Rayner Ouster Asked in Fish Kill 'Blunder'

PORTLAND (AP)—The state Fish Commission declined to take any action Tuesday on a request that H. John Rayner be fired as chief of the Game Commission's fish operations department.

The dismissal had been called for by the Devils Lake Protective Fishermen's League, an organization of residents from the Devils Lake area on the coast.

The League contended Rayner's program to poison trash fish in Devils Lake was a "blunder" and had failed.

The Fish Commission rejected a proposal by Lew Wallace of Portland for elimination of the 60-per-day bag limit on crawfish.

One other proposal, by sportsmen and representatives of the Chambers of Commerce in the Coos Bay area, brought a promise by the Fish Commission that it would give the matter consideration.
