Give Him Up Gracefully, His Wife Has Inside Track

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I'm a single woman in my 40's. Recently was introduced to a divorced man with three grown children. We had been dating regularly when he announced that his first wife was making overtures to get him back. He didn't commit himself as to whether or not be was willing to go. He seems to be on the fence. I guess if I Opp. Liberty seh. were more aggressive I could pull him my way.

Dear Dubious.

DEAR DUBIOUS: Aggression wouldn't help.
Suppose you did persuade him to marry you. Could you ever be convinced that he was satisfied with his choice? His first wife would always have the inside track in his thoughts. A graceful exit is your indicated move.

Dear Dubious.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: The boy I love says he loves me, but when his sister, who is my pal, is with us, he scarcely speaks to me. In fact, he's almost cold. When we're with anyone else, or alone, his manner is entirely different. Why does he act this way? Described by the color of t

DEAR DAWN: Probably Sister is a tease at home and your boy friend hopes that his feigned indifference to you will cut down the ribbing. Don't warry or fuss over it.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Two months ago I fell in love with Roger. DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Two months ago I fell in love with Roger. Shortly after he gave me a ring. Now he tells me he's going back to an ex-girl friend. Apparently he went with her for over a year, they had a quarrel, and I caught him on the rebound. He wants his ring back, but tells me if I try hard enough I may get him to keep. I love him very much and don't know what to do.—Bunny.

DEAR BUNNY: Return Roger's ring, of course, and tell him you're not interested in the open competition for his affections. If he bounces back to his former girl, he'd he much too weak on the next rebound. Vacillating affections aren't worth the trouble it takes to hold them.
