Girl Too Young to Date an 18-Year-Old College Youth

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am 18, a college student, and am going with a girl of 14 who is quite mature for her age. We had many dates, but lately she won't see me. When I asked what was wrong, she said her mother objected to the difference in our ages...

DEAR P. C.: No, sneak dating will set the girl's parents against you for good. The young lady is a bit young for dating but if you show the proper respectful spirit you can win her folks over to your side...

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Jackie and I have been going together for a month. He works near here but lives in another state. He's 19 and not married—or at least that's what he says...

DEAR PAULINE: You're facing a tough situation. You lack just because the does it, yet you haven't the courage to let go of the example set by your parents...

Send your problem to Dorothy Dix. Or write for her free leaflet D-23, "The Way To A Girl's Heart." In all cases, be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and send request to her, care of this newspaper.

Russ Steadily Soften Disarm Look-See Stand

New Offer in Talks Can Scarcely Be Called Big-Hearted

By CHARLES M. McCANN United Press Staff Correspondent Soviet Russia seems to be gradually softening its attitude toward a satisfactory disarmament inspection system.

It has now offered a plan under which large areas of the United States, Western Europe and the Soviet Union would be open to aerial survey.

Agreement on such a system of inspection is a necessary first step toward any disarmament treaty, as a guarantee against cheating.

Russia's new offer, made at the United Nations Disarmament Conference in London, can hardly be called big-hearted.

For instance, inspection planes with photographic equipment would be permitted to fly over Alaska, the entire United States west of the Mississippi River, and most of Western Europe.

Areas Equal On Paper They would fly over most of Communist Eastern Europe, a very small part of western Russia and a large part of Siberia.

On paper, the Russian proposal calls for the opening up of an equal area of Soviet and American territory, including Alaska, and most of Allied Western Europe.

Actually, the whole of Alaska, a great part of the United States and nearly all of the highly industrialized countries of Allied Western Europe would be open to Russian inspection.

But almost all of western Russia, containing the greater part of Soviet war industries, would remain closed territory.

This proposal, in its present form, is obviously unsatisfactory. Red Concession Seen

Its first importance, however, lies in the fact that little by little the Soviet government seems to be coming around to admitting the necessity for an efficient means of inspection.

That is a big concession for the Russian Communist leaders to make. Russia always has been one of the most secretive countries in the world. That was true even under the czars, incidentally.

In their reluctance to opening up their territory for inspection, Soviet leaders are not only trying to conceal their war potential.

Allied inspection planes, with their remarkably penetrating photographic equipment, would be able to spot weaknesses as well as strengths in Russia's industrial facilities.

Allied optimism has been growing since the U.N. Disarmament Subcommittee, on which the United States, Canada, Great Britain, France and Russia are represented, started its current meeting March 18.

Optimism Warnings Authoritative informants at the London meeting are now warning against too much optimism. Such warnings are justified in view of Russia's record of evasion on the inspection issue.

But the Russian attitude does seem to be softening. One reason, as has been pointed out, undoubtedly is the growing alarm of the Soviet government over the threat presented to it by Allied bases in Europe, North Africa and Asiatic Turkey—bases from which nuclear missiles as well as nuclear bomb-carrying planes could attack.

The Soviet alarm can hardly have been lessened by the firm way in which its threats to Allied countries of dire retaliation have been rejected.

Russian 'Open Sky' Proposal

Black area in this map, plus part of Europe (A), denotes approximate area Russians propose to be open to aerial inspection if U. S. would open skies over about same amount of territory in Alaska and United States. Shaded area is approximate portions of U.S. territory involved. Soviet plan does not specify if Russian industrial areas, (B), of Irkutsk, Krasnovarsk and Lake Baikal region would be included. (AP Wirephoto Map)

East German Youths Shed Red Uniform

Refuse to Wear Blue Shirts, Show Scorn For Communism

By JOSEPH FLEMING United Press Staff Correspondent BERLIN (UP)—East German youths, no longer afraid to show their disgust with Communism, are shedding their blue shirts.

