

POP AND SPOOKS — Halloween night found kids at the community center carnival and costume judging after freaking out Warm Springs neighborhoods.

Peoples Opinion

QUESTION:

What is your opinion on all the employees dressing in costumes on this year's Halloween day, and do you think this could become an annual event?

Ce Ce: Fantastic, helps us to get ready for all the other holidays coming up like Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years, and we are looking forward for the management on picking up the tab for a New Year's party.

Joyce Erb: I thought it was real neat. I'm surprised that everyone went all out dressing in their costumes. It was just neat. This could become an annual event.

CDS: It was kind of nice to see the camaraderie that developed out of the affair. I think people's true personalities were expressed in their costumes, and everyone found new, comfortable ways to communicate with one another (roaring, saluting, flirting and telling fortunes is so much easier than ordinary conversation). It was a bit difficult to get any work done, however, with all the distractions.

Mae Ann: I think it was pretty good, it got us away from the normal routine. Everyone seemed to enjoy it. This could become an annual event because this year everything was touch and go. Everyone didn't know who all would dress.

Cheryl: I thought it was fun. It gave the employees a chance to cut loose. This can become an annual event. Everyone hesitated at first but finally got loose.

Orthelia M.: I thought it was a lot of fun, a change of pace from the everyday business. I think this can become an annual event. I was glad to see so many dress in their costumes.

Mike C.: I thought it was neat. The little kids had the chance to come through the administration building and see all the adults dressed in Halloween costumes. They really enjoyed it, maybe we can do it again next year.

Art T.: Is my opinion that due to the paucity of levity events within the administration building, this past Halloween day was a pleasant change. As to whether or not this should be an annual event, I ask, (Quote, "Why not," end of quote.)

Michelle S.: I thought it was great, I had fun. It made a boring day not a boring day.

Dancing Your Way Out of Trouble

Everyone is aware of the recent climb in alcohol and drug abuse, and in an attempt to cut down on these problems, the Madras High School Indian Club sponsored a disco dance and contest at the Warm Springs Grade School gym, Halloween night.

Indian club advisor, Ron Pinkham, noted that although a large profit wasn't made, he felt the club was successful in their purpose for having the dance. Pinkham proudly informed Spilyay Tymoo that school administration, tribal police, school custodians, and chaperones were very happy and pleased with the results.

Assistant Chief of Police Dick Montee commended the Indian club for doing a "helluva job" and said he would like to see more dances or things of this nature. He also gave credit to the chaperones and club for policing and keeping things clean inside the dance area.

"I think for the most part, they (teen-agers) took care of themselves very well," summed up Neil Wagner, Juvenile Services. He did explain however, that some drinking was done in the perimeter of the area but was held to a minimum.

Wagner thought that something still needs to be addressed and that is self-control. He suggested the teens get together and talk with one another and say "hey, lets not do that (drink, take drugs, etc.)."

Another dance isn't on the drawing board because of the high expenses for this dance, but its a possibility.

Great Family Fun

At Great

Pumpkin Party

Families gathered for some fun and even a little excitement at the "Great Pumpkin" Party at the Community Center October 25. Of the estimated 125 persons present, nearly everyone went home a winner.

Pumpkin Pie Decorating Contest
Orthelia Miller family took first place in the Most Colorful Pie contest. The Riggs Charley family came a close second.

For the Scariest Pie, the Quinn family, led by Joyce, won first and the Versa Smith family took second for their efforts.

CeCe Suppah and her brother had the fanciest pie so took home first place honors and the Art McConville family took second.

Late entry Ada Sooksoit and her family (her Sahaptin language class) won first for having the funniest pie. What was supposed to be a face seemed to be an abstract painting by an amateur artist. Jolene Tufti had a funny pie too, but she had to settle for second.

Pumpkin Carving Contest
First place in the Scariest Pumpkin division went to the Sonja Howtopat family. CeCe Suppah family won second with a rushed job on their pumpkin. They were late because they were still eating supper when the contest began.

Jolene Pitt and her family combined their efforts to have the Cutest Pumpkin and the Art McConville family took second again. (Must admit, they sure have consistency.)

Pumpkin Decorating Contest
Riggs Charley's family was chosen as having the Ugliest pumpkin (hands down). There was no second place winner in this event.

For having the cutest pumpkin, Orthelia Miller's family was the winner. Alesie Eyle family had the second cutest pumpkin.

Tommy Kalama's family had the most Original Pumpkin and won that event.

A Pie Eating contest was held and the Valerie Lawrence family at their pies the fastest and won that event no sweat. David Lawrence was the messiest eater.

An added attraction was a pinata. It took the kids quite a while and a lot of beating to break open the pinata, but the reward was apparently well worth it.

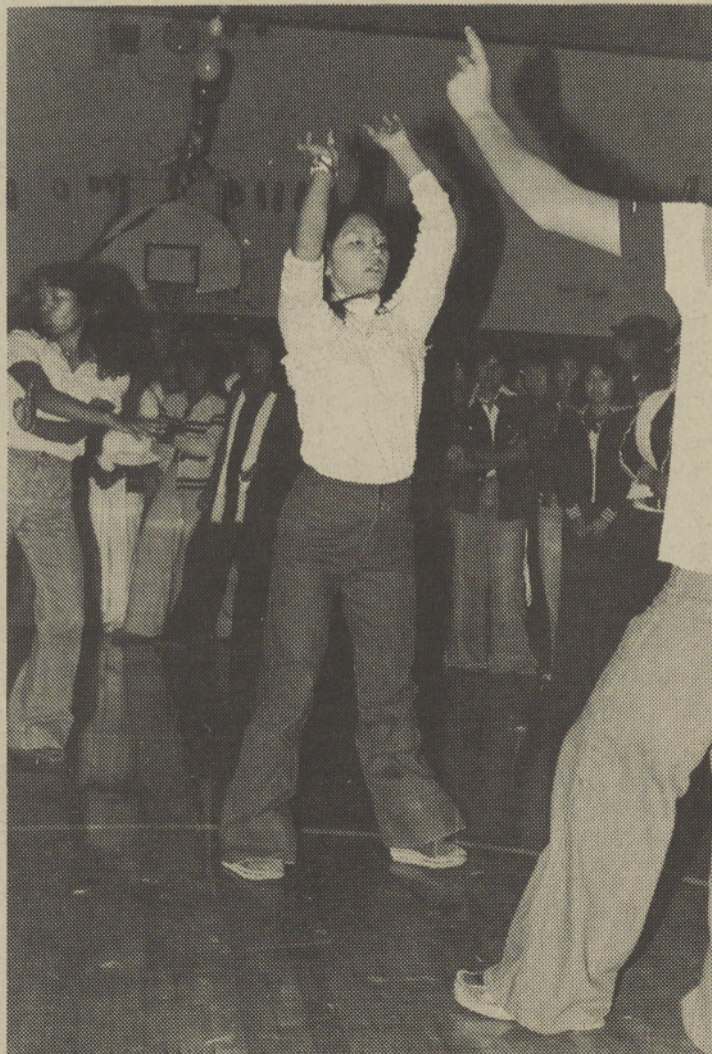

first place. They each received for their efforts $10 a piece.

Buckwheat Scott and Nisa Sohappay won $5 each and second place in their attempt in the contest.

Delson and CeCe Suppah were declared third place winners and they took home $5.

Matt Wewa and his partner Marena Wolfe earned fourth place for their dancing and they were both awarded an unknown amount of cash.
