Bearcats to Finish As Host to Leaders

Linfield's Machamer, Riley Show Way Over WU, 85-81, to Knock 'Cats Out of Title Contention

By A. C. JONES Capital Journal Sports Editor

This is the week that tells all-for Linfield and Pacific, the off; contenders left in the Northwest conference's vale of tears. But all has been told as far as Willamette university's championship chances, are concerned. They finished going up in smoke here Saturday night against Linfield, 85-81.

For the past two months the six-team circuit has been setting up leaders and knocking them off but now the fate of the two would be champs rests on the basketball temperaments of Willamette and Pacific, with one less loss than Linfield, has two games left—tonight at home against the lowly Whitman, and one Saturday night at Willamette, which isn't lowly, just unlucky. Linfield can hang up its smelly gym shoes now and put on its spectator glasses, because its season is over.

There's Still Life
There still is life in the Bearcat, though, with Lewis and Clark as opponents this Friday night at Portland before the finale Saturday. So lively was Willamette against Linfield that it enjoyed a seveh-point lead early in the second half and didn't lose it until the last nine minutes.

56-65. Then, after Vic Backland countered for Willamette, Machamer did it again, 68-67, and the pesty runt, 5-foot-8 Jack Riley, stdle the fall for a lay-in that established the tone of the Lingled rally.

Tremaining.

Grossenbacher fouled Dick Brown, who made both free throws, 83-80, and Massa Watanabe notched a charity for Willamette with seven seconds to go — too little too late.

Tied 13 times, the score found the rivals deadlocked 43-43 at half-time. Machamer had 17 points in attempts.

Machamer is used to this thing called scoring. He bears a 25.4 average in the conference by being able to pot them from all angles with his quick flips of the wrist on jump shots.

Four Bearcats were 13 points or better, Backlund and Neil Causbie making 18 apiece, Don Hoy 16 and Eddy Grossenbacher 13. Luther, the North Carolina boy, lost a one-fall match to Montana last week when time ran out. Montana helped time run out by his delaying tactics and Lindsey isn't about to forget that.