A blue shirt is the uniform of both boys and girls members of "Free German Youth," the Communist youth organization in the Soviet zone.

Most youths not only are refusing to wear their own blue shirts but are openly deriding the small number who still do.

Communist officials have denounced the campaign as "cowardly" and ordered a purge of the organization.

Western observers consider the campaign another reflection of the anti-Communist movement which has grown behind the Iron Curtain since last fall's Hungarian rebellion.

New Defiance The Communists could hardly ignore this new defiance from the youth who were to be tomorrow's comrades. Blue shirts used to be seen everywhere. Both boys and girls wore them to school and as they played in the streets. Now they are a rarity.

Communist officials recognize the campaign for what it is—the youths refuse to be identified with Communism.

"Young World," official newspaper of the youth organization, admitted "Many free German youth members think this way—when I wear the blue shirt I will have to oppose false conceptions and discussions. If no one knows I am a member, I will avoid such unpleasantness."

The newspaper complained that other members took off their blue shirts "because they want to be neutral and unobtrusive."

"Just as people used to be astounded if you wore a modern suit to work," it added, "they now are amazed when anyone wears a blue shirt."

Army Adopts T44 Rifle in Garand Place

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon has reported two major weapons changes. It announced the Army's adoption of a new rifle, and confirmed reports U. S. forces have an eight-inch atomic artillery shell.

The Army said yesterday it has formally adopted the new T44 rifle, developed by Army Ordnance, to replace four shoulder weapons—the Garand M1 rifle, the Browning automatic rifle (BAR), the .30-caliber carbine and the M3 submachinegun.

The T44 uses 7.62mm ammunition, the standard adopted for NATO troops. The cartridges are shorter and lighter than the .30-caliber ammunition used in the M1.

The rifle has been tested over the last two years, and money for its production will be asked for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1958.

The Defense Department disclosure that eight-inch atomic shells are in existence came in response to inquiries by reporters over the past several years.

The department also said the Army has both eight-inch guns and eight-inch howitzers capable of firing the nuclear ammunition.

"Members who are not ready to acknowledge openly the goals of our organization and work for them actively cannot be members of the Free German Youth."

The Communists appeared to be abandoning their old idea of a mass youth organization, substituting instead a small hard core of convinced Communists. The Reds had tried heretofore to get all youths into the organization to indoctrinate them.

The organization now has 1.7 members between the ages of 14 and 25. The "Young Pioneers," composed of boys and girls from 6 to 13, now numbers 1.3 million members.

Biologist Eyes Heart, Kidney, Liver 'Banks'

WASHINGTON (UP)—A distinguished biologist believes the day is coming when a person with a bad heart can go to the "bank" and get a replacement.

He also foresees a time when "tailor made molecules" will be available for such purposes as controlling human conception, sex and growth.

The biologist, Dr. Ralph W. Gerard, of the University of Michigan, addressed a scientific colloquium at the National Science Foundation here.

He said biology has come a long way since it was christened in 1802. It is now "at the explosion point" and is expanding rapidly into the realm of physical, psychological and social science.

Blood, bone, eye and cartilage banks already have proved practical. Gerard believes kidney, liver and heart banks will follow although some of the technical problems admittedly are great.

"I believe they will be solved," Gerard said. He also sees a growing role for "tailor-made molecules"—synthetic organic drugs produced in the laboratory for a multitude of uses.

Gerard made no attempt to list all the possible uses of tailor-made molecules. But he said they might include everything from control of the nervous system to control of conception, sex of offspring and growth.

TESTS ESSENTIAL, U. S. TELLS JAPAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has told Japan it is "essential" to the defense of the free world to continue nuclear tests, U.S. officials said Friday.

The formal note to Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi of Japan was signed by Secretary of State Dulles and handed to Charge d'Affaires Takezo Shimoda last week-end.

Official sources said the message replied to a note delivered by Shimoda on his arrival here in March.
