By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Writer

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Only in Hollywood Department: Some movie queens have to store their Easter bonnets in the refrigerator.

Heads often are bare in this sunny land, but this time of year the ladies borrow some elegance from eastern cities and blossom out in bonnets. And this season they're going in for a new sensation — hats made of real flowers.

If the bees follow Jane Russell into church next Sunday, it's because her huge natural straw floppy sailor hat will be covered with real daffodils, white daisies and blue cornflowers—a $42.50 number.

Whiting Sisters Outfitted

Easter Day Margaret Whiting will wear a pink hat covered with huge pink cabbage roses, the kind ants like. Sister Barbara Whiting's Easter bonnet will be a small sailor hat trimmed with white daisies.

Barbara Hale and Barbara Lawrence also will go to church in real blossoms—pink cabbage roses on dark green small hats.

These bonnets are the brainchild of a creative florist, Stanley Meador. He wins notices each Christmas by whipping up yule trees of velvet and jewels for movie stars. Come Easter his Beverly Hills shop is a-flutter with celebrities and rich ladies from Texas buying the hats he makes of real flowers.

Crosby Files 3 Libel Suits

PORTLAND (UP)— Clyde C. Crosby, Oregon Teamsters Union representative, today filed three libel suits in Circuit Court asking $900,000 damages against the Oregonian, two of its reporters and racketeer James B. Elkins.

Crosby is under indictment on several counts handed down by vice probing Multnomah county grand juries.

The reporters named as defendants are Wallace Turner and William Lambert, who wrote a series of stories in the Oregonian last spring linking Crosby and other Teamster officials with racketeering in Portland.

Refrigeration Necessary

"They smell nice, look real and last for three or four days if kept in the refrigerator," declared the florist. "And they're much smarter to wear than coronas that just leave holes in dresses."

Any female desiring a live bonnet can take an old hat to her florist for trimming, he advises. Between wearings the hat should be sprinkled with water or wrapped in oil and popped into the refrigerator.

Other real flower hats he's made for film folk at $27.50 up include a huge pink picture hat trimmed with violets and red roses and a tiny pink chiffon hat with a big bunch of lilacs trailing down one side.

Crosby listed six separate causes of action in his three suits. He asks $50,000 general damages and $100,000 punitive damages on each cause. He cited several articles in the Oregonian concerning him as the basis for the suits.

Elkins, a recent star witness before a Senate Rackets Investigating Committee, was the chief source of information in the Oregonian series.

Another $300,000 libel suit which Crosby filed against the Oregonian several months ago is still pending in Circuit Court.

Beaver Gives Upat McNary

UMATILLA, Ore. (UP)—No longer eager, Joe the beaver has packed his dam-repair kit and moved elsewhere on the Columbia River, leaving man to make his own dam repairs at McNary.

All last week, Joe kept busy at work trying to repair a "leak" in the giant dam.

The "leak" was the dam's navigation lock, and everytime Joe had it fixed, opening of the lock carried away Joe's work at setting up his own vast preserve.

The days of frustration finally took their toll. Attendants said over the weekend Joe "chucked" the task and swam off in disgust, heading downstream in the wake of a tug.

There may be better days ahead for Joe. Downstream lies the recently-activated The Dalles Dam. It, too, has "leaks" that need looking into.

HE CARRIES WEIGHT

FT. CARSON, Colo. (UP)—Privates in Company I, 39th Infantry Regiment, don't pull any practical jokes on their sergeant. The reason is obvious. The company's sergeant is Henry Wyatt. Sgt. Wyatt weighs 290 pounds, stands 6 feet, 9 inches, wears a size 15 shoe and measures 18 inches around the neck. And he's still growing.

Jury Pick in Elkins Trial Set Tuesday

PORTLAND (UP)—A federal court jury to try Portland racketeer Jim Elkins on a wiretap charge will be picked Tuesday, Dist. Judge William G. East said Monday in denying a motion for postponement.

After the jury is sworn, he said, he will dismiss it until the defense has had time to make copies—under his supervision—of the tape recordings which the government says violate the law against making secret recordings of telephone conversations.

These recordings, which take about a day and a half to play are separate from those Elkins turned over to The Oregonian a year ago to touch off that newspaper's charges of corruption and vice here. They were of room conversations, not telephone talk. They led to charges against Dist. Atty. William Langley, who Saturday was convicted of failure to prosecute gamblers.

Elkins, and his aide, Raymond P. Clark, were indicted on the federal charge when a raid turned up the new recordings.

A new attorney showed up for Elkins today and asked more time to get familiar with the case. The judge rejected this.
