Salem's King Bing was left waiting at the church door (so to speak) Saturday night. Bob Fischer, top man of the Cherrians, was asked for 10 men to escort 10 lovely ladies at Oregon DeMolay Ball at Scottish Rite Temple where one was to be picked as Sweetheart of DeMolay. They showed up and a pair of one by one with the young lovelies and marched to the head of the ballroom.

Only somewhere along the line, plans were changed and only nine girls needed. Cherrian escorts so King Bing was left standing at the doorway.

Frank Hemingway, noted radio newsman, was keynote speaker at State Jaycee Convention luncheon Saturday in Portland and showed mixture of humor and seriousness in his talk. Dwell to some extent on starting radio career in Oregon (short time in Bend, several years in Portland) and was pleased with the weather which greeted him after being gone for several years.

He kidded his own profession considerably, especially in regards to newspaper typographical errors and their equivalent, the radio news "fluffs." Discussion of people getting caloused to disaster led to mention of heavy traffic fatality rate and comment, "Any airplane can tell you the most dangerous part of any trip is the drive to the airport."

On children: When we were young they used the razor strap on us. Nowadays they take them to a psychiatrist.

And: Wasn't it George Bernard Shaw who was amazed at how well American parents obey their children?

More seriously: Everyone makes mistakes. If you don't make mistakes, you're not working.

George Huggins of Salem delegation was called forward by State President Monte Montgomery for special presentation. George got a pie pushed in his face for losing a bet on total membership the state would have by convention time. He was state membership chairman.

The birth of a baby girl to U. P. Kallnoski of The Dalles was announced during the meeting and several hundred delegates began yelling, "Gigars." That sort of thing could really break a man up in business.

Hemingway got together after the meeting with Monte Ballou, well-known Portland District hand leader, and talked over old times in Portland when both worked radio, each in his respective field.

The newscaster reminisced on how he came to Bend from Canada on a tip, worked there a few months and then moved to Portland. After several years there at different stations, what he called one of the best things that ever happened to him occurred—he was fired for being late to work one evening. "In those depression days, losing a job was about like losing your right arm," he said.

He took off for Los Angeles on a job tip that didn't pan out, ran into a friend who told him of an audition for a two-man news job, tried for it and got it. That was the show that later developed into his present news show.

He was introduced again at Saturday night banquet. Was asked to say a few words. Used only seven, "When I say coffee, I mean Folger's."

Injuries From Traffic Crash Prove Fatal

R. W. West Succumbs Monday Following Accident on Freeway

Injuries suffered in a traffic accident claimed the life of Robert West early Monday.

West, 36, of 315 E. Browning Ave., died at a Salem hospital of injuries suffered in a one-car accident on the Baldoek Freeway a short distance north of Chemawa about 3 a.m. Sunday.

His car went into the ditch between the north and southbound traffic lanes, rolling over several times, state police said. It was the 10th traffic death in the county this year.

West was born April 15, 1921, in Greenville, Ill. He served in the army in China, India and Burma in World War II and in Korea in the Korean action.

He was discharged less than three months ago—on February 13—and came to Salem where his mother lives.

Survivors include his mother, Mrs. Henry West, and brothers Charles E. West of Lubbock, Texas, and Carol J. West in the Air Force in Korea.

Final rites will be conducted at 3 p.m. Thursday at the Virgil T. Golden Chapel, with the Rev. Wayne Green of the First Christian Church officiating. Interment will be in Belcrest Memorial Park.

Three Receive Terms in State Penitentiary

Three men received sentences to the Oregon State Penitentiary Monday in Marion County Circuit Court.

A fourth, Norval Jackson, Silverton, received a 90-day suspended sentence to Marion County Jail and was fined $250. He had pleaded guilty to furnishing liquor to a minor, following a September grand jury investigation of youth parties in Silverton.

Judge George R. Duncan sentenced Irwin Curtis Fitzgerald, Portland, to five years in prison. He had pleaded guilty earlier to an assault and robbery charge resulting from a holdup of Erickson's 12th Street market in November.

Van Glosien, Portland, was sentenced to 15 months after pleading guilty to theft of equipment from Willamette Drilling Co. in February.

