally-sound or politically-wise policy.

Taking part in the panel discussion, which is to be broadcast Sunday, will be Dr. Julius L. Heins, a native of Zurich, Switzerland, Judge Hall Lusk of the Oregon supreme court and Birgitta Guller, an exchange student from Stockholm, Sweden, now studying at Willamette.

Moderator for the panel will be Dr. William Cornelius, associate professor of political science, at Willamette.

A forum on the subject will be held at the Willamette university at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Grove Named To Represent State at Meet

Stanley Grove, manager of the Salem Chamber of Commerce and president of the Oregon Chamber Executives association, has been selected by Gov. Robert D. Holmes as one of Oregon's representatives at a conference on education beyond high school to be held in San Francisco, April 19 and 21.

Grove said Friday that he will accept. The conference is one of five regional conferences sponsored by President Eisenhower's Committee on Education Beyond High School, which is headed by Devereux C. Josephs of New York.

Edgar W. Smith of Portland is the Oregon member of the President's committee. In the San Francisco conference, Oregon is grouped with 13 western states and territories.

Grove was chosen a member of the Oregon delegation for the reason that he heads the Association of Chamber Executives in this state. Others in the Oregon group will be laymen and professional educators including legislators, regents of institutions, representatives of agriculture, business and labor.

The San Francisco conference, to be held at the St. Francis hotel, is being arranged by the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education, which has offices in Boulder, Colo. One of the purposes of the regional conferences is to lay background for and give impetus to state conferences to be held in the fall of 1957.

The governor suggests that Grove plan to participate in the state conference.

Subcommittee Cash Cut Needed—Corbett

By JAMES D. OLSON, Capital Journal Writer

Appropriation requests, not included in the state's printed budget for the 1957-59 biennium, now total $33,557,028, Sen. Alfred Corbett, (D-Portland), co-chairman of the joint ways and means committee, reported Friday.

"This sum doubtless represents the wishes of certain segments of our citizenry," Sen. Corbett said, "but in contrast there are demands on the part of many of us who hold the line on state taxes. Therefore, I feel there must be some real trimming of budgets by subcommittees."

Corbett said that considerable work has been accomplished by the subcommittees but warned that there was a big job ahead.

"It will soon be the first of March, and I would request that any bills in the hands of the subcommittee on which requests have been made for introduction by this committee, be turned into the main committee not later than next week," Corbett said.

He also asked the subcommittee to begin studying the larger state budgets, many of which he said would involve much investigative work on the part of the committees.

"You can care for the smaller budgets in your spare time," he said.

The committee approved introduction as emergency measures appropriations for $350,000 additional funds for five state institutional projects. These include funds to complete a number of buildings at Fairview home, furnishings for a dormitory, now under construction at the state deaf school, added funds for a joint power plant to supply power for the new correctional institution and the cottage farm; additional funds for a building under construction at MacLaren School

Governor Supports Guard Recruiting

Operation Muster for the Oregon National Guard got the support of Governor Holmes Thursday when the first recruiting bumper sticker was put on the state's Number One car. Pasting down the sticker is Master Sgt. George Manolis, 1st Battalion, 162nd Infantry, Salem, while the Governor and Major General Thomas E. Rilea, Oregon NG adjutant general, look on. State Parks Head Reveals Garden Plan

Plans to develop a botanical gardens at Champeog state park, under sponsorship of the Oregon Federation of Garden Clubs, were announced today by C. H. Armstrong, superintendent of state parks for the Oregon State Highway commission.

The gardens will feature wild flowers and plants found in Oregon. Specimens will be labeled for easy identification.

Mrs. C. A. Kells of Salem, chairman of the federation's botanica gardens committee, will coordinate the program for the eight thousand member organizations.

Tentative plans call for seeds, bulbs, plants, shrubs and trees to be collected by the 250 local garden clubs that comprise the federation. They will then be presented to the state for planting at Champeog.

Guardsmen Make Plans for 'Muster'

"Operation Muster," scheduled for Sunday, will be the second annual program of its kind held by National Guard units throughout the country.

