Root Feast Rodeo Results

The Annual Root Feast rodeo held just this past weekend, April 15 and 16, broke all past records for attendance. Approximately 220 contestants were entered in the two-day affair and the stands were filled both days.

Warm Springs had four locals win championship buckles. Terry Squiemphen in Saddle Bronc, Marita Johnson in Barrel Racing, Gunner Johnson in the Novice barrel racing, and Donnie Bagley in the Kids Cow Riding. Other locals who placed were Ada Billey fourth place in Novice barrel racing, and Vesta Johnson third place in barrel racing.

The Stock Contractors for the rodeo were Ten Bar (Earl Squiemphen) Rodeo Company, Delford Johnson, and the Sombrero Rodeo Company of Sisters.

The eleven championship buckles were donated by the Ten Bar Rodeo company. A ten dollar gift certificate was donated by Richard Macy of Burger Inn, to the cowboy who won the most money, Buck McCall won the certificate.

Teen Girls Take Tourney

The Warm Springs Teen Club boys and girls basketball teams have been holding a "disco" every Thursday (Thursday Night Fever) to help pay for expenses to tournaments and they held a dance contest April 6. Winners of the contest are: "Buckwheat" Scott and Nisa Sohappy; 2nd, Keith Moody and Sally Rhoan; and 3rd, Tyrone Ike and Becky Rhoan.

In basketball action, coached by Ronnie Suppah, both girls teams (12-and-under and 13-16 year olds) won first place at Pendleton April 8-9.

For the twelve-and-under girls, Joyce Suppah, Jolene

Johnson, Maria Minthorn, and Tonya Mitchell received all-star honors. Joni Wallulatum was named Most Valuable Player.

Reva Johnson, Raydine Johnson, Lorraine Suppah, and Leslie Charley, received all-star honors for the 13-16 year old girls, with Rosa Wallulatum named Most Valuable Player.

The teen boys didn't do quite as well at the eight-team tournament in Tahola, Wash. April 8-9, but placed third. Lake Quinault won first with Willapa Bay taking second.

Austin Greene and Rodney Mitchell were the all-stars from the Warm Springs team. They were coached by Willie Fuentes.

Kah-Nee-Ta's Wilkinson Wins PGA Title

Kah-Nee-Ta's Golf Pro Jim Wilkinson came through in the clutch Wednesday and sunk a five-foot putt on the final hole to win top prize money in the 51st Oregon PGA match-play championships at Spring Hill Country Club.

The putt was dead center on the 36th hole and when it dropped, Wilkinson, who had rallied from four strokes down, edged Columbia - Edgewater's Todd Young to win the $1,250 top prize.

This is Wilkinson's first victory in a major PGA event. "I've won a lot of little tournaments, but nothing with the prestige of a tournament like this," he told reporters.

Both Wilkinson and runner-up Young earned invitations to play in a foursome with pro Tom Weiskopf who will be in Portland June 9 to stage a fund-raising golf clinic for the athletic department at Portland State University.

There were some scary times during Wilkinson's bid for the victory on the third day at Spring Hill. As he and Young began their second 18 holes, torrential rains struck the course along with high winds, thunder and lightning.

But Wilkinson grimly hung in there, concentrating, and dropped in a 10-foot putt on the 33rd hole to lead Young 1-up. But Young earned the match on the next hole. It all boiled down to the last hole, and as it happened, Young choked and Wilkinson didn't. He threw up his arms in a sign of victory before it dropped in because he knew it was going.

Wilkinson, who has admitted, in the past that putting isn't his forte, told reporters afterwards that he had a little nervous stomach on the last hole. "I had choked in other tournaments and I could barely bring the putter back."

He described it as watching the ball roll in slow-motion - "I could see it going in, but it just didn't get there fast enough." But he didn't choke, either."
