DENNIS THE MENACE - By Ketcham

"I DON'T WANNA SEE 'EM! I'M NOT IN THE MOOD FOR COMPANY!"

Red Buttons Sheds Comedian Role for Movie Drama Parts

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Writer
HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Red Buttons, a short-lived sensation on television, is rising from the ashes as a dramatic actor in the movies. Little Red was the George Gobel of TV back in 1953, in the dear, old days of straight windshields and Italian hair-cuts. But, as TV victims know, fans are as fickle as the flick of a dial, and the hungry medium can burn up a career that in movies or radio might have lasted a decade. After three years and 34 writers, Red was sent to the showers. Now he's begun a new career that may turn out bigger than the old. Red copped a plum role, star billing in a Marlon Brando picture, "Sayonara."
Director Josh Logan thinks Red's role may do for him what "From Here to Eternity" did to a then-slipping singer, Frank Sinatra. "I'm awfully young to be having a comeback," the 32-year-old comedian grinned. "I couldn't be happier—I have the best part of my career ahead of me. This is a straight dramatic part, not one gag."
"Of course," he added wryly, "some of my comedy show's turned out that way."
In his TV days Red was famed for hiring small armies of writers and firing them two weeks later. As he says, "I opened a Chinese fortune cookie when we were on location in Japan for 'Sayonara' and it said, 'Help me, I'm a writer for Red Buttons.'"
Firings Explained
"I hired a lot of writers because I was trying to get a good show," he explained.
Red reflected on his slide out of TV and said, "the trouble starts when you realize during the second year how good you were the first year. The first year you're numb. You lose perspective. You look through very rose-colored glasses."
"When you settle down and have time to think, that fear starts. You say, 'I've got to stay up there, I want to last forever, I have to be better.'"
"Now," he shrugged. "I'm getting a lot of action, lots of movie offers. I'm darn near as hot now as I was three years ago."

INDEPENDENCE (Special)—Ron Wilson, David Scott, and Leo Roy Greig, Central HI students, participated in the recent Northwest Music Education Conference in Boise, Idaho. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thompson, local faculty members.

Eskimo Tissue Samples Used To Study Body

By CHRIS MACGILL
MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—Three Miami scientists are using tissue samples taken from Eskimos in a study of the changes which take place with age in the human body.
In a report made Monday to the American Chemical Society, holding its 131st meeting here, the scientists said they have found the body's connective tissues undergo "marked changes with age." These tissues are found throughout the body surrounding other tissue and organs.
Dr. Harry R. Eiden, Dr. Robert J. Boucek and Raymond J. Sever, all associated with the Howard Hughes Medical Institute here, obtained their Eskimo tissue samples from the U.S. Air Force, which is conducting an independent study in Alaska on the effects of cold weather on the human organism.
All Purpose Samples
The samples the Air Force is gathering can be used both for the cold weather study and for the aging study in progress here.
The samples are obtained by what is known as the "sponge biopsy" technique. A very small sponge is planted under the skin of a volunteer and allowed to remain about four months.
When it is removed, connective tissue has grown all through it and can be subjected to various chemical tests.
The Hughes Institute, which is particularly interested in studying racial groups which have shown a low ratio of ailments affecting the arteries which supply the heart, plans to do similar research later on the American Indian, the American Negro, and certain African tribes.
The scientists have found indications that as the Eskimos grow older a greater attraction exists between the tiny particles of collagen in their tissues. Collagen is a hard protein which supports or protects the bones and such tough parts of the body as tendons.
As a human being ages, this collagen tends to encroach between the elastic fibers of the arteries.
Monday's session of the meeting included presentation of the American Chemical Society's $10,000 award for nuclear applications to Dr. Melvin Calvin of the University of California, a leading authority on the process of photosynthesis.
Experiments Conducted
Calvin recently has conducted experiments leading to further understanding of the mysterious method by which green plants use sunlight in combining air and water to build their tissues.
He has found indications that a free electron is knocked from a chlorophyll molecule by the action of light and that this forms part of the mechanism through which light energy is converted into chemical energy.
"The study of these phenomena and the actual way in which the plants are able to produce such a system will almost certainly help in the creation of a synthetic system which can also convert visible light into electrical or chemical potential energy," he said.