Salem units primed for the "operation" include Company B, 162nd Infantry, commanded by Capt. Dewey A. Rand, Jr., and Company D, 162nd Infantry, commanded by Capt. Louis I. Osborn, Jr. Both units are housed at the Salem National Guard armory at Liberty and Ferry streets.

Activities for the day will include a complete display of both companies' weapons and equipment used in training, a public inspection of training classes, and refreshments served to all visitors.

Each unit commander will outline the factors involved in guard enlistment in light of the new policy for National Guardsmen which will take effect on April 1, 1957.

Goal for the entire state of Oregon during Operation Muster is 1,034 new enlistees in the National Guard. Units in Salem and throughout the state will actively participate in the program, to familiarize and interest young men with and without prior military service, in National Guard service.

Scouts Observe 'Thinking Day'

Girl Scouts in Salem and throughout the world are today observing "Thinking Day" in their regular "Brownie," Intermediate, and Senior Scout activities.

"Thinking Day" commemorates the 100th anniversary of Lord Baden-Powell, the founder of Scouting. Each local troop plans its own observance, with many including a donation to the Girl Scout International Friendship fund.

for Boys and added funds for the new mental hospital at Wilsonville.

Study to Be Made

A study will be made by the attorneys engaged by self-supporting agencies. In many cases, it was said, the attorney general does not have sufficient staff to provide legal service to these agencies.

The committee will endeavor to ascertain if it would be more economical to increase the attorney general's staff to make possible the assignment of staff members to these agencies or to allow the agencies to continue the present practice.

Seaman Goes to Hospital, Then Jail After Fight With Policeman

Walter Lyle Roberts, seaman and logger weighing 225 pounds, was lodged in the city jail Thursday night, but not until he had given Officer John Rose a bad time and the officer had sent him to the hospital with a gash in his scalp that required six stitches.

The charge is being drunk and disorderly. The officer saw Roberts walking bars on County from Commercial in an apparently drunken condition. He stopped Roberts and took him across the street to a call box where he ordered him to stand while the officer called for assistance.

Roberts, says the police report, said he was going to the Blue Line cafe, and started to leave. When Rose grabbed him he swung on the officer and knocked off his cap and glasses. The officer retaliated with lists and was more than holding his own until Roberts tackled him about the legs. The policeman a leg that is still weak from a recent fracture, and had to resort to his sap.

At headquarters Roberts was given first aid and sent to the hospital for stitches, then was returned and jailed.

Alumni Group Elects Officers

Members of the Marion county unit of Oregon College of Education Alumni association at a recent meeting picked Mrs. Johanna Kortzborn as president of the unit. She is a first grade teacher at the Keizer school.

Elected to the other offices were John Plaut, Richmond school, vice president; Charles Baker, Fruitland school principal, secretary, and Harry Pease, Cummings school, publicity director.

Assisting the group in forming the unit, which will hold its next meeting next Thursday evening at the Mayflower hall, was Dale Harp, Marion county district director and vice president of the state alumni group.

Bays Announces Army Promotions

Promotions of one officer and two enlisted men were announced today by Maj. Thomas Bays, commander of the 929th Field Artillery battalion, Army Reserve.

Lt. Thomas Teutsch, McMinnville, was promoted to captain in Headquarters battery. Promoted to private first class were George Jacobson, Post Office Box 93, Salem, and Warren Jones, Hillsboro, recent transfer.

Both enlisted men recently completed six months active duty tour.

Auto-Train Wrecks Reported High by Traffic Safety Group

Drivers often do strange things, but one of the most unexplainable is the way they manage to drive into trains.

At least that's the way the Oregon Traffic Safety commission summed it up when it noted that there were 295 train-car accidents in the state last year, killing 15 people and injuring another 121.

The train-car accident situation is even harder to understand when it is considered that at least 96 per cent of all Oregon highway-rail crossings are either marked by a round-shaped advance warning sign or some other type signal, the commission remarked.

In addition, trains are required to give audible warning of their approach and heavily-used crossings are generally protected by gates, flashing lights, bells, wig-wag signals or watchmen.
