

Halloween craziness hits employees

Temporary insanity hit Warm Springs this Halloween, and tribal employees took advantage of the opportunity and let their inhibitions go. Many more women than men dressed for the occasion, leaving some to believe that women are more often in work roles that don't allow the "real" person to show through.

Would you want to be hired by a black cat? The personnel department employees were seen dressed in a variety of unusual costumes. Hopefully didn't scare too many prospective employees away. (above)

Jim Sizemore and Evaline Patt (far left) who work in the accounting department, went on with work as usual, trying hard to ignore each other as well as all the other funny looking people.

A mummy in the personnel department, who was really MayAnn Gabriel, kept people guessing and scared. MayAnn could be heard mumbling something about the heat of her "wrap". (far left)

A "wild and crazy guy"? Delson Suppah (near left) donned a skirt, blouse, stockings and a wig to fool employees. Delson won first place in the male, most original division.

A vampire (lower, near left) who was really Jim Boye, broke his nocturnal habit and spent most of the day attacking women's necks. Boye and his victim, monster Janet Cowden, won first place in the men's and women's "ugliest" division.

Other winners were prettiest girl, Cherly Connors and prettiest boy, Ray Rivero. Funniest girl was Mary Anstett and funniest boy was George Johnson. Most original girl costume went to Eloise Thornton.