DOROTHY DIX COLUMN

No Excuse for Carousing To Cure Wife of Jealousy

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My wife is a fine woman, faithful, a good housekeeper with only one fault. She's jealous.
To teach her a lesson I started to play cards, drink and left her alone with the baby most of the time. I thought she'd get used to it but as the years went by she became nervous and eventually got ulcers. I went on a vacation alone, last year. When I returned she asked if I'd go to church with her, give up drinking, shake off my friends and be a good husband. Of course I refused.
Then suddenly she became a different person. I came home late, drunk, and never a word did she say. She started to sleep in my daughter's room. The next thing I knew she was feeling better, laughing, singing, going out, making friends. She created an entire new life for herself—in which I had no part. I can't go near her; it's "hands off!"
Now I realize I always loved her and would give anything for another chance. What can I do to win her back and do you think her love for me is dead?—Real Fool.
DEAR REAL FOOL: If I had your wife's name and address, I'd send her a medal! She might easily have become a permanent member of the married wives' society. Fortunately she shook off the shackles, and became a free woman.
The best that can be said for you is that you did manage to dig up a new excuse for drinking, gambling, philandering, and other forms of inconsiderate behavior.
If you're willing to put as much effort into winning your wife's love again as you put into losing it, you may have another chance. Only she can answer that question.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Some girls can date boys they don't like but I can't. Is this right?—Minerva.
DEAR MINERVA: So you refuse to date any male who isn't tall, dark, handsome, and sweeps you off your feet? How many such young men have you encountered? Don't you spend many lonely evenings?
Very, very frequently the boy who doesn't carry his assets in plain view is the one who's definitely worth knowing. Be experimental; date the next boy who asks you. Two dates may change your mind and make you a bit more flexible.
DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My soldier boy friend, who is a correspondence pal only, sent me an expensive watch for my birthday. I hate to hurt his feelings by returning it, but don't feel right about keeping it. He's hospitalized, and will be for another year.
DEAR ANDREA: Take this up with your mother and let her decide. If the boy's letters have been friendly, but nothing more, you might keep it. If, however, he's made any assumptions of a budding romance, nip it now by returning the gift. Let Mom know the circumstances, and follow her advice.
Send your problem to Dorothy Dix. Or write for her free leaflet D-45, "Turn Your Spare Time Into Cash." In all cases, be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and send request to her, care of this newspaper.

Temporary Judge Appointment OK'd

The Senate passed and sent to the House Monday a proposed constitutional amendment that would permit temporary appointments to the Supreme and Circuit courts.
It would allow the Supreme Court to give temporary appointments to that court to retired justices and circuit judges.
The 1955 Legislature passed a law to permit that, but it was declared unconstitutional.
The resolution also would permit appointment of lawyers as temporary circuit judges, and allow transfer of circuit judges to districts other than their own. These practices now are being followed.

Judge Hears 4 Cases Here

Four individuals, accused of a variety of crimes, had their day in court Monday when they appeared before Circuit Judge George R. Duncan.
Pleading guilty to a charge of obtaining money and property by false pretenses, Birl Bennie Carr, Monmouth, was placed on probation for a year after being handed a three months suspended jail sentence.
The charge dates back to 1955 when Carr is said to have cashed two checks at Long's Grocery in Salem for a total of $35.
Howard C. Parker, 850 Chemawa Rd., was given a suspended six months jail sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of cashing a $7 check at a Keizer shoe store.
The probation of Jerry LeRoy Tauscher, Portland, was revoked and he was given a jail sentence of three months. Tauscher was placed on probation last July on a larceny charge. In court Monday he admitted to violations of his parole.
A plea of innocence to a charge of furnishing liquor to a minor was entered by Richard Springstead, West Salem. The charge had its origin at a residence north of Salem where a party involving several juveniles was held.

Soil Conservation Proposal Favored

MOLALLA (Special)—When the proposal of setting up a soil conservation district in Clackamas County recently was voted upon, polling officers Otto Leutwyler, Ross Iverson and Glenn R. Purnell counted 252 votes in Molalla, with 157 for and 95 against the measure.
Rognar Anderson of Colton received the high count in votes for manager of the district, followed by Willard Deardorff of Molalla and Ben Elmer of Clarks.
