Organizations in Conflict From . . . Al Ullman

The Western States Rodeo Association and the Oregon Indian Cowboy Association don't see things eye to eye. WSIRA being the influential organization in the area claims that the OICA is not a recognized organization. Any member of the WSIRA who competes in a OICA, or any other open all Indian rodeo — their points will not be accepted toward the final standings with the WSIRA at the end of the season, and could cost the contestant to lose out on going to the National Finals.

At the recently held Tygh Valley All Indian Rodeo on May 21-22, there was a ruling set and accepted by the 11 member board of directors for the WSIRA to fine anyone of it's members who compete in open shows. At this point this ruling has only been accepted by the board of directors. At the WSIRA sanctioned rodeo to be held in White Swan, Wa., this issue will be presented to the membership for final approval or to abolish the rule altogether. At Tygh Valley, when this rule was agreed upon by the board of directors there were many objections among the contestants regarding this rule.

Notices will be sent out to all members for them to consider the issue for the final decision to be made at White Swan.

The permit system is in effect with the WSIRA. A contestant is eligible to work two shows under a permit and one local show before he is required to obtain a membership card.

Editors note: If this rule is accepted and in effect, this would be a violation of one's constitutional rights for the denial of an individual to compete in whatever, whenever and wherever one chooses.

SALEM, ORE. — Oregon Congressman Al Ullman said most of the over-all tax cut now being considered by Congress should be directed to middle-income taxpayers.

"The middle-income brackets have not received their fair share of the tax cuts enacted in recent years," Ullman said in remarks prepared for a luncheon speech to the Willamette University Federal Tax Conference.

"About three-fourths of the cuts should be directed to individuals with the remainder in reductions for business to stimulate investment," Ullman said.

The 2nd District Congressman said the economy needs a modest $15 billion tax reduction to offset the impact of inflation, which increases taxes by moving people into higher brackets.

"The size of the tax cut proposed by the President is still too large, Ullman said, but added that President Carter's announcement of a reduction in his recommended cut from $25 billion to $19 billion is a healthy development.

"Federal deficits must be reduced as part of the fight against inflation," he said. "That doesn't leave much room for new spending programs or tax cuts of the magnitude proposed by the President."

On tax reform, Ullman said, "The code needs to be made much simpler and the Administration has made some useful proposals in this area.

"But repealing the credits and deductions which complicate the tax code is perceived by many as a tax increase, even when the simplification is offset by tax cuts," Ullman said.

"We will make an effort to pass some of the President's proposals, but it will be tough in the limited time remaining in the 95th Congress."

Ullman said that the tax cuts for business should be in the form of corporate rate reduction with special benefits for small business and targeted investment tax credits for rehabilitation of structures.

"I have also recommended a major tax credit to encourage businesses to hire hardcore unemployed, particularly young people, whose unemployment rate is far too high, although the over-all unemployment rate has dropped to 6 percent.

From The Tribal Education Committee

I would like to take this opportunity to express our appreciation to all the hard-working people that made our second annual Education Banquet a success. I believe this large display of people coming together emphasizes the high priority education really is in our community.

Once again, congratulations to our parents for their hard work and sacrifice they have given in putting their children through school. Also, congratulations to you students for your accomplishments in education.

May you continue to seek education experiences through our universities, colleges, community colleges, vocational education institutes, and local education classes. Education is a never-ending process — find something you want and go for it.

Tribal Court Notes Some Changes

The Tribal Court would like to inform the public as to their set-up as it currently exists. There have been some changes made regarding the judges. All incoming calls for the Chief Judge will go through the Court Administrator, Norma Smith, and through the Juvenile Secretary, Donna Foster, for the Juvenile Judge. Also, the judges may be seen by appointment only, and they will not be conducting any pre-trial conferences or counseling.

In regard to the postponement of trials, the individuals must notify the Court 72 hours in advance of the hearing and it must be approved by the judge. No one else is authorized to grant postponements. These will be only for valid reasons.

If someone would like to request a change of judge, the request has to be submitted to the Tribal Court five days in advance of the court hearing. That means five working days. Unless there is a valid reason, everyone will be going before the presiding judge for that court day.

To all persons who are issued a citation, subpoena, summons, or Notice of Action, if you do not appear at the specified time a warrant will be issued immediately for Contempt of Court. upon your arrest for Contempt of Court, you may bail out only by posting $180 cash. There will be no bonding on Contempt of Court.

Also, when a person is arrested on a warrant after 10 a.m. he or she will go to Court on the following day. Those individuals will be entitled to bail or bond, though.

Anyone wishing a Restraining Order to be issued against someone must sign a complaint before the Judge will consider issuing the order.

Persons wishing to file a complaint against their spouse for Failure to Support Dependent Persons have to wait until the spouse is two months in arrears with their support or has not supported the family for two months, as the case may be.

Ullman's Letter to the Graduates

Dear Graduates:

Last week I learned from your Tribal Council that twenty-three high school and college students would be graduating this week. I am pleased to have the opportunity to share this exciting honor with your family and friends.

Tonight, my young friends, you are the stars of the show. But after tonight, don't stop shining because your people and the citizens of this country need your dreams and idealism more than ever before. The world is in a constant state of upheaval requiring leaders in every aspect of living; government, medicine, humanities and social awareness. I am personally proud to offer my congratulations to an investment in my future.

Best wishes and good luck,

Sincerely,
Al Ullman, M.C.
