

National American Indian Cattlemen's Association

The first annual North American Indian Rodeo Championships have been set for the Fairgrounds Pavilion at Exposition Square in Tulsa on November 13-20, 1977, according to the president of the sponsoring organization, John Fredericks of the National American Indian Cattlemen's Association.

The fourth annual convention of the Association, a national championship Pow Wow, an All-Indian livestock show and sale, and native arts-and-crafts exhibition and trade show will also be held at Exposition Square in conjunction with the rodeo.

Fredericks, a Mandan Indian who ranches on the Ft. Berthold reservation near Halliday, N.D., also announced that Jake Whitecrow, of Miami, Okla. will be general chairman of these events. A large local coordinating committee of Oklahoma Indians has also been named to guide the activities.

The Association is a non-profit trade association representing Indians across the nation who raise beef cattle. Its main goal is to create more jobs and income for Indian people through the production of beef and related agricultural activities.

Tulsa was selected as the site for these events in competition with Albuquerque, N.M., Denver, Colo., Rapid City, S.D., and Lubbock, Tex. Fredericks said "the facilities at Expo Square are outstanding and the reception we have received from the citizens of Tulsa — Indian and non-Indian alike — has been tremendous. We aim to put on an event that Tulsans can be proud of and that will be a credit to the Indian people," Fredericks said.

Similar events last year drew nearly 8,000 people to Salt Lake City, according to Association officials, "with a small local Indian community to draw support from. We expect a much larger participation in Tulsa," Fredericks pointed out.

Fredericks continued "these events are intended to showcase the talents and creativity of the Indian people, providing championship competition in native dance and rodeo. The livestock show and sale will serve to promote the cattle business as the most stable and viable economic enterprise on Indian lands, and provide an excellent opportunity for the burgeoning Indian world to put its best foot forward."

Whitecrow, a noted Indian statesman and native Oklahoman, said "on behalf of the Indian people of Oklahoma, I can say that we are proud that this outstanding event has been secured from Tulsa, and I see it as a real feather in our city's cap. These events are one of the major activities annually in the Indian world and I'm glad to be associated with it."

Madras All-Indian Rodeo

This weekend, the 23 & 24, the place to be is the Madras Jefferson County Fairgrounds for the All-Indian Rodeo.

The OICA approved event will begin at 7:30 p.m. Saturday and 1:00 p.m. Sunday.

The 10-Bar Rodeo Stock Contractors will be looking forward to seeing some of their newly arrived stock perform.

There will be seven events: Bareback, Saddle-Bronc, Bull-riding, Team Roping, Wild Cow Milking, Calf Roping and Barrel Racing.

The admission prices will be $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for kids under 12.

See ya' there.
