Ike Notes Clash of GOP Opinion And Hopes It Will Always Be So

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

AUGUSTA, Ga. — President Eisenhower, target of some criticism by fellow Republican leaders, said today, "There are differences of opinion within our party and I hope there always will be."

With specifically noting any criticism of himself, the President predicted GOP success, but said: "Under our two-party system, a national party must contain within it divergent points of view reflecting the varying opinions on national issues from state to state, region to region.

"This is a healthy condition as long as the fundamental beliefs within that party provide a common nucleus of thought, a common ground. We have that in the Republican party — a set of unalterable truths that bind us together into an inseparable whole, dedicated to conducting the government of the United States in the best interests of its people."

Eisenhower expressed his views in a brief talk prepared for delivery by telephone from his vacation headquarters here to party workers attending a New England regional conference sponsored by the Republican National Committee at Providence, R.I.

His general theme was the future of the party—a future without an Eisenhower-for-president ticket.

The Providence session is the second of six scheduled area conferences arranged by the committee to find out, as Eisenhower put it, "what's on the people's minds, both with respect to the party organization and the issues we face, domestic and international." The first conference was held recently in Omaha, Neb.

Eisenhower told the New England meeting he hopes the sessions at Providence would be "spirited and productive and that out of them will come a stronger, completely up to date Republican party.

He made no mention of the 1960 presidential campaign when the party must pick a new standard bearer, but he did speak of the job the Republicans face next year in trying to wrest control of Congress from the Democrats.

"I know these conferences will give us an early start on the all important and urgent task of electing a Republican House and Senate in 1958," the President said. "It is well to concentrate on '58."

While he took note of intra-party differences, Eisenhower sought to place emphasis on agreement.

"As Republicans we have much upon which we can agree," he said. "As long as we adhere to the principles first laid down by our first Republican president, Abraham Lincoln, I believe we can resolve any differences among us, and move forward with programs that will prove of lasting value to all Americans today and in the future."

State Officers Have Reunion

Officers from the 41st infantry division, Oregon's National Guard division, now attending courses at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Ft. Benning, recently had a reunion dinner there.

Among the 20 officers from the division and their wives attending were several from this area.

They included Capt. and Mrs. Tony Nunn, Salem, and First Lt. Robert L. Irving, Jr., Salem, Headquarters 186th infantry regiment; First Lt. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Patterson, Silverton, Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 162nd infantry regiment; and First Lt. Harold W. Peterson, Dallas, Headquarters Company 162nd infantry regiment.

Col. Robert L. Irving, Sr., Salem, regimental commander for the 186th Infantry Regiment, was among the distinguished guests at the dinner.

Also in attendance was J. M. Coburn, Salem, who served with the Third Oregon Infantry during the Mexican Border Campaign. Another guest was Maj. Leonard Lowry, Sprague River, Ore., formerly adviser to the 1st and 3rd battalions of the 186th Infantry regiment, who is presently assigned to duty with the leadership committee at the Infantry School at Ft. Benning.

Ex-Tammany Leader Curry Dies, Age 84

CORAL GABLES, Fla. — John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall in New York from 1929 to 1934, died of a heart attack yesterday at his winter home here. He was 84.

Born in Ireland, Curry was brought to this country when six months of age. His first public job was in 1899 as a clerk in the New York City paymaster's office.

Later he became a New York state assemblyman, a deputy county clerk and city commissioner of records.

During his leadership of Tammany, Manhattan Democratic organization, Democratic Mayor Jimmy Walker was forced to resign. Taking Walker's place was John P. O'Brien, who was defeated in 1933 after one year in office.

Curry, during his political career, opposed such outstandingly successful Democrats as Alfred E. Smith, Herbert H. Lehman and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In recent years, he paid little heed to politics but took an active interest in an insurance business he operated with two of his four sons.

Belated Easter Shopping Booms Stores' Receipts

NEW YORK — Last-minute Easter shopping gave a substantial boost to the nation's retail trade in the week ended Wednesday, Dun & Bradstreet said Friday.

Women's apparel showed the biggest gain, with much of the buying concentrated on fashion accessories, millinery and suits. Children's clothing sold well, while ties, shirts, hosiery and hats were the fastest-selling items in the men's division.

Retail trade around the country for the week ended April 24 ranged from 8 to 12 per cent higher than a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet said: Percentage changes in major areas included: Pacific Coast up 7 to 11.

TEENERS SPOIL COPS' BUSINESS

PORTLAND (UP) — Police had been enjoying a brisk arrest business on a southeast Portland thoroughfare when traffic suddenly slowed to a crawl and speeding tickets went begging. They soon found the cause: A carload of 17-year-old youths was found with a large black and white sign lettered to the rear of their vehicle. The five-foot warning to other motorists read: "Radar ahead; drive slowly."

ROOKIES, POLICE COMPETE

BOSTON (UP)—It's a neck-and-neck race between book-makers and rookies in Massachusetts. State Crime Commissioner Joseph Ford said "state tax figures show there is one bookie for every police officer." He said there are 10,000 policemen in the state.

Billions Being Bet on Expanding Economy

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK — American business is betting on a steady expanding economy in the next four years — ignoring any short-term bobbles along the way.

The bets already planned total 3½ to 40 billion dollars a year — and are expected to go higher.

Talk of cutbacks in capital spending is petering out. Industry now expects to spend 12 per cent more this year than last for new plants and equipment.

Business plans to spend sharply more on research and new products. And there is a shift in emphasis from building more plants to spending more for modernization.

These findings are shown today in the annual survey made in March and April by the McGraw-Hill Publishing Co.'s Department of Economics.

Covering companies hiring over 90 per cent of all industrial employes in the nation, this survey puts this year's spending plans at almost 41 billion dollars. This would be 3½ billion dollars higher than spending plans tabulated in a survey in January and February 1960.

The manufacturing firms expect an over-all gain of 6 per cent this year in unit volume of sales. By 1960 the average gain expected is 26 per cent. Heavy machinery, electrical machinery and transportation equipment firms expect to beat this average—up 11 to 13 per cent this year, and up 30 to 36 per cent by 1960.

One-third of the reporting manufacturers plan capital expenditures this year to bring out new products.

While slightly more than half of manufacturers' capital spending this year will be on plant improvement, this will be cut to 47 per cent in the next three years. The longer range plans stress new products, research and new products. This is higher than the manufacturers' money in 1960.

much for each of these three years as it spent in 1956, which the survey puts at 36½ billion (also a higher figure than the government's). The private economists predict that these future plans will be further expanded as the years roll around.

Increased stress on research and new products in this highly competitive era shows up in business plans to boost research spending 20 per cent this year and to continue stepping it up through 1960. By that time manufacturers expect at least 10 per cent of their total sales to be in products not being made in 1956.
