Cimoli, who had three hits in six trips while opening in left field for the Brooks, delivered his paydor. Homer all champ. Don Zimmer, at short in place of ailing PeeWee Reese, and Gil Hodges also homered for the Dodgers. Don Newcombe was the starter but crew-cut Clem Labine was the winner with four innings of two-hit relief.

The Pirates managed just three hits off Antonelli, but his own obbile of a bunt led to two fifth-inning runs and, their first decision over the lefty ace since 1955. The Bues wrapped it up for right-hander Bob Friend with six runs in the eighth—only one of them carned — against reliefer Mary Grissom.

Tom Chapman, the assistant sports editor of the University of Oregon's Daily Emerald, is a young fellow who obviously spends a good many hours "minoring" in major league baseball. But, best of all, he seems to have the eye of a true satirist who is both wearied and amused by some of the annual goings on in the national pastime.

For example, in his month-by-month "forecast" of big league things to come, he sees Mickey Mantle hitting three long home runs in April and the New York writers rushing out the news that Mickey is the greatest and 22 games ahead of Babe Ruth's pace. Checking through Chapman's version of the season one finds Mantle hitting only four more the rest of the summer . . . but some are tape measure blows and the NY writers point out he's working on his hatting average.

Perfect game pitcher Don Larsen comes in for some comment His hitless span is spoiled in his first outing when he gives up 11 runs in the first inning against Washington. Further along we find Larsen traded to the Baltimore Orioles and from there shipped to Keokuck

Then, in what we think is a very good jab at some annual futility Larsen is called up by the Cleveland Indians for the stretch drive.