Two other Portland men, Howard Thomas Jones and Alvin Lorraine Arneson, await sentencing after pleading guilty to a charge of obtaining money by false pretenses. The charge involves a $2.28 check said to have been cashed at Kraus Store in Aurora.

Joseph Eugene Barbara, Silverton, received a two-year sentence on a charge of obtaining money and property by false pretenses. This involves a $20 check cashed in Salem.

Betty Roadman, a Hollywood character actress of a dozen roles, affectionately known as "Mom" to thousands of U. S. servicemen, has an abiding faith in the destiny and leadership of the country.

This she indicated during a well-received address before the Salem Knife and Fork Club during its final dinner meeting of the season at the Marion Monday night.

Miss Roadman paid scant heed to Hollywood, but devoted most of her time to her experiences in the forward islands of the Pacific, where she spent seven months with an entertainment unit at the close of World War II.

Future Battle Predicted for Commissioner

A wide-open race for the position of Marion County commissioner in the 1958 primary and general elections is likely to develop.

This situation was forecast Monday when E. L. "Ed" Rogers, who has served as a member of the county court since May, 1946, announced he would not be a candidate to succeed himself. His term will expire Dec. 31, 1958.

Appointed to the court to succeed James Smith who died in office, Rogers has three times been reelected to the position. He is a Republican and a native of Missouri.

Prior to his elevation to the commissionership, Rogers served the county as road foreman. During his tenure in office his primary interests have been roads and bridges. He has held an official position with the O&C Land Grant Counties association and has been active in that organization's deliberations.

Rogers, who is 75 years of age, lives on a small farm in the Quinby section north of Salem.

Condemnation Suits Filed For Freeway

The State of Oregon filed three suits Monday in Marion County Circuit Court to settle condemnation of property for a four-lane freeway south of Salem.

The court approved a settlement of $21,000 for .67 of an acre and a service station north of the North Jefferson Junction. The state is to build an access road for the owners, Ben and Rosa Lee Bennett.

Two suits filed because of price disagreements were to acquire property owned by Ora and Vernon Thompson, and by E. B. and Constance Henningson.

The third suit was filed despite agreement on $1,350 for three acres from Walter M. and Mary K. Bloomer. Sale must be approved by the court because Mrs. Bloomer is a state employee, according to Esthel J. Benner, district right-of-way supervisor.

State Women's Clubs Close Headquarters; Plan Teacher 'Oscar'

National Post To Be Sought By Candidate

By MARIAN LOWRY FISCHER
Capital Journal Writer

With nearly 200 delegates and visitors on hand for opening sessions Tuesday morning, members of Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs are meeting in Salem for a busy two-day convention. Meetings are at the First Presbyterian Church.

Several matters passed at the pre-convention board session Monday afternoon were to be brought before the convention through Tuesday afternoon, it is reported by Mrs. George Rossman, Salem, president of the state organization.

One item important to the federation will be presentation of the name of Mrs. Marion T. Weatherford, Arlington, to be recommended as candidate for national treasurer of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Weatherford, a past president of the Oregon group, is currently national conservation chairman for the General Federation.

By vote of the convention Tuesday morning, the federation headquarters in Portland will be closed. They have been in operation for three years. The action was recommended by the board for the reasons that the headquarters have not been used enough to make it practical to maintain them, and because of the procedure in the organization, each president having her own plan of work in whatever city she lives.

Highlighting program features at the Tuesday night banquet at 7 o'clock at the Marion Hotel will be announcement of the name of the Teacher of the Year. This is the first year the Oregon Federation has given its "oscar" for teachers. Mrs. Paul L. Patterson, widow of Oregon's former governor, as federation educational chairman will announce the winner.

The community activities contest, conducted by the General Federation in cooperation with Sears Roebuck and company through the state federations, has 22 Oregon clubs entered. Awards in this contest will be announced next year, the event being a biennial feature.

Two Oregon groups were announced as subscribing 100 per cent to the national magazine, the Boardman Junior Woman's Club of Boardman and the West Hills Junior Woman's Club of Portland.

Convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs will convene in Asheville, N.C., June 4, several Oregon women planning to attend.
